Nation Sees Signs Of Break In Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new surge of arctic air pushed southward into the Rockies and Great Plains, but it lacked the sting and endurance of earlier polar outbreaks.

And daytime temperatures moderated in parts of the Midwest, East, and South. Low temperatures in many parts of Wisconsin were above zero for the first time in more than two weeks.

For the first time this month a low-pressure storm area approached northern California from the Pacific Ocean. These storm centers have entered the United States from northwestern Canada during the marathon siege of arctic air. The Pacific storm brought the first good snowfall in more than 40 days to mountain peaks of northern California, and heavy rain was forecast for lower areas.

However, parts of the East were numbed by record cold that moved in from the Midwest.

Titusville in northwestern Pennsylvania had an early morning low of -30, and Norfolk in northwestern Connecticut recorded -25. Uniontown, Pa., registered an all-time low of -14. The -20 at Elkins, W.Va., was the lowest January reading ever recorded. Pittsburgh had a record low for the date of -10, and Philadelphia a record -5.

Parts of Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana had subzero readings for the second straight day, but they were higher than the previous day's marks of -30 or lower.

The southern edge of the country's subzero belt early Tuesday stretched from New England to northern Virginia and through Kentucy and Missouri into Wyoming and northeastern Washington.

The prolonged siege of cold crippled inland water transportation. All traffic on the Ohio River reached a virtual standstill, with stationary ice extending 221 miles below Pittsburgh. Ice jams swelled and multiplied for 50 miles along the Mississippi River near Cairo, Ill., where it joins the Ohio River. The upper Chesapeake Bay north of Baltimore was covered with 8 inches of ice. Navigation was closed to all but large vessels with strong hulls.

Snow storms and cold the past week have been blamed for 187 weather-related deaths across the country. The deaths were caused by exposure, asphyxiation, overexertion in snow, fires, and accidents on slick highways.

Winter Listed Cause Of 430 Dead In Europe

LONDON (AP)—Fierce cold and snow struck anew at south and east Europe Tuesday, raising winter weather deaths to at least 430.

Violent snowstorms raged over Greece and penetrated down to the island of Crete, most southerly point in the country. Two more people froze to death during the night, making the Greek toll 24.

Italy was coldest in its normally sunny south. Sicily, Sardinia, and the heel of the Italian boot had steady snow. The north had sunshine.

Five more deaths—making the Italian total 109—were reported overnight.

Deaths attributed to the harsh winter in other countries were: Yugoslavia 45, Britain 112, West Germany 32, Spain 30, Holland 26, Belgium 18, Austria 8, Turkey 14, Sweden 7, France 5, and Switzerland 1.

Freezing weather returned in Hungary with temperatures dropping to 6 degrees Fahrenheit. Most of the country's main highways were blocked by snowbanks.

Poland mustered 10,000 special workers to clear snow from the railroads. The temperature was down to 9 degrees in parts of the country.

More severe cold was reported in East Germany, where workers had been busy digging away the snowfalls of recent weeks. With the thermometer down to one below zero, shortage of fuel forced closing of universities.

Education Aid Plan Given To Congress

Single Package Bill Displeases Some Legislators

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy asked Congress Tuesday to approve a new kind of federal aid to education program—designed to meet objections th[illegible] smashed his school bill ho[illegible] in the past.

The President quoted no cost for his comprehensive, complex program, but administration sources estimated the cost at $4.6 billion for the first three years.

In two major respects, the bill differed from Kennedy's past educational proposals: First, it lumped all the President's education requests in one package; and second, it cut and renovated the key provision of federal aid to public elementary and secondary schools.

Little Enthusiasm

Congress received the bill without any great show of enthusiasm. Some members quickly criticized the idea of putting all education proposals in a single package.

Despite a new design, the bill still features the program that has provoked Roman Catholic criticism of the President's proposals in the past: a four-year, $1.5-billion plan of federal aid to public schools without similar funds for parochial schools.

But the President cut this part of his program considerably, and he may have satisfied some Roman Catholic critics by going a good deal of the way toward meeting their demands on aid to parochial and private colleges and universities.

Long And Complex

The bill is long as well as complex—some of its programs lasting two years, some three years, one four, and another five. Government officials said the first year starting next July 1—would cost $1.2 billion and the first three years $4.6 billion, but they would not estimate costs beyond that.

Despite their experiences on Capitol Hill in the past two years, administration spokesmen professed optimism for the bill's chances.

After a Tuesday morning conference with Kennedy, Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., said the bill would receive prompt and careful consideration in the House.

Both Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., chairman of the Senate Education subcommittee, promised speedy hearings.

Given 50-50 Chance

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader, said there is a "better than 50-50 chance Congress will approve the President's program."

But Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, the ranking Republican on Powell's committee, called Kennedy's bill "the height of political cynism."

He said the lumping of all proposals in one package with a high price tag would complicate passage of any legislation.

The bill's major new approach came in its provision for a four-year, $1.5-billion program of federal grants for public schools. This was a sharp cut from the $2.3 billion the administration asked for a three-year program last year.

Lone Bandit Stages $140,000 Robbery

DETROIT (UPI) — A bank in the suburb of Livonia was robbed of an estimated $140,000 Tuesday in a daring daylight holdup by a bandit who apparently turned the trick alone.

The FBI, however, in an early statement regarding the holdup said the bandit had taken approximately $50,000.

There were four employes and one customer in the branch office of the Bank of Livonia when the bandit entered Tuesday afternoon.

The four employes told police that the bandit walked calmly to the rear of the bank, past the customer. They said they thought he was a repairman.

He pulled out a .45 caliber automatic and said, "Everybody step to the rear."

Turning to the customer he had just passed he ordered "You too."

He then told the two male employes and the customer to take off their coats. He ordered the two women tellers to lay down on the coats and tied them with wire he brought with him. He then tied up the men.

Police were called to the scene when the main office of the bank failed to get any answer to telephone calls to the branch.

The employes said the bandit fled through the back door just as police entered through the front door.

Police said he filled a shopping bag with money from the main safe of the bank. They said he took only paper money in denominations of $10, $20, $50 and $100 bills.

Capt. Michael Vorgitch of the Livonia Police Department, who made the estimate, said the bandit passed up "$30,000 to $40,000 in five and ten dollar bills."

Mother Dies Trying To Save Children In Burning Home

CHANDLER, Que. (AP)—A 33-year-old mother died Tuesday with 10 of her children in a vain attempt to rescue the sleeping youngsters—aged two months to 12 years—from their fire-swept home. Her husband and two sons escaped.

Mrs. Fernand Dupuis ran back into the blazing house after being pushed out a ground-floor window to safety by her husband. She was trapped trying to rouse the children in second-floor bedrooms.

Dupuis, 36, unaware that his wife had gone back into the house, was beaten back by flames as he tried to reach the children.

The father, burned on the face and hands and suffering from shock, and two sons, Gilbert, 16, and Rene, 15, were the only survivors.

Hoffa Renews Fight With Bob Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —James R. Hoffa renewed his bitter feud with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy Tuesday, accusing him of abusing the will of Congress in an effort to victimize Teamsters union officials.

The peppery Teamsters president complained that Justice and Labor Department officials had pressured insurance companies not to underwrite Teamster officials. So far, he said, 260 bonding companies have refused to do business with the Teamsters, and the union's present bond will be cancelled on Feb. 8.

Under the Landrum-Griffin Labor Act, all union officials must be bonded to protect the rank and file from any misappropriation of funds.

U.S. Army May Develop New Striking Force

FT. MONROE, Va. (UPI) — Gen. Herbert B. Powell said on Tuesday the Army may eventually transform five or six of its 16 divisions into "air assault" outfits — capable of overrunning an enemy so fast "he won't know what hit him."

The crack divisions would be equipped with hordes of helicopters and light aircraft to sweep into battle and allow wide dispersal in the face of tactical nuclear attack.

First official details of tentative plans for the fast-moving, airborne version of the old horse cavalry were given by Powell in an interview with United Press International as he prepared to retire Thursday as Commander of the Continental Army Command.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara will give congressmen a rundown on the new concept of air assault teams Wednesday. McNamara will appear before the House Armed Services Committee as it begins an annual congressional review of the nation's military posture.

An experimental air assault outfit of 15,000 is provided for in President Kennedy's new defense budget. The unit probably will begin to form next month at Ft. Benning, Ga.

VA Radiologist Is Found Dead

Lt. Anton Glover of the Homicide Squad said there was blood on the floor but police found no wound. A maid discovered the body.

The hospital said Dr. McAllister, a 46-year-old widower, came here from Milwaukee a year ago. A lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve, he had been in ill health about a month.

Nation's Unofficial Poet Laureate Dies In Boston Hospital

Tributes Pour In From All Over World

BOSTON (UPI)—A world he loved and wrote about mourned the death Tuesday of Robert Frost, the impish New England poet whose simple verse established him as a literary giant and great humanist.

The 88-year-old Frost, who years ago became this nation's unofficial poet laureate, died at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at 1:50 a.m. EST Tuesday with only doctors and nurses at his bedside.

Though mentally keen until the end, he said not a word. A seven-week struggle against a series of ailments left him physically exhausted.

Funeral arrangements remained incomplete pending the arrival of relatives.

Tributes poured in from around the world—from both sides of the political divisions he always ignored or jibed at. He spent a lifetime simply writing about people and how they feel.

In Washington, President John F. Kennedy, a close friend of the old poet, said, "His death impoverishes us all, but he has bequeathed his nation a body of imperishable verse from which Americans will forever gain joy and understanding. He had promises to keep and miles to go and now he sleeps."

From A Poem

The President's last sentence paraphrased one of Frost's most famous works, "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening", in which he said:

"The woods are lovely dark and deep
But I have promises to keep

JFK To Send Congress Farm Message

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will send to Congress Thursday a special farm message proposing legislation on three commodities — cotton, feed grains and dairy products.

Speaker John W. McCormack, Mass., announced dispatch of the message after the weekly White House legislature conference.

The President's cotton plan would provide a new subsidy payment designed to equalize the prices which domestic mills and foreign mills must pay for American cotton. It also would ease 1963-crop planting restrictions.

Congress last year rejected the administration's attempt to impose mandatory production controls designed to hold down surplus production of corn and other feed grains.

This year the administration will seek continuance in modified form of the stopgap voluntary program for curbing surpluses that has been applied to 1961, 1962 and 1963 crops.

As for dairy products, the administration will attempt to prod Congress into launching some kind of voluntary program for inducing farmers to curb surpluses.

Congressional farm leaders have already begun work on the cotton program Kennedy was expected to propose, and were planning committee action on feed grain and dairy programs.

U Thant Says Strife Is Over In The Congo

Armed Forces To Be Reduced

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Secretary-General U Thant declared Tuesday that the active phase of the U.N. military operation in the Congo is over and the door is open for foreign aid to that hard-pressed African nation.

He told a news conference that the present U.N. force of 19,000 will be whittled down to between 12,000 and 13,000 by the end of March but will remain to help prevent tribal warfare and maintain order.

Thant's remarks on foreign government aid came as the United States dispatched a mission to the Congo to discuss with Premier Cyrille Adoula how much help the country needs. Heading the mission is Harlan Cleveland, U.S. assistant secretary of state.

Up to now all aid to the Congo, military and economic, was approved by the U.N. Security Council. The idea was to prevent any big-power struggle for influence in the Congo.

In response to questions, Thant said that with the military phase of the U.N. operation successfully over, he is consulting with the Congo government on opening up aid programs in addition to those channeled through the United Nations.

He said he is aware of the Security Council resolutions but that if the central Congo government "feels it is now the time to accept bilateral aid, I think the United Nations should comply with this."

The Soviet Union extended both military and economic aid to the Congo when the late Patrice Lumumba was premier, but the Russians withdrew when objections came from Dag Hammarskjold, predecessor to Thant.

Business Failures Down Over 1962

NEW YORK (UPI) — Business failures across the country last week rose to 321 from 286 the week before and compared with 389 in the same period last year, the Dun & Bradstreet reported on Tuesday.

Insolvencies with liabilities of $100,000 and over totaled 43, up 12 from last week and compared with 55 in the same week last year.

French Stand Jolts West Alliance

U.S. Made Vain Effort To Stay Final Decision

By TOM OCHILTREE

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle lowered the guillotine Tuesday on British membership in the Common Market, jolting the West and setting off repercussions which will be felt for years.

The formal French veto on London's application to participate in the European Economic Community was delivered in Brussels in the face of 11th-hour efforts by both the United States and European governments to delay a decision.

Diplomatic Visiting

It was a diplomatic triumph for the dour French general who has often shown, during and since World War II, that he felt his more powerful allies were not giving France its due.

But it was a triumph that could turn to ashes, in the view of supporters of the British cause. For one thing, the new French-German treaty of friendship faces an uncertain fate when it comes up for ratification in the Bonn Parliament.

Ministers of the six Common Market nations concluded two days of wrangling on the membership issue by calling in Britain's chief negotiator, mild-mannered Edward Heath, and telling him his government had lost.

So, too, in a sense had the United States, for diplomatic sources said De Gaulle's determination to bar Britain from the Common Market represented the opening move in a long-range campaign to undercut both American and British influence on Continental affairs.

Sought Compromise

Up to the last, five of the six urged the adoption of a compromise formula which would have kept alive Britain's bid to get into the five-year-old trade and political grouping.

The French held fast and won. Their weapon was a Common Market rule for unanimity on basic decisions—the veto.

Heath said the French attitude perhaps stemmed from the fact "some people regarded the negotiations as too successful to continue." This was apparently a reference to De Gaulle.

Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns said French stubborness "will have a very adverse effect on the Common Market."

"Furthermore, the confidence of the five toward France has been badly shattered," he said.

The five—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—met Tuesday evening with the British to see, as one source put it, "What could be salvaged from the wreckage."

Cold, Cold War

There were cold war implications.

The Soviet Union, having troubles of its own with Red China, viewed the split with pleasure. A tone of delight was reflected in dispatches from Brussels and other capitals printed by Moscow newspapers.

Pravda dispatch from Washington said the United States had helped design the Common Market as a wall against communism but it had turned against the maker.

Germans Unhappy

"The tangle of imperialist contradictions is getting more and more complicated," it said.

Disappointment was quickly evident in Bonn, London, and Washington.

Bill Proposes Senate Seat For Former Presidents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Caliborne Pell, D-R.I., proposed Tuesday that former presidents be given non-voting seats in the Senate.

Pell said he would introduce legislation Wednesday to carry out the plan. Similar bills have been introduced seven times in the Senate and 13 times in the House but Congress has taken no action.

Pell, beginning his third year, said in a a statement that "the presence of former presidents in the Senate would prove of immeasurable value to we who are amongst the newer sneators" and perhaps to older members too.

Former President Harry S. Truman and President Kennedy have privileges of the Senate floor as former senators. But former Presidents Herbert C. Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower do not. Even Kennedy and Truman are not allowed to speak on the Senate floor.

Pell's measure would give each a permanent seat with the right to speak but not to vote.

The bill provides no additional compensation. Former presidents already received $25,000 a year in salary and $50,000 for staff expenses.

Construction Engineer Who Landed Small Plane After Pilot Dies, Describes His Experience

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A construction engineer who guided a small plane in for a safe landing after the pilot had collapsed, said there was nothing to it. He had never flown an aircraft before.

"My worst moment was when we hit down on the runway and bounced a couple of times," Lester Peterson, 38, assistant project manager for the American Bridge Co., said after he and two other passengers had completed the landing.

The pilot, Edgar R. Van Keuren, 56, of Rapid City, S.D. was dead on arrival at a hospital. He apparently suffered a heart attack.

Peterson had to grab the controls when Van Keuren was stricken as the craft headed for a landing at an Atlas missile site 45 miles northeast of Cheyenne.

"I grabbed the wheel and pulled it back," Peterson said. "It appeared we were heading straight for the ground. They said we missed the ground about two feet."

Peterson climbed the plane, a Cessna 180, 7,900 feet while his companions, Lester Laun and John Pawlack, also engineers with the American Bridge Co., experimented with the radio.

"I was thinking of landing in a wheat field near the missile site," Peterson said. "But Les Laun suggested we head for Cheyenne where there were facilities for a crash landing."

When they reached Cheyenne they radioed the airport tower and explained the situation. Lou Domenico, a flight instructor, was summoned and talked the plane and its passengers down.

A recording of the conversation between Peterson and Domenico included these comments:

PLANE: "You're gonna have an ambulance there for this pilot, aren't you?"

TOWER: "Roger. We've got an entire crash crew standing by, and don't let 'em bother you. It's an emergency precaution. I think we can talk you in."

PLANE: "Aw, I know you can. Over."

Two planes and a helicopter were sent aloft to escort the plane in.

"All I did was steer the thing and follow instructions," said Peterson.

The plane landed on the runway, bounced some, blew a tire and then ran off the strip, doing minor damage to the craft.

"He did a real beautiful job," said Domenico. "He kept his head."

It took 45 minutes from the time Van Keuren was stricken until Peterson landed the plane.

Peterson, formerly from Union City, N.J., said he had never desired to be a pilot, "but I would like to learn how to land the thing."

"I wouldn't have minded being one today," said Pawlack, a native of Fairoaks, Pa.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary-General U Thant declared Tuesday that the active phase of the U.N. military operation in the Congo is over and the door is open for foreign aid to that hard-pressed African nation.

He told a news conference that the present U.N. force of 19,000 will be whittled down to between 12,000 and 13,000 by the end of March but will remain to help prevent tribal warfare and maintain order.

Thant's remarks on foreign government aid came as the United States dispatched a mission to the Congo to discuss with Premier Cyrille Adoula how much help the country needs. Heading the mission is Harlan Cleveland, U.S. assistant secretary of state.

Up to now all aid to the Congo, military and economic, was approved by the U.N. Security Council. The idea was to prevent any big-power struggle for influence in the Congo.

In response to questions, Thant said that with the military phase of the U.N. operation successfully over, he is consulting with the Congo government on opening up aid programs in addition to those channeled through the United Nations.

He said he is aware of the Security Council resolutions but that if the central Congo government "feels it is now the time to accept bilateral aid, I think the United Nations should comply with this."

The Soviet Union extended both military and economic aid to the Congo when the late Patrice Lumumba was premier, but the Russians withdrew when objections came from Dag Hammarskjold, predecessor to Thant.

JFK To Send Congress Farm Message

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will send to Congress Thursday a special farm message proposing legislation on three commodities — cotton, feed grains and dairy products.

Speaker John W. McCormack, Mass., announced dispatch of the message after the weekly White House legislature conference.

The President's cotton plan would provide a new subsidy payment designed to equalize the prices which domestic mills and foreign mills must pay for American cotton. It also would ease 1963-crop planting restrictions.

Congress last year rejected the administration's attempt to impose mandatory production controls designed to hold down surplus production of corn and other feed grains.

This year the administration will seek continuance in modified form of the stopgap voluntary program for curbing surpluses that has been applied to 1961, 1962 and 1963 crops.

As for dairy products, the administration will attempt to prod Congress into launching some kind of voluntary program for inducing farmers to curb surpluses.

Congressional farm leaders have already begun work on the cotton program Kennedy was expected to propose, and were planning committee action on feed grain and dairy programs.

Business Failures Down Over 1962

NEW YORK (UPI) — Business failures across the country last week rose to 321 from 286 the week before and compared with 389 in the same period last year, the Dun & Bradstreet reported on Tuesday.

Insolvencies with liabilities of $100,000 and over totaled 43, up 12 from last week and compared with 55 in the same week last year.

Nation Sees Signs Of Break In Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new surge of arctic air pushed southward into the Rockies and Great Plains, but it lacked the sting and endurance of earlier polar outbreaks.

And daytime temperatures moderated in parts of the Midwest, East, and South. Low temperatures in many parts of Wisconsin were above zero for the first time in more than two weeks.

For the first time this month a low-pressure storm area approached northern California from the Pacific Ocean. These storm centers have entered the United States from northwestern Canada during the marathon siege of arctic air. The Pacific storm brought the first good snowfall in more than 40 days to mountain peaks of northern California, and heavy rain was forecast for lower areas.

However, parts of the East were numbed by record cold that moved in from the Midwest.

Titusville in northwestern Pennsylvania had an early morning low of -30, and Norfolk in northwestern Connecticut recorded -25. Uniontown, Pa., registered an all-time low of -14. The -20 at Elkins, W.Va., was the lowest January reading ever recorded. Pittsburgh had a record low for the date of -10, and Philadelphia a record -5.

Parts of Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana had subzero readings for the second straight day, but they were higher than the previous day's marks of -30 or lower.

The southern edge of the country's subzero belt early Tuesday stretched from New England to northern Virginia and through Kentucy and Missouri into Wyoming and northeastern Washington.

The prolonged siege of cold crippled inland water transportation. All traffic on the Ohio River reached a virtual standstill, with stationary ice extending 221 miles below Pittsburgh. Ice jams swelled and multiplied for 50 miles along the Mississippi River near Cairo, Ill., where it joins the Ohio River. The upper Chesapeake Bay north of Baltimore was covered with 8 inches of ice. Navigation was closed to all but large vessels with strong hulls.

Snow storms and cold the past week have been blamed for 187 weather-related deaths across the country. The deaths were caused by exposure, asphyxiation, overexertion in snow, fires, and accidents on slick highways.

Winter Listed Cause Of 430 Dead In Europe

LONDON (AP)—Fierce cold and snow struck anew at south and east Europe Tuesday, raising winter weather deaths to at least 430.

Violent snowstorms raged over Greece and penetrated down to the island of Crete, most southerly point in the country. Two more people froze to death during the night, making the Greek toll 24.

Italy was coldest in its normally sunny south. Sicily, Sardinia, and the heel of the Italian boot had steady snow. The north had sunshine.

Five more deaths—making the Italian total 109—were reported overnight.

Deaths attributed to the harsh winter in other countries were: Yugoslavia 45, Britain 112, West Germany 32, Spain 30, Holland 26, Belgium 18, Austria 8, Turkey 14, Sweden 7, France 5, and Switzerland 1.

Freezing weather returned in Hungary with temperatures dropping to 6 degrees Fahrenheit. Most of the country's main highways were blocked by snowbanks.

Poland mustered 10,000 special workers to clear snow from the railroads. The temperature was down to 9 degrees in parts of the country.

More severe cold was reported in East Germany, where workers had been busy digging away the snowfalls of recent weeks. With the thermometer down to one below zero, shortage of fuel forced closing of universities.

Mother Dies Trying To Save Children In Burning Home

CHANDLER, Que. (AP)—A 33-year-old mother died Tuesday with 10 of her children in a vain attempt to rescue the sleeping youngsters—aged two months to 12 years—from their fire-swept home. Her husband and two sons escaped.

Mrs. Fernand Dupuis ran back into the blazing house after being pushed out a ground-floor window to safety by her husband. She was trapped trying to rouse the children in second-floor bedrooms.

Dupuis, 36, unaware that his wife had gone back into the house, was beaten back by flames as he tried to reach the children.

The father, burned on the face and hands and suffering from shock, and two sons, Gilbert, 16, and Rene, 15, were the only survivors.

VA Radiologist Is Found Dead

Lt. Anton Glover of the Homicide Squad said there was blood on the floor but police found no wound. A maid discovered the body.

The hospital said Dr. McAllister, a 46-year-old widower, came here from Milwaukee a year ago. A lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve, he had been in ill health about a month.

Bill Proposes Senate Seat For Former Presidents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Caliborne Pell, D-R.I., proposed Tuesday that former presidents be given non-voting seats in the Senate.

Pell said he would introduce legislation Wednesday to carry out the plan. Similar bills have been introduced seven times in the Senate and 13 times in the House but Congress has taken no action.

Pell, beginning his third year, said in a statement that "the presence of former presidents in the Senate would prove of immeasurable value to we who are amongst the newer sneators" and perhaps to older members too.

Former President Harry S. Truman and President Kennedy have privileges of the Senate floor as former senators. But former Presidents Herbert C. Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower do not. Even Kennedy and Truman are not allowed to speak on the Senate floor.

Pell's measure would give each a permanent seat with the right to speak but not to vote.

The bill provides no additional compensation. Former presidents already received $25,000 a year in salary and $50,000 for staff expenses.

Hoffa Renews Fight With Bob Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —James R. Hoffa renewed his bitter feud with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy Tuesday, accusing him of abusing the will of Congress in an effort to victimize Teamsters union officials.

The peppery Teamsters president complained that Justice and Labor Department officials had pressured insurance companies not to underwrite Teamster officials. So far, he said, 260 bonding companies have refused to do business with the Teamsters, and the union's present bond will be cancelled on Feb. 8.

Under the Landrum-Griffin Labor Act, all union officials must be bonded to protect the rank and file from any misappropriation of funds.

Construction Engineer Who Landed Small Plane After Pilot Dies, Describes His Experience

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A construction engineer who guided a small plane in for a safe landing after the pilot had collapsed, said there was nothing to it. He had never flown an aircraft before.

"My worst moment was when we hit down on the runway and bounced a couple of times," Lester Peterson, 38, assistant project manager for the American Bridge Co., said after he and two other passengers had completed the landing.

The pilot, Edgar R. Van Keuren, 56, of Rapid City, S.D. was dead on arrival at a hospital. He apparently suffered a heart attack.

Peterson had to grab the controls when Van Keuren was stricken as the craft headed for a landing at an Atlas missile site 45 miles northeast of Cheyenne.

"I grabbed the wheel and pulled it back," Peterson said. "It appeared we were heading straight for the ground. They said we missed the ground about two feet."

Peterson climbed the plane, a Cessna 180, 7,900 feet while his companions, Lester Laun and John Pawlack, also engineers with the American Bridge Co., experimented with the radio.

"I was thinking of landing in a wheat field near the missile site," Peterson said. "But Les Laun suggested we head for Cheyenne where there were facilities for a crash landing."

When they reached Cheyenne they radioed the airport tower and explained the situation. Lou Domenico, a flight instructor, was summoned and talked the plane and its passengers down.

A recording of the conversation between Peterson and Domenico included these comments:

PLANE: "You're gonna have an ambulance there for this pilot, aren't you?"

TOWER: "Roger. We've got an entire crash crew standing by, and don't let 'em bother you. It's an emergency precaution. I think we can talk you in."

PLANE: "Aw, I know you can. Over."

Two planes and a helicopter were sent aloft to escort the plane in.

"All I did was steer the thing and follow instructions," said Peterson.

The plane landed on the runway, bounced some, blew a tire and then ran off the strip, doing minor damage to the craft.

"He did a real beautiful job," said Domenico. "He kept his head."

It took 45 minutes from the time Van Keuren was stricken until Peterson landed the plane.

Peterson, formerly from Union City, N.J., said he had never desired to be a pilot, "but I would like to learn how to land the thing."

No. Viet Nam Swings Toward Soviet Union

May Oppose Red China In Party Power Struggle

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist North Viet Nam indicated in a statement Tuesday it may be swinging toward the Soviet Union in the Moscow-Peking struggle for leadership of the Communist world.

A joint proclamation issued by the Communist chiefs of North Viet Nam and Czechoslovakia called the Soviet Union "the center of the socialist camp."

The proclamation was signed by North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh and Czech President Antonin Novotny. It was broadcast by North Viet Nam's Radio Hanoi after Novotny and other high Czech officials concluded a state visit to North Viet Nam.

The statement indicated North Viet Nam had made a long stride toward the Moscow side in the Sino-Soviet power struggle that has seen both China and Russia court the Hanoi regime's support assiduously.

Such a swing by Ho would leave the Chinese Communists with only two firm allies among the Communist countries. They are North Korea and Albania.

Miss Iceodean M. Zekiel of Baltimore told police her assailant seized her from behind, threw her to the ground and dragged her some 20 feet into the alley.

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — City Attorney C. Awdry Thompson has been instructed to find out whether Cambridge has the power to adopt an equal accommodations ordinance.

Mayor Calvin Mowbray ordered the study after five Negroes raised the question when they appeared before the mayor and city council Monday night. Mayor Mowbray said determination that the city has such authority does not necessarily mean such an ordinance would be passed.

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP) — Alcohol was a contributing factor in one-half of Maryland's eight highway deaths last week, State Police reported Tuesday.

A statement from State Police headquarters said driver error was present in five of the accidents and excessive speed in two of them.

"Accidents don't just happen — they are caused," said Maj. G. E. Davidson, field commander. "Drinking, speeding, inattention and wanton disregard of the dangers involved are but a few of the obvious causes reflected by a study of the 437 deaths in the last 29 weeks."

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Army Corps of Engineers says the American freighter, President Monroe, has been fined $750 for illegally dumping debris into Maryland tidal waters.

Col. Roy S. Kelley, Baltimore district engineer who also is supervisor of Baltimore Harbor, said the incident happened last Nov. 6 between Arnold Point and Fort Landing offshore from Crystal Beach, Cecil County. He said crew members of the patrol boat Wicomico saw the ship dump boards and pieces of plywood overboard.

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — Thirteen high school seniors will compete for a $1,000 scholarship Friday and Saturday in the fourth annual Maryland Junior Miss Pageant.

The winner, to be crowned Saturday by Miss Dorothy Zucco of Pikesville, University of Maryland freshman, will represent the Maryland Junior Chamber of Commerce at the National Junior Miss Pageant in March at Mobile, Ala.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Award of an additional $6 million increment to Martin Marietta Corp. for work in Baltimore under the Gemini space program was announced Tuesday.

Rep. Carlton R. Sickles, D-Md., said he was advised that the award by the Air Force will finance research and development work.

Washington County Road Bids Opened

BALTIMORE (AP) — Wolfe Brothers Contractors of Myersville, Md., submitted Tuesday the apparent low bid of $1,275,598 for construction of a section of Interstate 81 in Washington County.

The State Roads Commission said there were six other bidders on the contract, which calls for grading, draining and surfacing Interstate 81 from south of the Western Maryland Railway to U.S. 40, a distance of 1.85 miles.

Woman, 51, Leads 6 Boys Across Wall

BERLIN (UPI) — A 51-year-old grandmother led six boys over the snow-covered wall to West Berlin Monday night.

The boys ranged in age from 12 to 16. One of the 12-year-olds was her grandson, the other his friends.

The grandmother divided the boys into two groups and they escaped in the darkness unnoticed by Communist border guards.

Once in West Berlin the grandmother collapsed from fear and exertion and was placed under medical care. The boys were sent to a youth home.

West Berlin police did not disclose the escape route because it was unknown to Eastern police and it was hoped others would be able to use it. Names were withheld for security reasons.

It was the largest group to escape since Dec. 26 when two married couples with their four children crashed through a highway checkpoint to West Berlin in an old bus they had covered with home-made armor plate.

The woman told Western refugee officials she braved death to escape from Communist East Germany because "we could not put up with conditions there any more. They were dreadful."

The East German news service ADN said Wednesday more than 200 West Germans moved to east Germany last week, most of them to join relatives in the Soviet zone.

French Stand

Widespread resentment among all major West German political parties jeopardized the chances for ratification by the Bonn Parliament of the treaty of cooperation signed by De Gaulle and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, though it would require only a simple majority. The treaty calls for France and West Germany to work closely in foreign relations, education and defense.

In London, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told the House of Commons even before the final showdown that the British will face the difficulties as a united country. A Laborite member, Emanuel Shinwell, had suggested: "We are getting a little tired of Gen. De Gaulle."

The Macmillan government may be forced to reappraise its military commitments in Europe. If British goods are squeezed out of Continental markets, London dispatches said, there will be questions as to why the government should keep a 55,000-man army on the Rhine.

The result may also be a factor in leading to early elections in Britain.

Pick Up Pieces

A high official in Washington summed up American reaction: "We have to pick up the pieces and move on."

U.S. authorities said France's action was a serious blow but that it cannot be permitted to block the drive for Atlantic unification.

Before the final action, Secretary of State Dean Rusk had fired a message to West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder expressing deep concern over the breakdown of the negotiations. It was learned Rusk said U.S. concern arose primarily because the reasons for blocking the British application were essentially political rather than economic.

President Kennedy advised Congress Monday that the Common Market was challenging the United States with "an economy which can soon be expected nearly to equal our own."

But he added that the 1962 Trade Expansion Act, which authorizes tariff reductions on a reciprocal basis, will enable the United States to maintain its economic strength and, "together with the Common Market, continue our efforts to promote the strength and unity of the free world."

Early General Election Seen In Britain

Common Market Entry Failure Newest Setback

LONDON (UPI) — Prospects of an earlier general election in Britain increased Friday as the result of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's failure to gain entry to the European Common Market.

With the defeat on what had been one of the basic issues of his economic and foreign policy, Macmillan was said to be studying the possibility of calling parliamentary elections before the deadline of late next year.

Many observers felt an earlier election might improve the chances of Macmillan's Conservatives—now battered by setbacks at home and abroad—before the opposition Laborites can fill the leadership void caused by the death of Hugh Gaitskell.

Socialist members of parliament begin voting Feb. 7 for a man to replace Gaitskell as Labor party chief. The successor would become prime minister if Labor should defeat the Conservatives in the next election.

Nation's Unofficial

government newspaper Izvestia even printed a poetic tribute to Frost, who visited the Soviet Union last summer.

The Swedish Academy at Stockholm made an unprecedented disclosure. The academy, which declines to reveal those only considered for Nobel prizes, disclosed that Frost had been considered a number of times for the literature award. "His importance was obvious to us," said academy Secretary Dr. Anders Oesterling.

Fellow poet T. S. Eliot said in London he was "very grieved to hear of Mr. Frost's death. He was a poet of lasting importance."

Four Pulitzer Prizes

The white-haired poet, whose warmth and kindliness made him the friend of every man, won four Pulitzer Prizes for poetry, more than any other writer of verse.

Perhaps the high point in his long career came just two years ago when then President-elect Kennedy asked Frost to read a poem at his inauguration.

Few can forget that bitter cold but brilliant Washington day when Frost was blinded by the sun and could not read the lines he had prepared especially for the occasion. Instead, he recited from memory his poem "The Gift Outright."

His poems were masterpieces of simplicity, frequently humorous, sometimes melancholy, always wrapping profound thought in few words.

Among his many friends he counted Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, whom he met last year while touring Russia with Secretary of State Stewart M. Udall. He referred to Khrushchev as his "friendly rival" and described him as a "ruffian . . . he's ready for a fight. He's not afraid of us and we're not afraid of him."

A Chuckle . . . Or A Tear

With his pen Frost could produce a chuckle or a tear with equal ease. In the "Hardship of Accounting" he said:

"Nobody was ever meant
To remember or invent
What he did with every cent."

Many of his poems were drawn from the farmland he loved so well. In "The Pasture" he said:

"I'm going out to fetch the little calf
That's standing by the mother.
It's so young
It totters when she licks it with her tongue."

Despite the many honors accorded him over the years, Frost remained a humble man with no pretenses. He accepted many honorary degrees but admitted once that he did so to get the colorful, silk-lined academic hoods These he promptly had cut up to make old-fashioned patchwork quilts.

In his long career, Frost was in turn, a farmer, editor, millworker, teacher, humorist, classicist, philosopher — but always a poet.

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP— Miss Barbara Thompson, the oldest retired school teacher in Massachusetts, died Tuesday. She observed her 103rd birthday Saturday and received a congratulatory message from President Kennedy.

Telephone Companies Propose Change In Interstate Night Rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Telephone users would be able to call anywhere in the continental United States for a dollar or less under new interstate night telephone rates proposed Tuesday.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) announced that the Bell companies had offered the new interstate rates for the hours between 9 p.m. and 4:30 a.m. to make up some of the cost, rates would be increased 5 or 10 cents on person-to-person calls up to 800 miles.

The rates, effective about April 1, still must be formally approved the the FCC. This was all but certain since the agency had asked the companies to adopt the "after 9 p.m." reduction plan. FCC Chairman Newton N. Minow lauded the plan.

Under the rate schedule, a three-minute station-to-station call could be made anywhere in the United States for $1 or less during the specified night hours. To illustrate possible savings to the public, the FCC said it now costs $1.75 for a three-minute station-to-station call from Washington, D.C., to the West Coast.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said the reductions would amount to as much as 43 per cent in some cases.

In a station-to-station call, the caller is willing to talk to anyone who answers the phone. In a person-to-person call, the caller asks to speak to one individual and does not pay unless he gets the party he named.

The lower interstate station-to-station rates would cost the companies an estimated $55 million in annual revenues. The loss would be only partially offset by a $25 million increase in the person-to-person rates.

U.S. Steel Hits 10-Year Low In Net Earnings

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. Steel Corp. reported Tuesday its net earnings hit a 10-year low in 1962 — the year President Kennedy forced the big steel companies to rescind a $6 per ton price increase.

"Big Steel" reported, however, that fourth quarter prifits were high enough to cover dividend requirements. The directors voted to continue for the present the 50-cent quarterly dividend on common stock, which was instituted last spring after Kennedy's action forced cancellation of the price increase.

Before then, U. S. Steel had been paying 75 cents a share on common since the first quarter of 1957.

Fourth quarter earnings in 1962 were $41,043,651 of 64 cents a share against $47,430,000 or 76 cents a share in the fourth quarter of 1961.

Net income for all of 1962 declined to $163,858,667 as against $190,191,000 in 1961. Per share income fell to $2.56 in 1962 from $3.05 in 1961.

Fourth quarter profits, however, were up sharply from the $26,825,000 or 38 cents a share reported for the third quarter of 1962.

A statement from State Police headquarters said driver error was present in five of the accidents and excessive speed in two of them.

"Accidents don't just happen — they are caused," said Maj. G. E. Davidson, field commander. "Drinking, speeding, inattention and wanton disregard of the dangers involved are but a few of the obvious causes reflected by a study of the 437 deaths in the last 29 weeks."

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Army Corps of Engineers says the American freighter, President Monroe, has been fined $750 for illegally dumping debris into Maryland tidal waters.

Col. Roy S. Kelley, Baltimore district engineer who also is supervisor of Baltimore Harbor, said the incident happened last Nov. 6 between Arnold Point and Fort Landing offshore from Crystal Beach, Cecil County. He said crew members of the patrol boat Wicomico saw the ship dump boards and pieces of plywood overboard.

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — Thirteen high school seniors will compete for a $1,000 scholarship Friday and Saturday in the fourth annual Maryland Junior Miss Pageant.

CHEVERLY, Md. (AP) — The new president of the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce is Joseph H. Deckman of College Park. He was elected Monday night.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Award of an additional $6 million increment to Martin Marietta Corp. for work in Baltimore under the Gemini space program was announced Tuesday.

Rep. Carlton R. Sickles, D-Md., said he was advised that the award by the Air Force will finance research and development work.

Washington County Road Bids Opened

BALTIMORE (AP) — Wolfe Brothers Contractors of Myersville, Md., submitted Tuesday the apparent low bid of $1,275,598 for construction of a section of Interstate 81 in Washington County.

The State Roads Commission said there were six other bidders on the contract, which calls for grading, draining and surfacing Interstate 81 from south of the Western Maryland Railway to U.S. 40, a distance of 1.85 miles.

Woman, 51, Leads 6 Boys Across Wall

BERLIN (UPI) — A 51-year-old grandmother led six boys over the snow-covered wall to West Berlin Monday night.

The boys ranged in age from 12 to 16. One of the 12-year-olds was her grandson, the other his friends.

The grandmother divided the boys into two groups and they escaped in the darkness unnoticed by Communist border guards.

Once in West Berlin the grandmother collapsed from fear and exertion and was placed under medical care. The boys were sent to a youth home.

West Berlin police did not disclose the escape route because it was unknown to Eastern police and it was hoped others would be able to use it. Names were withheld for security reasons.

It was the largest group to escape since Dec. 26 when two married couples with their four children crashed through a highway checkpoint to West Berlin in an old bus they had covered with home-made armor plate.

The woman told Western refugee officials she braved death to escape from Communist East Germany because "we could not put up with conditions there any more. They were dreadful."

The East German news service ADN said Wednesday more than 200 West Germans moved to east Germany last week, most of them to join relatives in the Soviet zone.

Widespread resentment among all major West German political parties jeopardized the chances for ratification by the Bonn Parliament of the treaty of cooperation signed by De Gaulle and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, though it would require only a simple majority. The treaty calls for France and West Germany to work closely in foreign relations, education and defense.

In London, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told the House of Commons even before the final showdown that the British will face the difficulties as a united country. A Laborite member, Emanuel Shinwell, had suggested: "We are getting a little tired of Gen. De Gaulle."

The Macmillan government may be forced to reappraise its military commitments in Europe. If British goods are squeezed out of Continental markets, London dispatches said, there will be questions as to why the government should keep a 55,000-man army on the Rhine.

The result may also be a factor in leading to early elections in Britain.

Pick Up Pieces

A high official in Washington summed up American reaction: "We have to pick up the pieces and move on."

U.S. authorities said France's action was a serious blow but that it cannot be permitted to block the drive for Atlantic unification.

Before the final action, Secretary of State Dean Rusk had fired a message to West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder expressing deep concern over the breakdown of the negotiations. It was learned Rusk said U.S. concern arose primarily because the reasons for blocking the British application were essentially political rather than economic.

President Kennedy advised Congress Monday that the Common Market was challenging the United States with "an economy which can soon be expected nearly to equal our own."

But he added that the 1962 Trade Expansion Act, which authorizes tariff reductions on a reciprocal basis, will enable the United States to maintain its economic strength and, "together with the Common Market, continue our efforts to promote the strength and unity of the free world."

LONDON (UPI)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor, recovering from a "manipulative operation" for a dislocated knee, hobbled back to work with a cane Tuesday.

Miss Taylor, 31 next month, was treated by an orthopedic surgeon while under anesthetic Wednesday night for what was described as a "locked cartilage" in the left knee. After the operation, which did not involve surgery, the knee was encased in a cast.

Early General Election Seen In Britain

Common Market Entry Failure Newest Setback

LONDON (UPI) — Prospects of an earlier general election in Britain increased Friday as the result of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's failure to gain entry to the European Common Market.

With the defeat on what had been one of the basic issues of his economic and foreign policy, Macmillan was said to be studying the possibility of calling parliamentary elections before the deadline of late next year.

Many observers felt an earlier election might improve the chances of Macmillan's Conservatives—now battered by setbacks at home and abroad—before the opposition Laborites can fill the leadership void caused by the death of Hugh Gaitskell.

Socialist members of parliament begin voting Feb. 7 for a man to replace Gaitskell as Labor party chief. The successor would become prime minister if Labor should defeat the Conservatives in the next election.

Nation's Unofficial

government newspaper Izvestia even printed a poetic tribute to Frost, who visited the Soviet Union last summer.

The Swedish Academy at Stockholm made an unprecedented disclosure. The academy, which declines to reveal those only considered for Nobel prizes, disclosed that Frost had been considered a number of times for the literature award. "His importance was obvious to us," said academy Secretary Dr. Anders Oesterling.

Fellow poet T. S. Eliot said in London he was "very grieved to hear of Mr. Frost's death. He was a poet of lasting importance."

Other tributes came from poet-author Mark Van Doren, Pulitzer Prize winner John Hersey and many more, including local political leaders.

Four Pulitzer Prizes

The white-haired poet, whose warmth and kindliness made him the friend of every man, won four Pulitzer Prizes for poetry, more than any other writer of verse.

Perhaps the high point in his long career came just two years ago when then President-elect Kennedy asked Frost to read a poem at his inauguration.

Few can forget that bitter cold but brilliant Washington day when Frost was blinded by the sun and could not read the lines he had prepared especially for the occasion. Instead, he recited from memory his poem "The Gift Outright."

His poems were masterpieces of simplicity, frequently humorous, sometimes melancholy, always wrapping profound thought in few words.

Among his many friends he counted Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, whom he met last year while touring Russia with Secretary of State Stewart M. Udall. He referred to Khrushchev as his "friendly rival" and described him as a "ruffian . . . he's ready for a fight. He's not afraid of us and we're not afraid of him."

A Chuckle . . . Or A Tear

With his pen Frost could produce a chuckle or a tear with equal ease. In the "Hardship of Accounting" he said:

"Nobody was ever meant
To remember or invent
What he did with every cent."

Many of his poems were drawn from the farmland he loved so well. In "The Pasture" he said:

"I'm going out to fetch the little calf
That's standing by the mother. It's so young

Despite the many honors accorded him over the years, Frost remained a humble man with no pretenses. He accepted many honorary degrees but admitted once that he did so to get the colorful, silk-lined academic hoods These he promptly had cut up to make old-fashioned patchwork quilts.

In his long career, Frost was in turn, a farmer, editor, millworker, teacher, humorist, classicist, philosopher — but always a poet.

Telephone Companies Propose Change In Interstate Night Rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Telephone users would be able to call anywhere in the continental United States for a dollar or less under new interstate night telephone rates proposed Tuesday.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) announced that the Bell companies had offered the new interstate rates for the hours between 9 p.m. and 4:30 a.m. to make up some of the cost, rates would be increas' 5 or 10 cents on person-to-person calls up to 800 miles.

The rates, effective about April 1, still must be formally approved the the FCC. This was all but certain since the agency had asked the companies to adopt the "after 9 p.m." reduction plan.

FCC Chairman Newton N. Minow lauded the plan.

Under the rate schedule, a three-minute station-to-station call could be made anywhere in the United States for $1 or less during the specified night hours. To illustrate possible savings to the public, the FCC said it now costs $1.75 for a three-minute station-to-station call from Washington, D.C., to the West Coast.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said the reductions would amount to as much as 43 per cent in some cases.

In a station-to-station call, the caller is willing to talk to anyone who answers the phone. In a person-to-person call, the caller asks to speak to one individual and does not pay unless he gets the party he named.

The lower interstate station-to-station rates would cost the companies an estimated $55 million in annual revenues. The loss would be only partially offset by a $25 million increase in the person-to-person rates.

U.S. Steel Hits 10-Year Low In Net Earnings

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. Steel Corp. reported Tuesday its net earnings hit a 10-year low in 1962 — the year President Kennedy forced the big steel companies to rescind a $6 per ton price increase.

"Big Steel" reported, however, that fourth quarter prifits were high enough to cover dividend requirements. The directors voted to continue for the present the 50-cent quarterly dividend on common stock, which was instituted last spring after Kennedy's action forced cancellation of the price increase.

Before then, U. S. Steel had been paying 75 cents a share on common since the first quarter of 1957.

Fourth quarter earnings in 1962 were $41,043,651 of 64 cents a share against $47,430,000 or 76 cents a share in the fourth quarter of 1961.

Net income for all of 1962 declined to $163,858,667 as against $190,191,000 in 1961. Per share income fell to $2.56 in 1962 from $3.05 in 1961.

Fourth quarter profits, however, were up sharply from the $26,825,000 or 38 cents a share reported for the third quarter of 1962.

School Attendance High Despite Cold

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, after a 6 a.m. consultation with J. Hubert Radcliffe, supervisor of bus transportation, and checking all points in many parts of the county for temperatures, decided to have school today.

Of the 109 buses used to haul over 8,700 students to classes, 105 buses made their runs.

Only three failed to get underway, while one froze up after making one of its two runs.

A check of county schools found attendance exceptional. Allegany High School, which was affected by the three buses that could not get started and the fourth that broke down, had 84 per cent attendance.

Beall High School, which has many students who walk to classes, had 95 per cent attending.

Flintstone School, which has nearly all of its enrollment being transported by bus, had only 15 absent out of a total of 431 pupils for a 97 per cent attendance. At 5:45 a.m. yesterday, it was 18 degrees below zero in that section, Webster pointed out.

Fort Hill High School had 91 per cent; Central Elementary School, 87 per cent; Valley High School, 95 per cent; Westernport Elementary, 89 per cent; Oldtown School, 87 per cent, and East Side, 79 per cent.

Webster pointed out that the East Side absenteeism was not due primary to the cold, but to the prevalence of virus illness, influenza and strep throat.

School officials pointed out that in making decisions to order classes held, or calling school off, Webster and Radcliffe contact for weather conditions the LaVale Barracks of State Police; Cumberland City Police, Frostburg City Hall and various bus drivers from all parts of the county.

Officials pointed out that one mishap occurred yesterday involving a station wagon enroute to pick up its first passenger for special education classes in Centre Street and Gephart School.

The vehicle operated by Mrs. Lillian Adams collided on Creek Road with a car driven by William Shirk, Creek Road. Damage was slight to each car and no one was injured.

The mayors of Frostburg, Barton and Lonaconing sent letters today to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners urging action on the County Sewage Committee's recommendations for handling the sewage problem.

County Commissioners Urged To Form All-County Sewage Unit

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday received a letter from the City-County Water-Sewage Commission in which certain recommendations were outlined in connection with the report by the County Sewage Study Committee.

The letter, signed by William A. Douglas, chairman of the City-County group, mainly urged the county commissioners to request the county delegation at the General Assembly to seek legislation to cover formation of an overall Allegany County Water-Sewage Authority, or Commission, exclusive of Cumberland and Westernport, as an emergency measure.

The authority would be comprised of five or seven members. The best method for financing the sewage program would be self-supporting or revenue bonds, the letter pointed out.

The commissioners took no action on the matter yesterday as they will attend a meeting in Baltimore today with the State Health Department on the recommendation of the Sewage Study group.

Commissioner Robert Little Ebert said that it is hoped the transition from the programs in effect now and the recommended plan of the study group would be made smoothly.

Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon said the session is being held in Baltimore as the state agency officials would not be able to confer in Cumberland with the county board until a week or so. It was decided to go to Baltimore today in order to eliminate any delays in placing the program into effect.

"Let's face it, we still have some problems that have to be resolved, and resolved promptly, in connection with our county sewage program.

"The City-County Water-Sewage Commission was appointed by the County Commissioners and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland last August, with instructions to investigate and recommend the best method of handling our county sewage program. The main point brought out in our report of December 3 to your body was that this should be accomplished by the use of interceptor sewers running to existing treatment plants.

"This recommendation was endorsed by the two engineering studies secured through the County Sewage Study Committee. First, the report of Delta Engineers confirmed our statements as to cost, i.e., generally it would be cheaper to install interceptor sewers than numerous treatment plants; also that it would in all cases be much cheaper in operational and administrative costs to operate a single district using interceptors and existing treatment plants. Further, the evaluation report of Buchart-Horn, Consulting Engineers of York, Pa., recommended an overall single administrative district operating through the use of interceptor sewers running to central treatment plants.

"The above recommendations were accepted by the Board of County Commissioners at their meeting of January 22, and we judge will promptly be carried on to completion.

"We do not think this program should be continued under any of the present commissions, particularly the chairmen of said commissions, mainly for some of the following reasons.

"When our commission first began its study we endeavored to work with the two existing sanitary commissions. We first met with the LaVale Sanitary Commission who were very cooperative; however, they mainly stressed the urgency of proceeding with their work so as not to lose federal aid during the present fiscal year. We might add that this loss would be very small compared to the loss to all residents of LaVale if they went ahead with a separate treatment plant. We estimate this loss would be over $20 per year forever for each sewer connection.

"We also met with the Allegany County Sanitary Commission to find that two of its members, also their attorney and consulting engineers, were opposed to any and all recommendations advanced by our group, regardless of the fact that we were appointed by the County Commissioners to make this study.

"In view of this opposition, which we know still exists, of the present Sanitary Commission to the handling of our sewage by the use of interceptor sewers running to present treatment plants, we cannot feel by the greatest stretch of our imagination that the present Allegany County Sanitary Commission can properly implement and carry on this work. This was the reason for our previously requesting their resignaiton.

"We further do not think the present Sanitary Commission is in a position to negotiate the necessary agreements with the City of Cumberland or with the City of Frostburg, after by-passing Cumberland entirely in their original planning, also after trying to force Frostburg to go ahead with their own treatment plant which was contrary to Frostburg's idea of the way the sewer question should be answered.

"This leaves the securing of the proper legislation as the main hurdle to be overcome by the County Commissioners before your sewage program can be put in operation. We quote you as follows from our report of December 3rd as our suggestion:

"'In view of the above, we would strongly urge that the Allegany County Commissioners instruct the County Attorney to prepare immediately, and to present to the Allegany County delegation the necessary legislation for their presentation at Annapolis to cover the formation of an overall Allegany County Water-Sewage Authority or Commission. This commission to be composed of five or seven men with authority to handle all questions pertaining to water and sewage in Allegany County, exclusive of Cumberland and Westernport. This legislation to be passed as an emergency measure if possible.'

"As to financing, we still think it should be handled by the use of self-supporting or revenue bonds as outlined in our letter to you of January 21, 1963. This, however, would be handled by the new 'Commission' or 'Authority' after it comes into being."

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday received a letter from the City-County Water-Sewage Commission in which certain recommendations were outlined in connection with the report by the County Sewage Study Committee.

The letter, signed by William A. Douglas, chairman of the City-County group, mainly urged the county commissioners to request the county delegation at the General Assembly to seek legislation to cover formation of an overall Allegany County Water-Sewage Authority, or Commission, exclusive of Cumberland and Westernport, as an emergency measure.

The authority would be comprised of five or seven members. The best method for financing the sewage program would be self-supporting or revenue bonds, the letter pointed out.

The commissioners took no action on the matter yesterday as they will attend a meeting in Baltimore today with the State Health Department on the recommendation of the Sewage Study group.

Commissioner Robert Little Ebert said that it is hoped the transition from the programs in effect now and the recommended plan of the study group would be made smoothly.

Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon said the session is being held in Baltimore as the state agency officials would not be able to confer in Cumberland with the county board until a week or so. It was decided to go to Baltimore today in order to eliminate any delays in placing the program into effect.

"Let's face it, we still have some problems that have to be resolved, and resolved promptly, in connection with our county sewage program.

"The City-County Water-Sewage Commission was appointed by the County Commissioners and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland last August, with instructions to investigate and recommend the best method of handling our county sewage program. The main point brought out in our report of December 3 to your body was that this should be accomplished by the use of interceptor sewers running to existing treatment plants.

"This recommendation was endorsed by the two engineering studies secured through the County Sewage Study Committee. First, the report of Delta Engineers confirmed our statements as to cost, i.e., generally it would be cheaper to install interceptor sewers than numerous treatment plants; also that it would in all cases be much cheaper in operational and administrative costs to operate a single district using interceptors and existing treatment plants. Further, the evaluation report of Buchart-Horn, Consulting Engineers of York, Pa., recommended an overall single administrative district operating through the use of interceptor sewers running to central treatment plants.

"The above recommendations were accepted by the Board of County Commissioners at their meeting of January 22, and we judge will promptly be carried on to completion.

"We do not think this program should be continued under any of the present commissions, particularly the chairmen of said commissions, mainly for some of the following reasons.

"When our commission first began its study we endeavored to work with the two existing sanitary commissions. We first met with the LaVale Sanitary Commission who were very cooperative; however, they mainly stressed the urgency of proceeding with their work so as not to lose federal aid during the present fiscal year. We might add that this loss would be very small compared to the loss to all residents of LaVale if they went ahead with a separate treatment plant. We estimate this loss would be over $20 per year forever for each sewer connection.

"We also met with the Allegany County Sanitary Commission to find that two of its members, also their attorney and consulting engineers, were opposed to any and all recommendations advanced by our group, regardless of the fact that we were appointed by the County Commissioners to make this study.

"In view of this opposition, which we know still exists, of the present Sanitary Commission to the handling of our sewage by the use of interceptor sewers running to present treatment plants, we cannot feel by the greatest stretch of our imagination that the present Allegany County Sanitary Commission can properly implement and carry on this work. This was the reason for our previously requesting their resignaiton.

"We further do not think the present Sanitary Commission is in a position to negotiate the necessary agreements with the City of Cumberland or with the City of Frostburg, after by-passing Cumberland entirely in their original planning, also after trying to force Frostburg to go ahead with their own treatment plant which was contrary to Frostburg's idea of the way the sewer question should be answered.

"This leaves the securing of the proper legislation as the main hurdle to be overcome by the County Commissioners before your sewage program can be put in operation. We quote you as follows from our report of December 3rd as our suggestion:

"'In view of the above, we would strongly urge that the Allegany County Commissioners instruct the County Attorney to prepare immediately, and to present to the Allegany County delegation the necessary legislation for their presentation at Annapolis to cover the formation of an overall Allegany County Water-Sewage Authority or Commission. This commission to be composed of five or seven men with authority to handle all questions pertaining to water and sewage in Allegany County, exclusive of Cumberland and Westernport. This legislation to be passed as an emergency measure if possible.'

"As to financing, we still think it should be handled by the use of self-supporting or revenue bonds as outlined in our letter to you of January 21, 1963. This, however, would be handled by the new 'Commission' or 'Authority' after it comes into being."

U.S. Attracting Many More Tourists

By MURRAY J. BROWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — After years of sitting back and watching Americans head overseas to pour billions of Yankee dollars into foreign lands, Uncle Sam finally got into the act last year and went out looking for foreign tourists to help fill his till.

The result was that the United States emerged as a top international tourist attraction in 1962, and more overseas visitons came here than ever before.

According to figures released in American Express' annual year-end travel survey, American travel abroad last year showed a gain of nearly 10 per cent over 1961. But government statistics on travel from abroad to the United States in 1962 indicate a gain of about 20 per cent over 1961.

Much of the credit for the increase in foreign tourists should go to Congress and President Kennedy for establishing the U.S. Travel Service in June 1961.

A secondary factor was the importance of offering as many as possible people in the world the opportunity to meet Americans in their own back yard.

The Travel Service has worked hard to catch up in the long neglected areas of tourist promotion. During 1962, it opened travel promotion offices staffed by American experts in Japan, Australia, Brazil, Mexico, Colombia, Germany, Italy, France and Great Britain.

The Travel Service also launched the U. S. Government's first worldwide tourist advertising program.

It already has begun to pay off. According to Voit Gilmore, director of the Travel Service, more overseas visitors can be expected with each passing year.

Travel experts say the "VISIT USA" program not only helps U.S. efforts to close the imbalance of payment gaps but also is an economic shot in the arm to many communities.

The U. S. Department of Commerce — parent organization of the Travel Service — said:

"If a community can attract a couple of dozen tourists a day throughout the year, it would be economically comparable to acquiring a new manufacturing industry with an annual payroll of $100,000."

In line with the program, the U. S. government is doing as much as possible to show foreign visitors they are welcome at our ports of entry. Among the factors said to have kept tourists from the United States was fear of a "cold" reception.

Fort Hill Students Win Youth Awards

Two Fort Hill High School seniors, Shirley Lee Bowers and John G. (Jerry) Belt, won second and third places respectively in the annual Youth Leadership Contest sponsored by the Maryland-Delaware-District of Columbia Elks Association, it was announced.

Miss Bowers and Belt had won local competition among high school students sponsored by Cumberland Lodge 63, B. P. O. Elks, according to G. James Miller, lecturing knight and youth leadership chairman, of the local lodge.

Miller said Miss Bowers will receive a $50 Savings Bond for winning here and $75 for her second-place finish in the state and Belt will receive a $50 Savings Bond from the local lodge and $50 from the state competition. Arrangements are being made to present the awards at a regular meeting of the local lodge, he said.

Girls winner in state competition was Saral MacDonald of Annapolis; while Zepheretta Newcomer of Hagerstown was third. The boys' division was won by Arnold Alexander, Annapolis, while Kelly Norris of Prince Georges County was second.

Miss Bowers, daughter of Mrs. Rosalie S. Bowers, 630 Columbia Avenue, attended Oldtown Elementary and West Side Elementary schools. At Fort Hill, she is secretary of the National Honor Society, secretary of Delta Tri-Hi-Y and secretary of the band. She represented Fort Hill at Maryland Girls' State, and is assistant editor-in-chief of The Sentinel, school newspaper; and has participated in May Day productions and been a member of decoration and script committees for the junior-senior proms and farewells at Fort Hill.

While at Girls' State, Miss Bowers was named to represent Girls' Nation in Washington, D. C.

A counselor at a camp for diabetic children last summer, Miss Bowers also was chairman of a committee working with the Allegany County League for Crippled Children "Lily Parade" in connection with the Easter Seal sale campaigns; and has assisted in other fund drives such as cancer, mental health and heart.

Other activities included competing for the Baush-Lomb honorary science medal; representative of the Tri-Hi-Y at the leadership conference in Hagerstown; member of the Rainbow Girls and former member of the Luther League. Miss Bowers also is a tennis player, winning the city recreation title in her division and a member of the North End tennis team for two years.

Belt, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Belt, 36 Grand Avenue, attended Penn Avenue School. He is editor-in-chief of The Sentinel and has been a member and officer in the Science Club, Fort Hill Players, Thespians, National Honor Society and Senior Council.

He was a member of the prize-winning play cast for three consecutive years and is also a member of the Senior Boys' Ensemble, Glee Club, a capella choir, Student Council, Hi-Y, choir ensemble and Junior Town Meeting as well as being announcer for the Senior Band.

He is a member of Trinity Methodist Youth Fellowship and chairman of his own as well as the Sub-District MYF and a member of Trinity Church choir. While a member of the Boys Ensemble, he won first place in the Valley High School talent contest.

Teacher Enlists As WAVE In Local Unit

Miss Annabelle Leatherman, a member of the Oldtown High School faculty, has enlisted in the Naval Reserve as a WAVE.

The military is nothing new for Miss Leatherman, as she served two years in the Army as a Personnel Specialist. She enlisted in September of 1956 and was honorably discharged in September, 1958.

She enlisted in the Naval Reserve for four years as a seaman and was assigned to Mobilization Team 5-2.

With a bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland, Miss Leatherman has applied for a direct commission as an officer.

Prior to her graduation from the University of Maryland, Miss Leatherman attended Frostburg State Teachers College (1956), Potomac State College (1958), returned to Frostburg (1958-59) and then transferred to the university (1960-62), where she received her degree.

14 Reasons Why RAMBLER '63 Wins
Motor Trend Magazine's Award as
"CAR OF THE YEAR"

Rambler Classic 770 Four-Door Sedan

Rambler won this great distinction over all other cars. How come? Read these comments from the Motor Trend experts who tested the American, Classic and Ambassador:

1. You get room for six 6-footers. "Interiors of both Classic and Ambassador are roomy and comfortable . . . plenty of legroom."

2. "Classic and Ambassador have cleaner, more functional design . . . apparent from almost any angle."

3. "The basic-engined Classic gave an overall average of 23.1 miles per gallon."

4. "The Ambassador V-8 is a sportier, more performance-oriented vehicle" (test car had opt. 270 HP V-8. 250 HP std.).

5. "Rambler is now one-up on every other car"... with its new sports-car option, Twin-Stick Floor Shift with overdrive.

6. New Advanced Unit Construction . . ."results in a unit so strong it'll take punishment longer and, naturally, hold its resale value."

7. Rambler's exclusive "reclining bucket seats with headrests are options well worth the extra expenditure."

8. "Rough roads can be stormed with confidence. There isn't any pitch or choppiness noticeable."

9. All Ramblers have, in effect, "two separate braking systems for the front and rear wheels. If either one should suddenly fail, the remaining one can bring the car to a safe stop." Self-adjusting brakes standard.

10. "Quality has always been one of American Motors' largest selling points and continues to be in the new models."

11. The sedans' trunks are "large with a good amount of usable space."

BUYING A NEW HOME?

Be sure the heating system will meet your needs. Tear out this ad and ask your builder or realtor these heating questions.

1 Will the heating system be economical to operate? (No other modern, automatic heating system can match gas for economy.)

2 How is the house insulated? (With gas, normal insulation is used. With electrically heated homes, heavy insulation is required to help hold down heating costs. Excessive insulation, however, presents indoor moisture problems, seals fresh air out of the home, makes it stuffy inside.)

3 Will the heating system keep my basement warm? (It is impractical to heat basements with electric heat because of high operating costs. Forced air gas heat keeps your entire home cozy, including the basement, for less than it costs to heat just the upstairs alone with electric heat.)

4 How is the heat in the home circulated? (A gas forced air heating system gently moves the air throughout the home, mixes it; there are no hot spots, no cold spots. Electric resistance heating systems do not move the air; therefore, the heat is not evenly distributed and tends to stratify in layers.)

5 What provision in the heating system is made to filter the heated air and help keep the home clean? (A gas forced air heating system has filters which help clean the circulated air several times every hour. Electric resistance heating systems do not clean or filter the air in any way.)

6 Does the heating system make some dirt? (Contrary to what you might have read or heard, no dirt can be created by a forced air gas heating system. The heated air in your home never touches the clean gas flame. All products of combustion are vented outside the home. Most of the dirt in the home comes in through your door and windows or is tracked in on people's shoes. This dirt is present in all homes, regardless of how the home is heated.)

7 How is the heating system controlled? (With gas, just one thermostat is needed to keep your entire home comfortably warm. Electric heating systems often have a thermostat in every room. These are needed since there is no room-to-room heat circulation with an electric system.)

8 How safe is the heating system? (Properly installed heating systems of all types are safe. They must pass rigid safety tests and contain built-in safety devices.)

9 Can the heating system be easily converted to whole-house air conditioning? (Some experts predict that before long, no home will be considered modern—regardless of its age—unless it is completely air conditioned. A forced air gas heating system can be easily converted to central air conditioning because the ducts are already in place. Because electric resistance heating systems have no ducts, they cannot be used to air condition.)

FROM ANY ANGLE, IT MAKES GOOD SENSE TO HEAT WITH DEPENDABLE, CLEAN GAS

4-H Local Leaders Outline Objectives

A leaders organization in the county was discussed and it was decided not to have a formal organization, but informal get-togethers quarterly.

Objectives were set up at the first 4-H local leaders meeting for the year, which was held at the extension office in the Court House.

Goals and purposes listed are to have four meetings a year, at least one of which is to be a dinner meeting and another a program planning meeting. To provide an opportunity for leaders to know one another. To have no formal organization and n officers r chairmen. Meetings are to provide an opportunity for agents to discuss new material. Agents are to plan the agenda for each leaders meeting and always provide time for an informal discussion period.

Topics to be covered during the discussion periods are common problems, share successful ideas, and give encouragement to new leaders. Finally, leaders should encourage persons who are potential leaders to attend their meetings.

Mrs. Chester Robinette was chairman of the committee working on the objectives. Other members are Mrs. James Crable, Adolph Norris and William Shipley.

Standards for the window display for National 4-H Week, March 2-9, were discussed by Miss Mary Wise, who also gave an outline for them.

Discussing the public speaking contest in the spring, Charles Babich reported topics for the speeches in the senior group will be assigned, but the juniors may choose their own subjects.

Others attending the meeting were Mrs. Robinette, Mrs. Edith Lechliter, Mrs. Hazel Glover and Mrs. Reta Clark, of McCoole.

Railroad Club Plans Mardi Gras Dance

Tentative plans for a Mardi Gras dance were discussed by the Railroad Non-Operating Employes Social Club, following a spaghetti dinner held at the Outdoor Club, Frederick Street.

Newly elected officers assumed their duties at the meeting. They are Mrs. Philomena Bender, president; Peter DeArcangelis, vice president; Miss Verna L. Bowling, secretary and Donald Knieriem, treasurer.

The dance, to which guests will be invited, will be held in February. Committees appointed include arrangements, Peter DeArcangelis, Valentine DeArcangelis, Donald Knieriem, Mrs. Mary E. Knieriem, Fred W. Constable, Mrs. Filomena Bender, John Bender, and Mrs. Patricia M. Zollner.

Others attending the dinner meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ziler, Paul Ott, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Franciosi, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bittner, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. James Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grimm, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wharton, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kenney and James Walton.

District BPW Names Nominee

Mrs. Katharine Trundle Powell, Walkersville, was selected as nominee for state "Woman of the Year" award at the luncheon meeting of the executive committee of the Western District of the Maryland Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs Saturday at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. Other nominees were Miss Jeannette Bonig, Cumberland; Miss Cara Weber, Oakland, and Mrs. Gladys Coffman, Hagerstown. The state winner will be selected February 16 in Baltimore.

Mrs. Powell was chosen for her activities in church, hospital, homemaker, Girl Scout and Hood College Alumnae. She has served on the Frederick County Board of Education and Frederick Community College advisory council. She is a member of the Republican Women's Club, Woman's Auxiliary of the Angus Association, National Education Association and National Association of School Librarians.

A Western District social affair for the state convention in Hagerstown May 3-5 was planned, as well as the June meeting to be held at the Shrine club. The order for making the official badge was approved and copies of the district song distributed.

Miss Gerardine Pritchard presided. Others attending were Mrs. Lucille Wolford, Mrs. Mae Shankle, Mrs. Evelyn Ayersman, Frederick, Miss Orpha-Bonita Pritchard, Miss Mary Jo Logsdon, Cumberland; and Mrs. Patricia White, Oakland.

If you have dull strips of wall between windows and doors, too narrow for effective use of pictures, try placing flowers or small green plants in wall containers there. Such "ugly duckling" areas then will hold "their own" in your decorative scheme, the Society of American Florists says.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are in our late 20s. We've been married seven years, have a lovely home, excellent jobs and are content. For personal reasons which we do not wish to discuss with anyone, we have no children.

Our friends all have children and they badger us mercilessly because we have none. They insist something must be drastically wrong with us—that we are selfish and short-sighted. The stock phrase is, "You don't know what you're missing." They also say we will no doubt end up in the divorce court because a marriage without children is sure to fail.

Why don't people leave us alone? I can't see how our childlessness affects them. Please, Ann, print this letter and inform the meddlers that all couples without children are not miserable. And can you tell us how to deal with this problem in the future?

— IRATE

DEAR IRATE: I can think of no subject more private or personal than this one. Childless couples owe neither apology nor explanation to outsiders.

When the subject comes up, say, "We've beat that topic into the ground, now let's talk about something else."

DEAR ANN: When I read letters from single girls in love with married men I ache to tell my story. I'm putting it off no longer.

Eleven years ago I began an affair with a handsome man. He said his wife had an incurable illness and couldn't live more than two years.

I had a fine job, a lovely apartment and beautiful clothes. Soon I was spending so much time running all over the country to be with him (where no one would see us) that I lost my position and had to take a part-time job. Before long I had financial troubles. I was reduced to bargain counter shopping, doing my own hair and skipping the dentist.

Then I learned about other women in his life. He was sprinting out of town with his secretary and taking an old flame to dinner. I was crushed. By this time 10 years had passed. His wife never looked better and I never looked worse.

I didn't even bother to tell "Mr. Wonderful" goodbye. I left town and am now struggling to make a new life. Perhaps this letter will help other foolish girls who are playing the same game.

— PAID IN FULL

DEAR PAID: Your letter is solid testimony to the high price of low morals. Thank you for putting it down on paper.

DEAR ANN: Can you help me get rid of an old lush? It wouldn't be such a problem if he weren't my husband's father. When we took him in it was supposed to be "temporary." Three years have passed and he's still here.

He has had several jobs but spends all of his money on liquor. We can't keep a bottle of brandy in the house for friends. He drinks every drop. If we didn't buy him clothes he'd be in rags. We set up a charge account for him at the barber shop or he'd never get a haircut.

My husband agrees his father should get out but he wants ME to tell him. I say it's his place. If something happened to him after I asked him to leave I'd feel responsible. Help, please.

— BARBARA

DEAR BARBARA: I admire your forbearance, but what the man needs is help. Nothing in your letter indicates you have tried to straighten out his drinking problem.

Instead of heaving the poor guy out in the street and hoping he doesn't get hit by a bus, why not investigate the rehabilitation facilities in your city? A. A. is in the phone book.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bringing Up Baby®

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Babies, like everyone else, want to see the world. What better reason for trying to creep? And those first attempts at creeping are adorably awkward, wonderful to behold. Some try it forward, others backward. Still others fancy crabwise creeping. No matter what style your baby selects, the important thing is that he's learning the 3 big C's: Confidence, Co-ordination, Control. Happy new horizons.

•

Girl or boy creepers, sit-abouts or gadabouts, every darling one of them needs protein . . . to help develop strong muscles. Tasty way to give baby extra protein: Gerber High Meat Dinners. These baby-style "casseroles" have 3 times as much meat (and therefore more protein) as regular combination baby dinners. And all this savory meat is subtly blended with garden-good vegetables for bright flavor . . . hearty nourishment.

•

Roaming routine. When baby becomes a "four-walker" you'll really have to keep an eye on your traveler. Good idea to schedule his roaming times when you have some watching time. Say, when you're taking a "breather" or doing some sitdown chores. When you return baby to his play pen, a favorite toy, a snack of Gerber Fruit Juice or a Teething Biscuit will help overcome possible resentment at the confinement.

•

Why green and yellow vegetables? Because they're high in vitamin-A value. Gerber offers several good-tasting choices for baby's eating pleasure.

•

A word from Dan Gerber. "Our agricultural experts work on a year 'round basis to improve the quality of your baby's food. Take Gerber Green Beans, for example. It took several years of experimentation to develop a superior strain. As a result, the beans we use are tender, succulent and extra-flavorful . . . have less fiber and more flesh . . . and most important, they have a higher nutritive value." Gerber Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

Westernport Urban Renewal Bill Gets Senate Approval

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A bill which would enable the town of Westernport in Allegany County to carry out an urban renewal project was passed Tuesday by the senate.

The enabling legislation was introduced by Sen. George R. Hughes Jr., R-Allegany, at the request of Westernport Mayor Ray Wilt and the town council.

Hughes said Westernport has under consideration a plan to relocate Main Street.

Reapportion Bill To Increase Senate Roster

By DONALD F. FANNIN

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The House Redistricting Committee reported out Tuesday a reapportionment bill that would increase State Senate membership from 32 to 46 and strip 15 counties of their individual House members.

The committee hammered out the bill during a two-hour meeting and sent it to the floor with no recommendation either for approval or rejection.

Small - county delegates are expected to oppose the bill.

"This is only the beginning," said Del. Jack R. Nuzum, D-Randolph, as he stalked out the committee room. Nuzum and Del. J. F. Deem, R-Ritchie, have proposed a bill that would let each county retain its own delegate.

The measure was a committee substitute for a bill submitted by Majority Leader William T. Brotherton, D-Kanawha.

The House section was basically Brotherton's bill with only one change — making Morgan and Berkeley County into a delegate-district with two delegates and leaving Hampshire with one delegate. Brotherton would have made Hampshire - Morgan a delegate-district with one delegate.

The Senate portion was somewhat similar to a second bill submitted by Nuzum, which would have created 25 senatorial districts in place of the present 16. The committee bill would set up 23 districts each with two senators, and including three districts —six senators—for populous Kanawha County alone.

Committee chairman J. E. Watson, D-Marion, said the bill will read a first time in the House Thursday and advanced to the amendment stage Friday, but probably would be held there until Monday because "we expect a long, dragged-out debate will be launched."

Group Endorses Bond Issue For Oakland School

OAKLAND — A school board proposal for a $700,000 bond issue to construct a new junior high school building in Oakland was unanimously endorsed by a building committee named sometime ago by Willard L. Hawkins, county superintendent of schools.

The endorsement came after the group met recently at Southern High school, Oakland, to discuss the proposal in detail. The committee had met previously in December for a preliminary hearing with the Board of Education, the County Commissioners, Senator-elect and Delegates elect, and gave approval in general at that time.

At the meeting W. Kenneth Johns, principal at Southern, and Ernest Spoerlein, guidance counselor there, reviewed present enrollment and future enrollment trends, with a view to showing the need for additional classroom facilities.

The school board, at an earlier date had though of additions to Southern and Dennett road to take care of the matter, but a more thorough study had pointed toward a complete new unit.

A complete new unit would house some sixth graders, relieving classrooms at Dennett Road and Center street, all seventh graders and enough eighth graders to balance the pupil load. Southern High, with a capacity of 900 students, now has almost 1,200.

The Board of Education presented a number of points favoring a new junior high school: that the enrollment existed to justify the school and relieve overcrowded classrooms; that additions would only partially provide for the existing need; that the proposed school was the only facility that would give relief needed at Center street, Dennett road and Southern, and provide for the educational program needed; that it would previde for future growth for at least a decade; that the proposed school would provide facilities that could be used cooperatively with the present senior high.

Keyser Athlete In Auto Crash

KEYSER—A Keyser High School athlete was reported in "good" condition yesterday at Sacred Heart Hospital Cumberland, where he was admitted following a one-car accident Friday.

Tfc. Charles Snow of the Maryland State Police said the mishap occurred on U.S. Route 220 in Cresaptown.

Seedlings Available To Plant

OAKLAND—White and Scotch pine seedlings will be available for planting this spring as well as Norway and white spruce, it was announced by Jared D. Wolfe, assistant district forester.

The forestry office, Court House, Oakland, is requesting all persons interested in planting trees to place their order as soon as possible. Wolfe said there would be a limited supply of yellow poplar.

In former years as many as one million trees have been planted but the number this year was not yet available. Planting will take place the latter part of March.

Interested landowners may receive financial aid from the federal government through the Agricultural Conservation Program. Contractors may be hired to plant trees by machine for $15 per acre, or by hand for $25 per acre. Wolfe said the federal government would pay 80 percent of the cost. The federal funds, as well as the tree seedlings, are limited, he advised, and will be distributed on a first come, first served basis.

Applications for trees and information concerning the tree planting are to be made to the Department of Forests and Parks, at its office in the court house.

Meeting Set Friday

ELLERSLIE — Womans Society of World Service will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Evangelical United Brethren Church basement. Mrs. Pearl See will be in charge of devotions.

U.S. Attracting Many More Tourists

By MURRAY J. BROWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — After years of sitting back and watching Americans head overseas to pour billions of Yankee dollars into foreign lands, Uncle Sam finally got into the act last year and went out looking for foreign tourists to help fill his till.

The result was that the United States emerged as a top international tourist attraction in 1962, and more overseas visitons came here than ever before.

According to figures released in American Express' annual year-end travel survey, American travel abroad last year showed a gain of nearly 10 per cent over 1961. But government statistics on travel from abroad to the United States in 1962 indicate a gain of about 20 per cent over 1961.

Much of the credit for the increase in foreign tourists should go to Congress and President Kennedy for establishing the U.S. Travel Service in June 1961.

A secondary factor was the importance of offering as many as possible people in the world the opportunity to meet Americans in their own back yard.

The Travel Service has worked hard to catch up in the long neglected areas of tourist promotion. During 1962, it opened travel promotion offices staffed by American experts in Japan, Australia, Brazil, Mexico, Colombia, Germany, Italy, France and Great Britain.

The Travel Service also launched the U. S. Government's first worldwide tourist advertising program.

It already has begun to pay off. According to Voit Gilmore, director of the Travel Service, more overseas visitors can be expected with each passing year.

Travel experts say the "VISIT USA" program not only helps U.S. efforts to close the imbalance of payment gaps but also is an economic shot in the arm to many communities.

The U. S. Department of Commerce — parent organization of the Travel Service — said:

"If a community can attract a couple of dozen tourists a day throughout the year, it would be economically comparable to acquiring a new manufacturing industry with an annual payroll of $100,000."

In line with the program, the U. S. government is doing as much as possible to show foreign visitors they are welcome at our ports of entry. Among the factors said to have kept tourists from the United States was fear of a "cold" reception.

Fort Hill Students Win Youth Awards

Two Fort Hill High School seniors, Shirley Lee Bowers and John G. (Jerry) Belt, won second and third places respectively in the annual Youth Leadership Contest sponsored by the Maryland-Delaware-District of Columbia Elks Association, it was announced.

Miss Bowers and Belt had won local competition among high school students sponsored by Cumberland Lodge 63, B. P. O. Elks, according to G. James Miller, lecturing knight and youth leadership chairman, of the local lodge.

Miller said Miss Bowers will receive a $50 Savings Bond for winning here and $75 for her second-place finish in the state and Belt will receive a $50 Savings Bond from the local lodge and $50 from the state competition. Arrangements are being made to present the awards at a regular meeting of the local lodge, he said.

Girls winner in state competition was Saral MacDonald of Annapolis; while Zepheretta Newcomer of Hagerstown was third. The boys' division was won by Arnold Alexander, Annapolis, while Kelly Norris of Prince Georges County was second.

Miss Bowers, daughter of Mrs. Rosalie S. Bowers, 630 Columbia Avenue, attended Oldtown Elementary and West Side Elementary schools. At Fort Hill, she is secretary of the National Honor Society, secretary of Delta Tri-Hi-Y and secretary of the band. She represented Fort Hill at Maryland Girls' State, and is assistant editor-in-chief of The Sentinel, school newspaper; and has participated in May Day productions and been a member of decoration and script committees for the junior-senior proms and farewells at Fort Hill.

A counselor at a camp for diabetic children last summer, Miss Bowers also was chairman of a committee working with the Allegany County League for Crippled Children "Lily Parade" in connection with the Easter Seal sale campaigns; and has assisted in other fund drives such as cancer, mental health and heart.

Other activities included competing for the Baush-Lomb honorary science medal; representative of the Tri-Hi-Y at the leadership conference in Hagerstown; member of the Rainbow Girls and former member of the Luther League. Miss Bowers also is a tennis player, winning the city recreation title in her division and a member of the North End tennis team for two years.

Belt, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Belt, 36 Grand Avenue, attended Penn Avenue School. He is editor-in-chief of The Sentinel and has been a member and officer in the Science Club, Fort Hill Players, Thespians, National Honor Society and Senior Council.

He was a member of the prize-winning play cast for three consecutive years and is also a member of the Senior Boys' Ensemble, Glee Club, a capella choir, Student Council, Hi-Y, choir ensemble and Junior Town Meeting as well as being announcer for the Senior Band.

He is a member of Trinity Methodist Youth Fellowship and chairman of his own as well as the Sub-District MYF and a member of Trinity Church choir. While a member of the Boys Ensemble, he won first place in the Valley High School talent contest.

Teacher Enlists As WAVE In Local Unit

Miss Annabelle Leatherman, a member of the Oldtown High School faculty, has enlisted in the Naval Reserve as a WAVE.

The military is nothing new for Miss Leatherman, as she served two years in the Army as a Personnel Specialist. She enlisted in September of 1956 and was honorably discharged in September, 1958.

She enlisted in the Naval Reserve for four years as a seaman and was assigned to Mobilization Team 5-2.

With a bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland, Miss Leatherman has applied for a direct commission as an officer.

Prior to her graduation from the University of Maryland, Miss Leatherman attended Frostburg State Teachers College (1956), Potomac State College (1958), returned to Frostburg (1958-59) and then transferred to the university (1960-62), where she received her degree.

14 Reasons Why RAMBLER '63 Wins Motor Trend Magazine's Award as "CAR OF THE YEAR"

Rambler won this great distinction over all other cars. How come? Read these comments from the Motor Trend experts who tested the American, Classic and Ambassador:

1. You get room for six 6-footers. "Interiors of both Classic and Ambassador are roomy and comfortable . . . plenty of legroom."

2. "Classic and Ambassador have cleaner, more functional design . . . apparent from almost any angle."

3. "The basic-engined Classic gave an overall average of 23.1 miles per gallon."

4. "The Ambassador V-8 is a sportier, more performance-oriented vehicle" (test car had opt. 270 HP V-8. 250 HP std.).

5. "Rambler is now one-up on every other car"...with its new sports-car option, Twin-Stick Floor Shift with overdrive.

6. New Advanced Unit Construction . . ."results in a unit so strong it'll take punishment longer and, naturally, hold its resale value."

7. Rambler's exclusive "reclining bucket seats with headrests are options well worth the extra expenditure."

8. "Rough roads can be stormed with confidence. There isn't any pitch or choppiness noticeable."

9. All Ramblers have, in effect, "two separate braking systems for the front and rear wheels. If either one should suddenly fail, the remaining one can bring the car to a safe stop." Self-adjusting brakes standard.

10. "Quality has always been one of American Motors' largest selling points and continues to be in the new models."

11. The sedans' trunks are "large with a good amount of usable space."

12. "We've never seen a heater that produced more heat. At its maximum it should be up to any climate."

13. "In addition to long-recognized owner-appreciation features...the factory has doubled the new-car warranty to 24 months or 24,000 miles†."

14. Rambler's "an even better buy this year," according to Motor Trend experts. Here are some outstanding examples: the American 220 for $1846, the Classic Six 550 for $2055, the Ambassador V-8 880 for $2465 (all 2-door sedans).

BUYING A NEW HOME?

Be sure the heating system will meet your needs. Tear out this ad and ask your builder or realtor these heating questions.

1 Will the heating system be economical to operate? (No other modern, automatic heating system can match gas for economy.)

2 How is the house insulated? (With gas, normal insulation is used. With electrically heated homes, heavy insulation is required to help hold down heating costs. Excessive insulation, however, presents indoor moisture problems, seals fresh air out of the home, makes it stuffy inside.)

3 Will the heating system keep my basement warm? (It is impractical to heat basements with electric heat because of high operating costs. Forced air gas heat keeps your entire home cozy, including the basement, for less than it costs to heat just the upstairs alone with electric heat.)

4 How is the heat in the home circulated? (A gas forced air heating system gently moves the air throughout the home, mixes it; there are no hot spots, no cold spots. Electric resistance heating systems do not move the air; therefore, the heat is not evenly distributed and tends to stratify in layers.)

5 What provision in the heating system is made to filter the heated air and help keep the home clean? (A gas forced air heating system has filters which help clean the circulated air several times every hour. Electric resistance heating systems do not clean or filter the air in any way.)

6 Does the heating system make some dirt? (Contrary to what you might have read or heard, no dirt can be created by a forced air gas heating system. The heated air in your home never touches the clean gas flame. All products of combustion are vented outside the home. Most of the dirt in the home comes in through your door and windows or is tracked in on people's shoes. This dirt is present in all homes, regardless of how the home is heated.)

7 How is the heating system controlled? (With gas, just one thermostat is needed to keep your entire home comfortably warm. Electric heating systems often have a thermostat in every room. These are needed since there is no room-to-room heat circulation with an electric system.)

8 How safe is the heating system? (Properly installed heating systems of all types are safe. They must pass rigid safety tests and contain built-in safety devices.)

9 Can the heating system be easily converted to whole-house air conditioning? (Some experts predict that before long, no home will be considered modern—regardless of its age—unless it is completely air conditioned. A forced air gas heating system can be easily converted to central air conditioning because the ducts are already in place. Because electric resistance heating systems have no ducts, they cannot be used to air condition.)

House Passes Seven Measures

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Legislature moved at a rapid pace Tuesday, with seven bills passed in the House and five in the Senate including a measure to allow aliens to teach foreign language in public schools.

The House passed and sent to the governor a Senate - approved measure directing the State Natural Resources Department to cooperate with the federal government in wildlife and fish restoration.

Other measures winning House approval would:

— Prohibit any child fron entering the first grade unless he would be six years old prior to Nov. 1 of the school year, effective July 1.

— Allow counties and municipalities to provide money for road repair under direction of the State Road Commission and raise money to match federal public works funds.

—Extend probation eligibility to a person convicted of a felony during five years immediately preceding conviction of another felony.

The Senate passed and sent to the House the measure dealing with alien teachers and other bills to:

—Provide technical changes in statutes dealing with the State Motor Vehicles' Department handling of safety responsibility and drivers' licenses.

— Authorize the Department of Archives and History and the State Historic Commission to receive gifts.

In committee action, the Senate Temperance Committee recommended passage of a bill to permit the State Liquor Commission to sell liquor in case-lot quantities.

Liquor Commissioner Clarence Elmore estimated that such sale would yield an additional $1 million in revenues a year. He said the bill would merely bring the staet's package sales in line with other states.

Meanwhile, the House Finance Committee tabled a bill that would increase the annual license fee for packaged beer sales from $15 to $100. The House Committee on Counties, Districts and Municipalities held a hearing on a bill that, among other things, would allow police civil service commissions to require only one year's residency for new applicants.

Charleston Police Chief Dallas Bias appeared on behalf of the bill while Beckley Police Chief Millard Tyree and others representing the State Fraternal Order of Police were on hand to oppose the measure.

The House Judiciary Committee recommended passage of a resolution recognizing the Eastern Orthodox Church as a major religious faith in the state.

The House referred to its Judiciary Committee a measure to permit the sterilization of mentally defective persons under age 21 and expressly permitting voluntary sterilization of adults. The committee will redraft the bill to contain various technical amendments.

The Senate moved to the amendment stage a House - approved bill extending permanently the 6-cents-a-pack cigarette tax and its own bill to make permanent the 3 per cent insurance premium tax. Senate-passed measures to extend permanently the 3 per cent consumers sales tax and use tax were referred to finance committee in the House.

Election Is Held By Credit Union

ROMNEY — The eighth annual meeting of the Romney Federal Credit Union was held in the Hampshire County Court House.

The 1962 reports revealed substantial gains in both savings and loans in keeping with the growth of the organization since its beginning in 1955. The union began with assets of $25 and at the close of last year showed assets of $295,000.

The board reappointed a supervisory committee consisting of Lewis D. Pugh, Claude G. Pownall and Andrew L. Russell.

Senate Unit Favors Case Lot Liquor Sales

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginians would be permitted to buy alcoholic beverages in case-lot quantities under a bill approved Tuesday by the Senate Temperance Committee.

State Liquor Commissioner Clarence Elmore said that if the bill is approved by the Legislature, West Virginia would be able to pick up an additional $1 million a year in state liquor store sales.

Under present law, West Virginians cannot purchase more than one gallon of whisky at a time.

Westernport Urban Renewal Bill Gets Senate Approval

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A bill which would enable the town of Westernport in Allegany County to carry out an urban renewal project was passed Tuesday by the senate.

The enabling legislation was introduced by Sen. George R. Hughes Jr., R-Allegany, at the request of Westernport Mayor Ray Wilt and the town council.

Hughes said Westernport has under consideration a plan to relocate Main Street.

By DONALD F. FANNIN

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The House Redistricting Committee reported out Tuesday a reapportionment bill that would increase State Senate membership from 32 to 46 and strip 15 counties of their individual House members.

The committee hammered out the bill during a two-hour meeting and sent it to the floor with no recommendation either for approval or rejection.

Small - county delegates are expected to oppose the bill.

"This is only the beginning," said Del. Jack R. Nuzum, D-Randolph, as he stalked out the committee room. Nuzum and Del. J. F. Deem, R-Ritchie, have proposed a bill that would let each county retain its own delegate.

The measure was a committee substitute for a bill submitted by Majority Leader William T. Brotherton, D-Kanawha.

The House section was basically Brotherton's bill with only one change — making Morgan and Berkeley County into a delegate-district with two delegates and leaving Hampshire with one delegate. Brotherton would have made Hampshire - Morgan a delegate-district with one delegate.

The Senate portion was somewhat similar to a second bill submitted by Nuzum, which would have created 25 senatorial districts in place of the present 16. The committee bill would set up 23 districts each with two senators, and including three districts —six senators—for populous Kanawha County alone.

Committee chairman J. E. Watson, D-Marion, said the bill will read a first time in the House Thursday and advanced to the amendment stage Friday, but probably would be held there until Monday because "we expect a long, dragged-out debate will be launched."

Group Endorses Bond Issue For Oakland School

OAKLAND — A school board proposal for a $700,000 bond issue to construct a new junior high school building in Oakland was unanimously endorsed by a building committee named sometime ago by Willard L. Hawkins, county superintendent of schools.

The endorsement came after the group met recently at Southern High school, Oakland, to discuss the proposal in detail. The committee had met previously in December for a preliminary hearing with the Board of Education, the County Commissioners, Senator-elect and Delegates elect, and gave approval in general at that time.

At the meeting W. Kenneth Johns, principal at Southern, and Ernest Spoerlein, guidance counselor there, reviewed present enrollment and future enrollment trends, with a view to showing the need for additional classroom facilities.

The school board, at an earlier date had though of additions to Southern and Dennett road to take care of the matter, but a more thorough study had pointed toward a complete new unit.

A complete new unit would house some sixth graders, relieving classrooms at Dennett Road and Center street, all seventh graders and enough eighth graders to balance the pupil load. Southern High, with a capacity of 900 students, now has almost 1,200.

The Board of Education presented a number of points favoring a new junior high school: that the enrollment existed to justify the school and relieve overcrowded classrooms; that additions would only partially provide for the existing need; that the proposed school was the only facility that would give relief needed at Center street, Dennett road and Southern, and provide for the educational program needed; that it would previde for future growth for at least a decade; that the proposed school would provide facilities that could be used cooperatively with the present senior high.

Keyser Athlete In Auto Crash

KEYSER—A Keyser High School athlete was reported in "good" condition yesterday at Sacred Heart Hospital Cumberland, where he was admitted following a one-car accident Friday.

Tfc. Charles Snow of the Maryland State Police said the mishap occurred on U.S. Route 220 in Cresaptown.

Seedlings Available To Plant

OAKLAND—White and Scotch pine seedlings will be available for planting this spring as well as Norway and white spruce, it was announced by Jared D. Wolfe, assistant district forester.

The forestry office, Court House, Oakland, is requesting all persons interested in planting trees to place their order as soon as possible. Wolfe said there would be a limited supply of yellow poplar.

In former years as many as one million trees have been planted but the number this year was not yet available. Planting will take place the latter part of March.

Interested landowners may receive financial aid from the federal government through the Agricultural Conservation Program. Contractors may be hired to plant trees by machine for $15 per acre, or by hand for $25 per acre. Wolfe said the federal government would pay 80 percent of the cost. The federal funds, as well as the tree seedlings, are limited, he advised, and will be distributed on a first come, first served basis.

Applications for trees and information concerning the tree planting are to be made to the Department of Forests and Parks, at its office in the court house.

State Would Get $5.9 Million In Education Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under President Kennedy's proposed education program, the federal government would spend $400 million in the next fiscal year on aid to public elementary and secondary schools.

The bill, which Kennedy sent to congress Tuesday, proposes that the money be alloted to states on a formula taking into account both total population and per capita income.

This means that while big states generally would get more total money than little states, poor states would receive more money per person than rich states.

Under the bill, the states would have to spend from 10 to 20 per cent of their allotment on special projects. These might include studies of school dropouts or of remedial reading programs.

The rest of the allotment could be spent on school construction and teacher salaries.

The federal government would pay up to 50 per cent of the cost of each construction project. Each state would have to list its construction projects in order of their need and to tackle them in that order.

Funds for teachers could be used to raise salaries of the lowest paid teachers or to raise salaries of a community in financial trouble. During the first year, the federal funds could be used to pay up to 75 per cent of the increases.

The proposed allotments for the first year of the program, fiscal 1964 starting next July 1, include: Maryland $5.9 million and West Virginia $5.5 million.

Meeting Set Tonight On Europe Tour

A meeting for the purpose of discussing a European tour later this year will be held today at 8:30 p. m. in the grill room of the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

Plans call for the tourists to leave New York City by jet on September 9 and the party is scheduled to return to New York by ship on October 18.

Father Lyness said when the tourists arrive at Shannon Airport, Ireland, they will be greeted by a tour guide who will remain with the party throughout the trip.

Portions of the trip abroad will be by air, train and bus and points of interest to be visited include Ireland, Paris, Heidelberg, Black Forest, Switzerland, Florence, Assissi, Rome, Lourdes and Madrid. A cruise on the Rhine River is also scheduled.

Liquor Bill Is Favored

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee approved Tuesday a bill which would allow alcoholic beverages to be sold on election day as soon as the polls close.

The bill introduced by Sen. Paul A. Dorf, D-Balto 5th, was given a favorable report by a 6-4 vote.

Dorf said he had been asked by restaurant owners to change the present law, which prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages on election day until one hour after the polls close.

"Now that the polls close at 7 p.m.," Dorf said, "the restaurant owners feel it is a hardship to keep them from selling drinks during the dinner hour."

Dorf said the only reason he could find for the current one-hour ban was to allow time for the election officials to count hand-written ballots in the days before election machines.

"This is now outmoded," Dorf said.

"I imagine election night would be a good night for sales," committee Chairman Fred C. Malkus Jr., D-Dorchester, said. "You either celebrate a victory, or drown your sorrows."

House Passes Seven Measures

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Legislature moved at a rapid pace Tuesday, with seven bills passed in the House and five in the Senate including a measure to allow aliens to teach foreign language in public schools.

The House passed and sent to the governor a Senate - approved measure directing the State Natural Resources Department to cooperate with the federal government in wildlife and fish restoration.

Other measures winning House approval would:

— Prohibit any child fron entering the first grade unless he would be six years old prior to Nov. 1 of the school year, effective July 1.

— Allow counties and municipalities to provide money for road repair under direction of the State Road Commission and raise money to match federal public works funds.

—Extend probation eligibility to a person convicted of a felony during five years immediately preceding conviction of another felony.

The Senate passed and sent to the House the measure dealing with alien teachers and other bills to:

—Provide technical changes in statutes dealing with the State Motor Vehicles' Department handling of safety responsibility and drivers' licenses.

— Authorize the Department of Archives and History and the State Historic Commission to receive gifts.

In committee action, the Senate Temperance Committee recommended passage of a bill to permit the State Liquor Commission to sell liquor in case-lot quantities.

Liquor Commissioner Clarence Elmore estimated that such sale would yield an additional $1 million in revenues a year. He said the bill would merely bring the staet's package sales in line with other states.

Meanwhile, the House Finance Committee tabled a bill that would increase the annual license fee for packaged beer sales from $15 to $100. The House Committee on Counties, Districts and Municipalities held a hearing on a bill that, among other things, would allow police civil service commissions to require only one year's residency for new applicants.

Charleston Police Chief Dallas Bias appeared on behalf of the bill while Beckley Police Chief Millard Tyree and others representing the State Fraternal Order of Police were on hand to oppose the measure.

The House Judiciary Committee recommended passage of a resolution recognizing the Eastern Orthodox Church as a major religious faith in the state.

The House referred to its Judiciary Committee a measure to permit the sterilization of mentally defective persons under age 21 and expressly permitting voluntary sterilization of adults. The committee will redraft the bill to contain various technical amendments.

The Senate moved to the amendment stage a House - approved bill extending permanently the 6-cents-a-pack cigarette tax and its own bill to make permanent the 3 per cent insurance premium tax. Senate-passed measures to extend permanently the 3 per cent consumers sales tax and use tax were referred to finance committee in the House.

Election Is Held By Credit Union

ROMNEY — The eighth annual meeting of the Romney Federal Credit Union was held in the Hampshire County Court House.

The 1962 reports revealed substantial gains in both savings and loans in keeping with the growth of the organization since its beginning in 1955. The union began with assets of $25 and at the close of last year showed assets of $295,000.

Senate Unit Favors Case Lot Liquor Sales

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginians would be permitted to buy alcoholic beverages in case-lot quantities under a bill approved Tuesday by the Senate Temperance Committee.

State Liquor Commissioner Clarence Elmore said that if the bill is approved by the Legislature, West Virginia would be able to pick up an additional $1 million a year in state liquor store sales.

Under present law, West Virginians cannot purchase more than one gallon of whisky at a time.

Homage To A Man Of Good Will

Guns will boom and sirens will wail in India today in incongruous homage to Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, who made a vocation of non-violence. In Delhi a guard of honor will present arms while the President and the Prime Minister place a wreath, and then will sound the last post. Traffic on roads and airfields will come to a stop, machines will be halted, broadcasting stations will go off the air for two minutes, and people in schools, offices and elsewhere will stand in silence. All this to honor that simple man of peace, the Mahatma (or Great Soul) Gandhi.

His assassination 15 years ago today came less than two weeks after he had ended his last hunger strike in the belief that he had brought a reconciliation, or at least had ended the threat of war, between Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan. A Hindu extremist shot him down on the steps of a garden of Birla House, which a rich follower of Gandhiji, as he was respectfully addressed, had placed at his disposal.

The gentle Gandhi believed, "When a person claims to be non-violent, he is expected not to be angry with one who has injured him. He will not wish him harm; he will wish him well." Of his disciple Nehru, the Mahatma said in 1942, "Jawaharlal is my political heir. He may differ with me when I am living. But when I am gone he will begin speaking my language." Often this prediction has seemed true, but it was hardly in the language of his tolerant and charitable master that Nehru prolonged the ugly quarrel of Kashmir, sheltered the vengeful Krishna Menon, ordered the theft of Goa, Damao and Diu, and then bravely stood his ground against the marauding Red Chinese. The times are so out of joint that there arises the question whether today's India would have a place for the Great-Souled Gandhi.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

What Is Consumer Getting?

The other day Fay Henle, an ex-newspaper girl who as a radio impresario has become accomplished at luring unsuspecting souls (myself included) into her broadcasting web, threw a disconcerting question at me. Aren't modern corporations, she asked, singularly uninventive and unenterprising when it comes to dreaming up new products for the consumer?

Since I had to fumble for an answer — the only thing that came immediately to my mind was the compact car—I am afraid I did her radio program no good. But could there have been a satisfactory answer?

Thinking it over on the way home, I tried to make a list of companies in my mind that have prospered in recent years out of their capacity for sheer inventiveness. They seemed to shake down into two categories. One type of inventive company has been very busy creating new equipment for automating every type of industrial and business process. Thus we have had a proliferation of new and electronic calculating machines, and new "Thermofax" and other copying devices that enable business offices to reproduce documents without employing whole batteries of stenographers. In the printing business, there are intimations of mechanical marvels that will set type directly from a reporter's typewriter, eliminating all the x'ed-out false starts and even inserting hyphens at the end of lines. And, of course, devices for factory assembly-line automation are being improved every day.

The other type of inventive company is busy dreaming up marvelous new alloys and electronic control devices for use in what the government calls the "aerospace program." Zirconium, titanium, molybdenum, beryllium and other exotically named metals are combined with ordinary chrome, nickel and iron to make alloys that are capable of withstanding the incredible heat released by fragmented atoms in submarine atom-fired engines and the terrible cold of interstellar space. And transistors have been improved to the point where electronic control and communication will not break down as our new spacemen hurtle into and out of orbit.

But as our inventive engineers and businessmen proceed to make industrial and office processes more efficient, and as the government subsidizes a bewildering creativeness in the manufacture of rockets, space capsules and strange new solid fuels, what is being done for the average householder about giving him some new dreamstuff?

True enough, the householder in our affluent suburban communities gets a constant stream of improvements in such things as washing machines, do-it-yourself tools, power mowers and boats with plastic hulls. But he's had these things in some form or other for a long time now.

If I had been quick-witted on that radio question-and-answer program I might have suggested the vast creativeness that has gone into making new toys for children. The new Tinker Toy and the ingenious plastic Stax sets enable curious 5-to-9-year-old boys to put together the most fantastic things. Out of wheels, sticks and elastic bands they can make realistic merry-go-rounds, complete with mechanical horses, that can be turned with a crank. Or they can rear huge modernistic cities on the living room carpet.

Even in the case of the new toys, however, the ingenuity of the manufacturer has been pitched toward banishing certain existing forms of expense by means of bringing the "do-it-yourself" movement into the playroom. The kid who can make his own fleet of trucks and cars out of bits of wood, plastic or metal will not be in the market for toy replicas of the Buick or the Falcon. Why should a father buy his child a toy steam shovel when he can help the kid make one in fifteen minutes of enjoyable experiment at what used to be the cocktail hour?

Maybe Fay Henle had something when she asked me that question. If businessmen really have some new things for the consumer, let's hear about it.

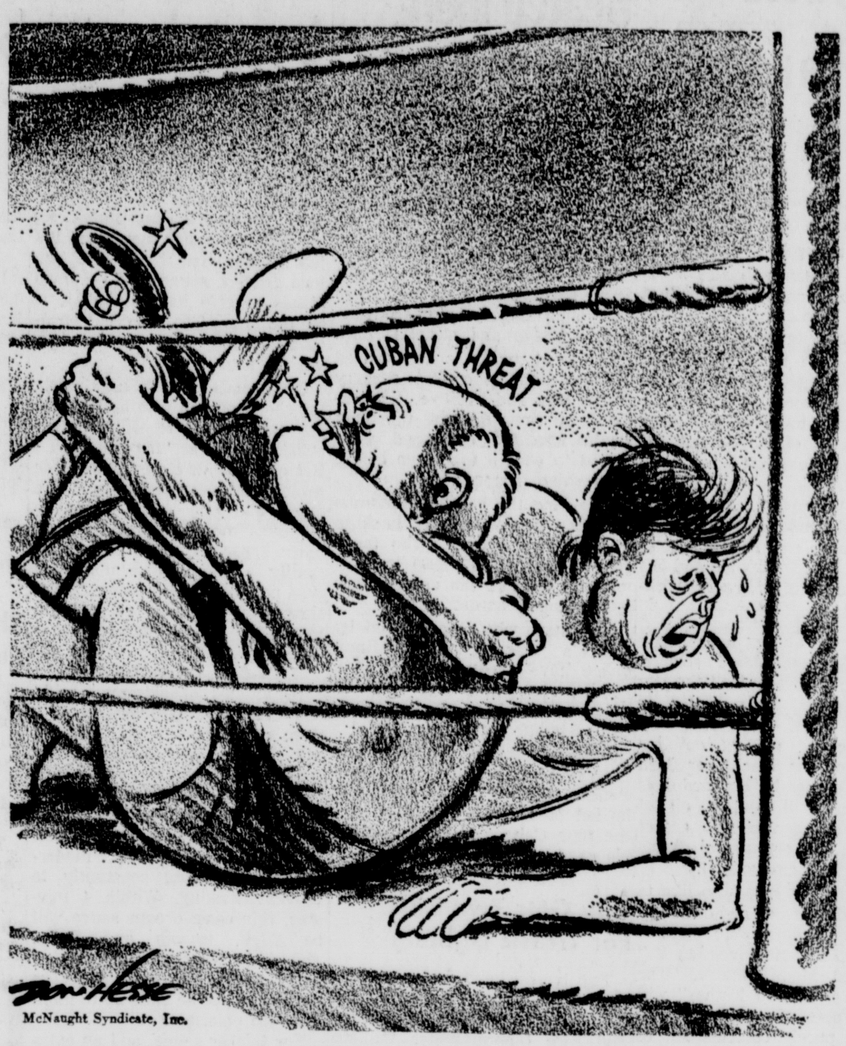
'Doesn't He Know I Won This Match'



Power Commission Chairman Admits He 'Chickened' Regarding Rule

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — When the chairman of an important regulatory commission confesses that he's "chickened" regarding regulation of one of the biggest utilities in the USA, at first you think he's kidding.

However, when you examine the private correspondence between Chairman Joe Swidler of the Federal Power Commission and Rep. John Moss, the Sacramento, Calif., Democrat, you can see that Swidler wasn't kidding.

When Vice Chairman Howard Morgan of the Power Commission finished writing his dissent in the bid of Pacific Gas and Electric and Pacific Light and Power to build a historic 230,000-volt inter-tie line from Oregon to California, he sent copies of his dissent to Senators and Congressmen from the Far West.

One went to Rep. John Moss. As a representative of Northern California, vitally affected by the vast transmission of power to and from Oregon, he read the dissent with interest. He noted allegations that Congress had proposed building its own transmission line to tap the government's own power at Bonneville Dam; noted that the two big power companies were trying to beat the government to its own power; also noted that Bonneville Administrator Charles Luce said he would sell no government power to the two private utilities without an OK from Congress.

Finally Moss noted that this would be the first time in history that a giant high-voltage line similar to those in Russia was to be built carrying power long distances in the United States.

Suppression Of Information

Noting these dissenting allegations, the Congressman sent over to the Power Commission to get both sides of the story. He received back the majority opinion, but not Vice Chairman Morgan's dissent.

Moss already had the dissent. However, he is chairman of a House committee on the suppression of government information so he wondered why the dissent was being suppressed. He phoned Bill Webb, in charge of press relations.

"I'm sorry," stalled Webb. "I can't give you the dissent. You'll have to talk to the secretary of the commission."

Moss then phoned Joe Gutride, the FPC secretary.

Gutride also stalled. It became clear that the vice chairman's dissent, which blasted the other three commissioners out of the water, was too hot to publish. But since differences of this kind, involving the taxpayers' money, are supposed to be a matter of public record, Rep. Moss called in Chairman Swidler. They had a long talk about the entire transmission line problem, and in the end, Moss asked Swidler to draft a bill giving the Power Commission the power to certify all high-voltage transmission lines in the United States.

Moss and Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., also vigilant on power matters, then introduced the bill which Swidler had written.

But here is the pay-off. After the bill was introduced, the full Federal Power Commission, with vice chairman Morgan dissenting, then disapproved the bill which its own chairman had written. The majority didn't want the government to certify the new high-voltage transmission lines which may revolutionize industry in the United States. This they ruled should be left to the private utilities.

And Chairman Swidler, believe it or not, joined in disapproving the bill which he himself had written. He chickened again.

Merry-Go-Round

Sen. Dan Inouye, the one-armed freshman from Hawaii, jokes about his low Senate seniority. It's so low, he says, that every old Senator is raiding his furniture. He started out with green furniture, green drapes, and green rugs. Now, thanks to seniority raids, he has red furniture with green drapes, and soon expects to have purple rugs . . . Alfred Santangelo, who got euchred out of Congress by Gov. Rockefeller's gerrymander in New York, may find himself in Finland—as ambassador. JFK thinks highly of Santangelo, wants to reward him with an ambassadorship or a post in the State Department . . . Khrushchev and Kennedy have been exchanging letters about a new site for nuclear testing and both seem to favor Afghanistan, a neutral country. Afghanistan's reaction is similar to that told by the late Vice President Alben Barkley of the man who was to be ridden out of town on a rail. "If it wasn't for the honor," he said, "I'd rather walk." . . . Dictator Franco of Spain has chosen a poor time to try to blackjack the USA into raising the price tag on U. S. bases in Spain. It's a time when we're pulling land-based missiles out of Italy and Turkey in favor of water-based submarines. If we pulled our entire military complex out of Spain, the economic impact would probably mean revolution—and the end of Franco.

Proposed 'Tax Cut' Savings Surprisingly Small

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—There are 42,000,000 taxpayers who earn between $5,000 and $10,000 a year. How are they going to feel when they learn that the Administration's proposed "tax cut" would mean an average saving of about $1.56 a week during the next three years for a married couple with two children? A couple without children would not really fare any better. This could turn out to be a political boomerang if the President's three-year program isn't materially changed.

For, based on a calculation made in an Associated Press dispatch, the total savings on taxes during the next three years for individuals in the $5,000 to $10,000 category are to be surprisingly small. Stanley Meisler, who wrote the AP article, took as a typical example a married couple, one of whom earned $5,000 a year and the other $2,500, so that their combined income amounted to $7,500 a year. He figured the exemptions for two children and estimated the usual deductions for normal expenses. He concluded that for each of the next three years, beginning with 1963, there would be a $46 reduction in taxes, followed by $28 more for each of two years, plus a $50 reduction for the third year, or a total of $244 saved in three years. This is an average saving of $81.33 for each year. It amounts to $1.56 a week or 78 cents each for the man and his wife.

But, unhappily, they can't keep that sum. Social Security taxes aren't deductible and, of course, were not included in the Associated Press tabulation. A new Social Security tax, moreover, has just gone into effect amounting to $24 a year, so it brings down the combined saving from $81.33 to $57.33 a year. This means in reality $1.10 a week for the couple, or only 55 cents a week for each of them, in tax savings.

This isn't all either, because the Associated Press article figured state and local taxes at $500—the level of 1962—and this item is scheduled to go by a total of about $195 for the three years beginning in 1963. While there is a tax deduction for a part of this increase, it is conceivable that for this couple the whole saving on the President's tax plan may come close to being wiped out altogether.

Unfortunately, with larger and larger deficits in the federal treasury, the purchasing power of the dollar tends to became less and less, while prices tend to rise. It wouldn't take much of an increase in the cost of living for the entire weekly savings in taxes for many taxpayers in several of the income tax brackets to disappear by the time 1965 rolls around.

The Associated Press gave its statistical information to its newspapers from coast to coast last Saturday without arguing the case one way or the other. Millions of taxpayers will themselves do some figuring and, for the next several months, members of Congress will doubtless be hearing from their many constituents in most of these tax brackets that the proposed cut is a piddling one. Indeed, some voters may come to the conclusion that maybe it would be better for the Administration to let the tax rates and tax rules alone and try to instill the necessary confidence for a business revival. The dictatorial behavior of the labor-union monopoly, for instance, is being ignored by the administration and Congress. It seems inevitable that acceptance of demands for higher wages will be compelled by strikers or threats of strikes in the next two or three years because the tax cut will appear to be inadequate.

If the Administration, however, had a constructive economic policy, it could boost the gross income of businesses to the point where wage increases would be feasible without any substantial price increases. For it is the volume of business and a higher gross income which are the most important elements that need stimulus in the economy.

Thus, a lot is heard about the expected tax cut for corporations. But it involves very small sums which would hardly stimulate increased expenditures for plant and equipment. A company, for example, that makes $1,000,000 a year now pays the government 52 per cent, or $520,000, in taxes and retains $480,000. Under the changes proposed by the Administration, this corporation, three years from now, would have a 47 per cent rate and would be paying the government $470,000. This would mean a savings of about $50,000 on present taxes.

Wouldn't any corporation prefer to see the present 52 per cent retained if somehow in lieu of it the Administration could pursue economic policies that would allow the corporation to make $2,000,000 in Gross profit a year, from which the government would get $1,040,000 and the company would retain $960,000? What company wouldn't rather have $960,00 a year under existing rates than only $470,000 under the new rates?

So it isn't the tax rate but the capacity to earn more income that counts. And if most of the 42,000,000 citizens are going to have only trifling sums more to spend each week, while prices become inflationary because of the big deficits, then a substantial number of voters are likely to lose their enthusiasm for the so-called "tax cut" being offered them. To make larger tax cuts, on the other hand, would only compound the problem.

Members of Congress will have to take a careful look at what they are doing on both taxes and deficits if they expect re-election in 1964, and, of course, all this will affect President Kennedy's chances for re-election, too.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

UNIQUE THEATER—A unique theater has just been completed in Washington. It is designed for performances before the deaf, and is situated at Gallaudet College, the national university for deaf people in Washington.

The problem, of course, was to create a seating arrangement that would permit the maximum audience to see the actors as they play out their parts in silent sign language. To do this, an architect conceived a wide-sweeping seating arrangement, with only 13 rows of seats. The seats themselves are staggered and rise sharply from front to rear. And, there are almost as many rows of seats in the balcony as there are in the orchestra.

The stage projects deeply into the audience part of the theater, also assisting in maximum vision.

However, the ultra-modern theater is also equipped with a sound system. As silent plays are performed before the 765-seat capacity house, a reader translates for those in the audience who have the ability to hear.

GOP LEADERSHIP — When "young" House Republicans upset their leadership and voted 49-year-old Rep. Jerry Ford to be one of the leadership team, it caused a lot of comment, and not a few wisecracks.

One member, thinking of the action's implied criticism of GOP leader Charlie Halleck, remarked, "There's a Ford in Halleck's future."

Another member, Rep. Tom Pelly of Washington, told Ford: "You run for leader, I'll run for whip, and we'll put on a Tom and Jerry show."

Actually, Halleck's opponents comprise "old" as well as "young" House Republicans. Some of the oldsters are still smarting from the power play Halleck engineered to capture the GOP leadership from Joe Martin of Massachusetts.

Precautions On Use Of Drugs During Pregnancy

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many drugs pass through the placenta and into the circulation of the unborn child. None produces the deformities that developed mhen thalidomide was used. But some precautions are advisable because we know so little abut causes of birth defects. Pregnant women should not take any medicine whatsoever unless it is prescribed by the physician.

Ordinary aspirin passes through the placental barrier. It never has been known to harm the fetus but large amounts may interfere with the clotting mechanism and lead to bleeding. Some of the anti-coagulant drugs also reach the baby. These products are given in vein infections; they do not deform the baby but too much could produce bleeding in the mother or fetus.

A number of tranquilizers cross the barrier but do not encourage the defects noted after thalidomide. The fetus may be affected by reserpine, which is utilized in treating high blood pressure associated with the toxemia of pregnancy. The child is born with a slight nasal discharge and, for a few days, is lethargic, nurses poorly, and has respiratory distress.

Some hormones, such as the progestins, testosterone, and stilbestrol, have a temporary masculinizing effect upon the female fetus. Cortisone induces changes in unborn mice but not in humans. Anti-thyroid drugs, including the iodides, may depress the development of the child's thyroid, especially when taken by the mother after the third month of pregnancy.

The physician knows that certain antibiotics and sulfonamides must be prescribed with caution during pregnancy. Almost all pain-killers pass the barrier. This has been the main objection to employing anesthetics such as morphine, curare, or the barbituates to bring oblivion during delivery. The baby is born too sleepy to cooperate, even to the extent of wanting to breathe.

Most physicians are in agreement that all drugs should be avoided during the first three months of pregnancy, unless they are needed to save the mother's life.

LOOKING INTO BRONCHI

G. W. writes: When is a bronchoscopy indicated?

REPLY

The bronchoscope enables the physician to look into the windpipe and larger bronchi. This is done to investigate the possibility of tumors or other disease processes, to obtain biopsy material if necessary, and to remove foreign bodies such as pins or peanuts.

HEREDITY AND LEUKEMIA

Mrs. J. H. writes: Is cancer of the blood inherited?

REPLY

The cause of leukemia is not known. At present, a virus is implicated but more research will be needed before this concept receives universal acceptance.

URINARY TRACT INFECTION

D. O. writes: Can infection in the bladder or kidneys be cured without operation?

REPLY

Yes, and this applies to the majority of victims. Best results are obtained when the cause of the infection is determined and treated accordingly.

TOMORROW: Ulcers on the leg.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

A story President Hoover loved to tell about his predecessor, Calvin Coolidge, concerned the day the Coolidges entertained a missionary at their Northampton, Mass., home before the visitor delivered a scheduled address at the Congregational Church. Grace Coolidge cooked a special dinner, but the missionary wouldn't eat a bite of it—explaining that a meal would spoil his delivery.

Mrs. C. was annoyed and stayed home, so Mr. Coolidge escorted the missionary alone to the church. When he came home, Mrs. Coolidge asked, "How did it go?" Cal's laconic reply was: "He might as well have et!"

Old Satch Paige, one of baseball's all-time greats, had a six-point formula for staying young:

1. Avoid fried meats which angry up the blood.
2. If your stomach disputes you, lie down and pacify it with cool thoughts.
3. Keep the juices flowing by jangling around gently as you move.
4. Go light on vice, such as carrying on with society folks. The social ramble ain't restful.
5. Avoid running at all times.
6. Don't look back. Something might gain on you.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

What is true greatness? Ask me. I know. A number of examples come to mind, but let us take one. There is a little house at 32 Shirley Street in Quincy, Massachusetts. It isn't much of a place, no better, no worse than other houses in the neighborhood. Behind the front door, to the left, is a living room. It has furniture and a desk. The desk is important, because it belongs to Mrs. Miriam Lynch.

I first heard of her about 30 years ago. She contributed story ideas to Mark Hellinger, a syndicated columnist. All of them had O. Henry endings. Mrs. Lynch could rap out three or four plot ideas before most wives could complete a phone call. Hellinger paid her small sums for these plots. When he died in 1947, Mrs. Lynch was left with a great admiration for Hellinger (she named one of her children Mark) and no place to go.

She and I corresponded infrequently. Once or twice, when I was in Boston, I stopped to see Miriam and her wonderful Joe, and the children. It was a house of happiness and bedlam. Mrs. Lynch had a little gray, and she was short and plump. She would push her hair back with both hands, straighten a cushion or two on the settee, and put out a cup of coffee and what was left of yesterday's ham before I could get my topcoat off.

"Joe!" she'd yell upstairs. "Joe! Jim is here" as though this was astounding news. Once, little Mark appeared at the head of the stairs crying. "Now what?" Miriam yelled, ripping part of a story out of the typewriter. "It's not fair," the kid wailed. "Madelaine is playing the Blessed Mother and she won't let me be little Jesus."

There was action in that house. There were always children in various stages of growing: the Lynches could laugh at each other and at the world, and all of them, including Joe, revolved around the sparkplug, momma. She never stopped writing, but often, nobody was buying. Joe earned a modest salary, and Miriam was not so proud a lady that she couldn't write with one hand, and change a diaper with the other.

Once or twice a year, she'd pile the whole brood into a coughing bomb, and drive to New York. They'd occupy three rooms in a cheap hotel, and the running back and forth always drove the management crazy. All of them walked up and down Broadway, admiring the lights, reading the marquees, and getting up the money for a show at Radio City Music Hall.

Miriam could argue with her kids, from youngest to oldest, on their level. She kept writing and, once in awhile, the whole family went wild when a small check came in. I kept telling her that someday she'd make it, big, but she thought I was merely being kind. This woman was born with greatness, but couldn't see it in herself.

Now she has made it. She isn't as well known as Ernest Hemingway, but she has written and published more books: 22 in five years. The newest letter says: ". . . and the amazing thing is that just in the past few months am I making a decent living and consider myself a professional writer."

Most of her books are mysteries. Lately, she has been writing books with medical backgrounds. "Blessings on thee," she writes, "Drs. Kildare and Casey . . .

"Things haven't changed much. We have steak twice a week instead of hamburger twice. We had the living room done over. The kids are growing up. We have two cars instead of one. You like irony? The kids despise steak—would rather have frankfurters or hamburger. Now that Joe and I have money enough to go out and live it up, we are too old for shenanigans and prefer to stay home and watch T.V.

"Madelaine wants to be a nurse. This was the girl who had yearnings for the religious life. They still come back despite the Anna May Wong eye makeup, the fantastic hair-dos and the dates with three different boys a week. She decided to spend her life (as of this morning) taking care of other people's children.

"We are up to our earlobes in romance. Our wonderful girl Regina will be married May 4th at a big wedding—this at least we can do. Jack is like one of our own.

"I'm always pleased when I see a mention of Mark Hellinger in the column. It's 15 years since he left. Just think — he never saw T.V., heard of Mr. K., knew about JFK, megaton bombs, stereo sets, saw a jet plane, heard of Marlon Brando or saw Marilyn Monroe on the screen.

"Well, I still have many chapters to write today. What awes you, I think, is that I can go to bed at night with my insomnia, and get up in the morning with a book completely plotted. It's all routine, my friend."

No it isn't. But if true greatness is measured by the amount of struggle behind success, Miriam Lynch is one of the great women of our time. . .

State Would Get $5.9 Million In Education Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under President Kennedy's proposed education program, the federal government would spend $400 million in the next fiscal year on aid to public elementary and secondary schools.

The bill, which Kennedy sent to congress Tuesday, proposes that the money be alloted to states on a formula taking into account both total population and per capita income.

This means that while big states generally would get more total money than little states, poor states would receive more money per person than rich states.

Under the bill, the states would have to spend from 10 to 20 per cent of their allotment on special projects. These might include studies of school dropouts or of remedial reading programs.

The rest of the allotment could be spent on school construction and teacher salaries.

The federal government would pay up to 50 per cent of the cost of each construction project. Each state would have to list its construction projects in order of their need and to tackle them in that order.

Funds for teachers could be used to raise salaries of the lowest paid teachers or to raise salaries of a community in financial trouble. During the first year, the federal funds could be used to pay up to 75 per cent of the increases.

The proposed allotments for the first year of the program, fiscal 1964 starting next July 1, include: Maryland $5.9 million and West Virginia $5.5 million.

Meeting Set Tonight On Europe Tour

A meeting for the purpose of discussing a European tour later this year will be held today at 8:30 p. m. in the grill room of the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, tour director, said the public is invited to attend the meeting.

Plans call for the tourists to leave New York City by jet on September 9 and the party is scheduled to return to New York by ship on October 18.

Father Lyness said when the tourists arrive at Shannon Airport, Ireland, they will be greeted by a tour guide who will remain with the party throughout the trip.

Portions of the trip abroad will be by air, train and bus and points of interest to be visited include Ireland, Paris, Heidelberg, Black Forest, Switzerland, Florence, Assissi, Rome, Lourdes and Madrid. A cruise on the Rhine River is also scheduled.

Arrangements for the tour are being made through the Conlon Travel Agency. In 1960 Father Lyness was in charge of a similar tour in which 29 persons participated.

Liquor Bill Is Favored

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee approved Tuesday a bill which would allow alcoholic beverages to be sold on election day as soon as the polls close.

The bill introduced by Sen. Paul A. Dorf, D-Balto 5th, was given a favorable report by a 6-4 vote.

Dorf said he had been asked by restaurant owners to change the present law, which prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages on election day until one hour after the polls close.

"Now that the polls close at 7 p.m.," Dorf said, "the restaurant owners feel it is a hardship to keep them from selling drinks during the dinner hour."

Dorf said the only reason he could find for the current one-hour ban was to allow time for the election officials to count hand-written ballots in the days before election machines.

"This is now outmoded," Dorf said.

"I imagine election night would be a good night for sales," committee Chairman Fred C. Malkus Jr., D-Dorchester, said. "You either celebrate a victory, or drown your sorrows."

Opening lead: Five of ♡

In today's hand taken from the recent National tournament held in Phoenix, most North-South pairs bid and made a six heart contract. One pair, however, went down to an unexpected defeat.

West opened the five of hearts, a choice which was destined to work a diabolical effect upon the declarer. Had West gotten off to a spade lead, the defense would have cashed their trick at once, and declarer, after ruffing one diamond in dummy, would shortly have been able to claim his slam.

South proceeded to win the first heart trick in his hand and then draw the remaining trumps. He crossed over to the king of clubs and cashed the ace. If clubs split in the expected three-two manner, he could establish the suit by ruffing the third round, reënter the North hand with the ace of diamonds, and discard his spade and diamond losers on the good clubs.

On the second club, however, East showed out, which complicated the situation considerably. Declarer ruffed himself in with a club and led the four of spades. West followed with the three and the queen was played from dummy, East permitting it to hold the trick. South was now in desperate straits for, while he could still establish North's club suit by ruffing another club with his last trump, he was obliged to leave the ace of diamonds in dummy as a sure reëntry. This means that the diamond suit is hopelessly blocked, for the declarer has no way to return to his hand to cash the king and queen.

South's only hope at this point was that West had the ace of spades, in which case another spade lead toward the dummy would establish the king and limit the defenders to a single trick. He ruffed another club to establish that suit, and led the ten of spades. When West followed with the five, the king was played from the dummy. East won the trick with the ace and, never having discarded a spade, he was able to run enough tricks to set South down by three.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Moody young Warren Beatty gets fiction's most moody young hero in "Youngblood Hawke" with the announcement from Jack Warner that Warren is his selection to play the Thomas Wolfe-type character on the screen.

To my mind, "Youngblood Hawke" is not the best of Herman Wouk's novels but he should worry. It's made a fortune on the best seller polls, the Book of the Month selection, magazine serialization and the whopping price Warner Bros. paid for the film rights. I also understand that Delmer Daves who will produce and direct has also written a very fine script.

This will mark Warren's third picture on his Warner contract — the first was "Splendor in the Grass" with girl friend Natalie Wood; the second "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone" with Vivien Leigh.

Never was a Paris beauty more "up in the air" getting a movie role than Macha (pronounced Marsha) Meril who flew 12,000 miles in three days to wind up as Dean Martin's leading lady in "Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed?" at Paramount.

What happened is that producer Jack Rose and director Danny Mann took a look at Macha in a Brigitte Bardot movie, decided to make a test of her and put in a trans-Atlantic call to Paris. The next day the 22-year-old knockout was on the plane for Hollywood. The test was made, and the third day Macha flew back to France to await their decision. Well, she got it — she's in as the girl who plays the bewildered French wife of Dean's in the comedy. It comes in handy that Macha speaks English almost as well as she speaks French.

There's a wonderful friendship between Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke. Patty says that Anne helped her so much when she first went into the play of "The Miracle Worker" when she was only 13. They won't forget "Miracle Worker" when Academy Award nominations are made — Patty for best supporting performance, and Anne for best female honors.

Anne couldn't be more honored if she does receive an Oscar. She has been named with Senator Ted Kennedy to serve as honorary chairman of the annual Annie Sullivan Memorial Fund drive at the Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown, New York. She played Annie Sullivan, Helen Keller's tutor and life-long companion, in both the movie and the stage versions of "Miracle Worker."

Look who's writing a cookbook — our good friend Joe Pasternak — and don't think he isn't the boy who can do it! Long known as one of the best cooks in Hollywood, Joe is bringing out his tome under the title "For Men Only." Published by Bernard Geis the volume will contain all of Pasternak's heretofore secret Hungarian and continental dishes plus American concoctions.

"It's aimed at men who like to dabble in the kitchen and there are lots of us," says Joe, "but I won't mind if some wives buy it." His newest MGM picture, "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" will come out about the same time as the book, purely coincidental, of course.

Dorothy Provine says there's not a word of truth to the old belief that diamonds are a girl's best friend. She's convinced paintings are, and she is now on her way toward a sizable collection, because they are constantly increasing in value.

She's going to add to her private gallery after she completes "Wall of Noise" at Warners by going to London to star in an hour long spectacular for British commercial television which she was to have made last year when she became ill and had to return home. While she's in Europe, she will go to the continent for more paintings.

Although famed British producer Alexander Korda died seven years ago, his 40-year-old son Peter Korda is refusing to sign the papers that would settle the several million dollar estate of his father. "I refuse to sign," says Peter, "because they haven't shown me the full accounts."

This, of course, prevents division of the inheritance between Peter, Sir Alexander's widow (now Mrs. David Metcalf) and the children of Vincent Korda, brother of the deceased. I understand the estate includes holdings in 19 film companies.

Peter can afford to wait. Within the next few weeks he receives about $120,000, an interim payment from his father's legacy.

Beaten Man Returns Home

Charles (Slim) Ruckman, 59, of 400 Maryland Avenue, who was beaten and robbed December 30 in Miami, Fla., returned to his home Sunday where he will be confined several days.

Ruckman was mailing a postcard in Miami, about two blocks from his brother's home, when two young thugs jumped from behind a hedge and attacked him.

The local man was hospitalized 11 days and underwent surgery on his face and left eye. Physicians at first thought the man would lose his eye, and were forced to wait a few days before performing surgery.

Ruckman, who is employed by Gulick's Garage, said Miami police have arrested four Cuban youths, ranging in age from 15 to 22, who have admitted four other similar muggings.

However, the youths have not confessed to the Ruckman case. Police informed Ruckman before he left Miami that they feel sure the four Cubans are involved in his case.

City Gets Two Bids For Traffic Lights

Two traffic lights bids were received by the Mayor and Council Monday and referred to Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan.

Work includes a light at North Centre and Valley streets; and modification of lights at Virginia Avenue and Second Street; South Centre and Harrison streets; and Baltimore and South Mechanic streets.

Horses and mules still have a good run for their money in New York State. There are an estimated 42 thousand of them and they are worth nearly $5.5 million.

Secrets Of Charm

Take A Gander At These Low-Cal Sauces

If the post-holiday calorie-counters at your house are losing interest in their diet, it may be time to brighten up the menu with low-calorie substitutes for the rich trimmings they miss. It's just as hard for the dieters who love gravies, sauces and creamed dishes to give them up as it is for the family cook to creat appetizing meals without the taste-variety sauces provide.

Compromise is the cook's job, for she's the one who must make the extra effort to whip up the substitute sauces "from scratch." But she shouldn't mind, since the three recipes suggested here are quick and easy—and it certainly saves more time and makes more sense to serve the entire family a compromise dish that even non-dieters will enjoy than to slave every day over two separate menus to suit individual tastes and needs.

LOW-CAL CREAM SAUCE

To 2 cups of skimmed milk, add the following ingredients: 2 tbsp. cake flour, 1 tps. flavored salt, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. monasodium glutamate and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Mix everything well with an electric or rotary beater.

Using a heavy aluminum pan for the mixture, cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly to prevent sticking. Within 4 minutes, this basic cream sauce will be thick, smooth and fluffy. There'll be two cups of it, offering about 80 calories per cup. (The traditional recipe adds up to more than 400 calories!)

For thicker sauce, add an extra tablespoon of flour (and 12 calories). For au gratin flavor, add grated sharp cheddar (at 14 calories more per tablespoon). Even more variety is possible with minced parsley, chopped pimiento, bits of green pepper, sliced mushrooms, a dash of Worchestershire.

LOW-CAL BARBECUE SAUCE

To 3 cups of canned tomato sauce, add ½ cup chopped green peppers, ½ cup minced onion, ½ tsp. chili powder, ⅛ tsp. ground cloves, ½ tsp. salt, 1 bay leaf and 1 clove of pressed garlic.

Just simmer for 10 minutes and this versatile sauce is ready for Creole dishes, omlets, vegetables, pork chops, meat loaf, pot roast or stew — at 100 calories per cup, just ⅓ the calorie count of the traditional recipe.

LOW-CAL HOLLANDAISE

Use a blender or beater on 1 cup of cottage cheese and 4 tbsp. lemon juice until you have a smooth cream to pour into the top of a double boiler. Add these seasonings: ½ tsp. flavored salt, ½ tsp. salt, a dash each of pepper and cayenne. Then slowly stir in two egg yolks. Continue stirring over hit (not boiling) water until the sauce is thick.

The 1¼ cups of sauce holds 350 calories (which certainly beats the traditional recipe's 1,200). And THIS recipe won't separate or curdle!

Sheets Resigns Potomac Park Post

The Citizens Committee for the Potomac Park Addition yesterday notified the Allegany County Board of Commissioners of a change in the officers of the group.

Kenneth Sheets has resigned as secretary of the committee.

The officers are William Chambers, chairman; Elmer C. Rexrode, secretary, Harold C. Turner, treasurer and Melvin Dean and Carl Winfield, committee members.

County Gets Finance Budget

The proposed budget of the county finance department was submitted to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday by Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, county auditor.

Mrs. Sills listed total budget items of $23,077 for the fiscal year starting next July 1 as compared to $29,739.83 in the current budget. The decrease results from the absence of a large item for capital outlay. A total of $7,714.20 is in the current budget for capital outlay while the new budget item is only $425.

Salaries for the four persons in the department total $18,500, up $150 from the current budget. One worker will receive that amount as an increment in the salary classification under which she is working.

Total expenses will be $4,152 in the new budget as compared to $4,278 in the current budget.

Parking Receipts

Parking meter receipts the week of January 20 amounted to $665.80 compared to $678.25 the week of January 13, a decrease of $12.45, Inspector Harry Whisner reported to the Mayor and Council.

Homage To A Man Of Good Will

Guns will boom and sirens will wail in India today in incongruous homage to Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, who made a vocation of non-violence. In Delhi a guard of honor will present arms while the President and the Prime Minister place a wreath, and then will sound the last post. Traffic on roads and airfields will come to a stop, machines will be halted, broadcasting stations will go off the air for two minutes, and people in schools, offices and elsewhere will stand in silence. All this to honor that simple man of peace, the Mahatma (or Great Soul) Gandhi.

His assassination 15 years ago today came less than two weeks after he had ended his last hunger strike in the belief that he had brought a reconciliation, or at least had ended the threat of war, between Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan. A Hindu extremist shot him down on the steps of a garden of Birla House, which a rich follower of Gandhiji, as he was respectfully addressed, had placed at his disposal.

The gentle Gandhi believed, "When a person claims to be non-violent, he is expected not to be angry with one who has injured him. He will not wish him harm; he will wish him well." Of his disciple Nehru, the Mahatma said in 1942, "Jawaharlal is my political heir. He may differ with me when I am living. But when I am gone he will begin speaking my language." Often this prediction has seemed true, but it was hardly in the language of his tolerant and charitable master that Nehru prolonged the ugly quarrel of Kashmir, sheltered the vengeful Krishna Menon, ordered the theft of Goa, Damao and Diu, and then bravely stood his ground against the marauding Red Chinese. The times are so out of joint that there arises the question whether today's India would have a place for the Great-Souled Gandhi.

These Days

What Is Consumer Getting?

The other day Fay Henle, an ex-newspaper girl who as a radio impresario has become accomplished at luring unsuspecting souls (myself included) into her broadcasting web, threw a disconcerting question at me. Aren't modern corporations, she asked, singularly uninventive and unenterprising when it comes to dreaming up new products for the consumer?

Since I had to fumble for an answer — the only thing that came immediately to my mind was the compact car—I am afraid I did her radio program no good. But could there have been a satisfactory answer?

Thinking it over on the way home, I tried to make a list of companies in my mind that have prospered in recent years out of their capacity for sheer inventiveness. They seemed to shake down into two categories. One type of inventive company has been very busy creating new equipment for automating every type of industrial and business process. Thus we have had a proliferation of new and electronic calculating machines, and new "Thermofax" and other copying devices that enable business offices to reproduce documents without employing whole batteries of stenographers. In the printing business, there are intimations of mechanical marvels that will set type directly from a reporter's typewriter, eliminating all the x'ed-out false starts and even inserting hyphens at the end of lines. And, of course, devices for factory assembly-line automation are being improved every day.

The other type of inventive company is busy dreaming up marvelous new alloys and electronic control devices for use in what the government calls the "aerospace program." Zirconium, titanium, molybdenum, beryllium and other exotically named metals are combined with ordinary chrome, nickel and iron to make alloys that are capable of withstanding the incredible heat released by fragmented atoms in submarine atom-fired engines and the terrible cold of interstellar space. And transistors have been improved to the point where electronic control and communication will not break down as our new spacemen hurtle into and out of orbit.

But as our inventive engineers and businessmen proceed to make industrial and office processes more efficient, and as the government subsidizes a bewildering creativeness in the manufacture of rockets, space capsules and strange new solid fuels, what is being done for the average householder about giving him some new dreamstuff?

True enough, the householder in our affluent suburban communities gets a constant stream of improvements in such things as washing machines, do-it-yourself tools, power mowers and boats with plastic hulls. But he's had these things in some form or other for a long time now.

If I had been quick-witted on that radio question-and-answer program I might have suggested the vast creativeness that has gone into making new toys for children. The new Tinker Toy and the ingenious plastic Stax sets enable curious 5-to-9-year-old boys to put together the most fantastic things. Out of wheels, sticks and elastic bands they can make realistic merry-go-rounds, complete with mechanical horses, that can be turned with a crank. Or they can rear huge modernistic cities on the living room carpet.

Even in the case of the new toys, however, the ingenuity of the manufacturer has been pitched toward banishing certain existing forms of expense by means of bringing the "do-it-yourself" movement into the playroom. The kid who can make his own fleet of trucks and cars out of bits of wood, plastic or metal will not be in the market for toy replicas of the Buick or the Falcon. Why should a father buy his child a toy steam shovel when he can help the kid make one in fifteen minutes of enjoyable experiment at what used to be the cocktail hour?

Maybe Fay Henle had something when she asked me that question. If businessmen really have some new things for the consumer, let's hear about it.

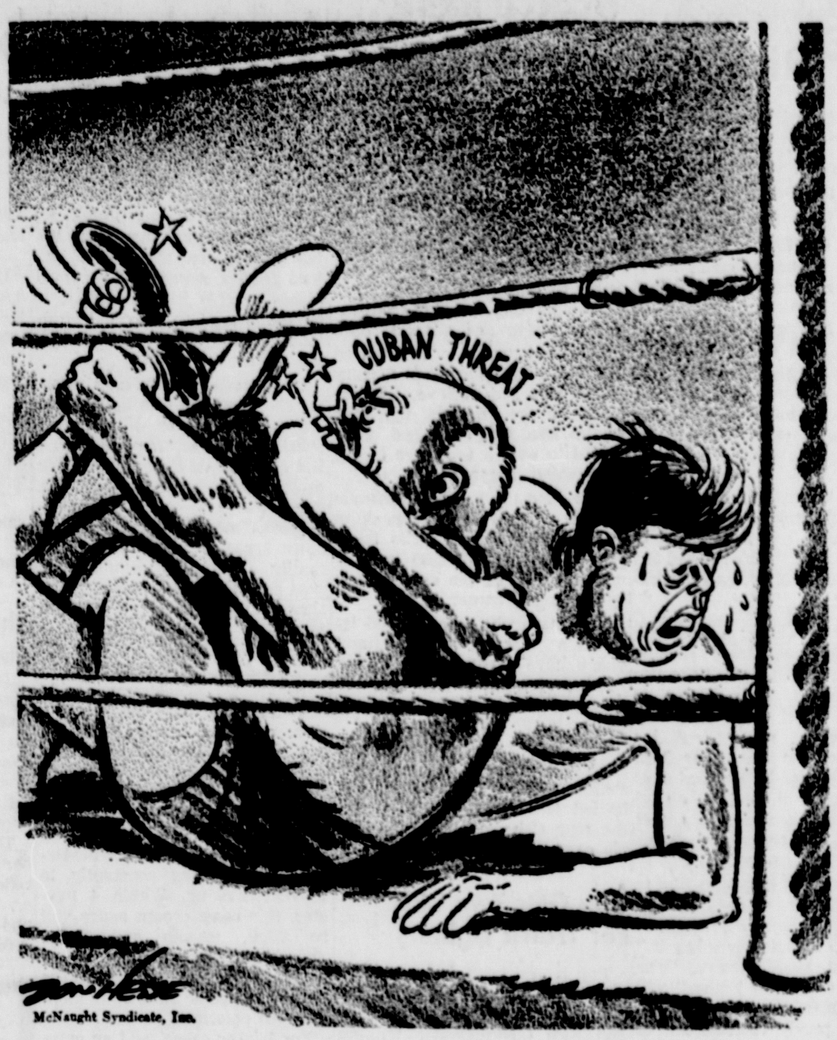
'Doesn't He Know I Won This Match'



Power Commission Chairman Admits He 'Chickened' Regarding Rule

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — When the chairman of an important regulatory commission confesses that he's "chickened" regarding regulation of one of the biggest utilities in the USA, at first you think he's kidding.

However, when you examine the private correspondence between Chairman Joe Swidler of the Federal Power Commission and Rep. John Moss, the Sacramento, Calif., Democrat, you can see that Swidler wasn't kidding.

When Vice Chairman Howard Morgan of the Power Commission finished writing his dissent in the bid of Pacific Gas and Electric and Pacific Light and Power to build a historic 230,000-volt inter-tie line from Oregon to California, he sent copies of his dissent to Senators and Congressmen from the Far West.

One went to Rep. John Moss. As a representative of Northern California, vitally affected by the vast transmission of power to and from Oregon, he read the dissent with interest. He noted allegations that Congress had proposed building its own transmission line to tap the government's own power at Bonneville Dam; noted that the two big power companies were trying to beat the government to its own power; also noted that Bonneville Administrator Charles Luce said he would sell no government power to the two private utilities without an OK from Congress.

Finally Moss noted that this would be the first time in history that a giant high-voltage line similar to those in Russia was to be built carrying power long distances in the United States.

Suppression Of Information

Noting these dissenting allegations, the Congressman sent over to the Power Commission to get both sides of the story. He received back the majority opinion, but not Vice Chairman Morgan's dissent.

Moss already had the dissent. However, he is chairman of a House committee on the suppression of government information so he wondered why the dissent was being suppressed. He phoned Bill Webb, in charge of press relations.

"I'm sorry," stalled Webb. "I can't give you the dissent. You'll have to talk to the secretary of the commission."

Moss then phoned Joe Gutride, the FPC secretary.

Gutride also stalled. It became clear that the vice chairman's dissent, which blasted the other three commissioners out of the water, was too hot to publish. But since differences of this kind, involving the taxpayers' money, are supposed to be a matter of public record, Rep. Moss called in Chairman Swidler. They had a long talk about the entire transmission line problem, and in the end, Moss asked Swidler to draft a bill giving the Power Commission the power to certify all high-voltage transmission lines in the United States.

Moss and Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., also vigilant on power matters, then introduced the bill which Swidler had written.

But here is the pay-off. After the bill was introduced, the full Federal Power Commission, with vice chairman Morgan dissenting, then disapproved the bill which its own chairman had written. The majority didn't want the government to certify the new high-voltage transmission lines which may revolutionize industry in the United States. This they ruled should be left to the private utilities.

And Chairman Swidler, believe it or not, joined in disapproving the bill which he himself had written. He chickened again.

Merry-Go-Round

Sen. Dan Inouye, the one-armed freshman from Hawaii, jokes about his low Senate seniority. It's so low, he says, that every old Senator is raiding his furniture. He started out with green furniture, green drapes, and green rugs. Now, thanks to seniority raids, he has red furniture with green drapes, and soon expects to have purple rugs . . . Alfred Santangelo, who got euchred out of Congress by Gov. Rockefeller's gerrymander in New York, may find himself in Finland—as ambassador. JFK thinks highly of Santangelo, wants to reward him with an ambassadorship or a post in the State Department . . . Khrushchev and Kennedy have been exchanging letters about a new site for nuclear testing and both seem to favor Afghanistan, a neutral country. Afghanistan's reaction is similar to that told by the late Vice President Alben Barkley of the man who was to be ridden out of town on a rail. "If it wasn't for the honor," he said, "I'd rather walk." . . . Dictator Franco of Spain has chosen a poor time to try to blackjack the USA into raising the price tag on U. S. bases in Spain. It's a time when we're pulling land-based missiles out of Italy and Turkey in favor of water-based submarines. If we pulled our entire military complex out of Spain, the economic impact would probably mean revolution—and the end of Franco.

Proposed 'Tax Cut' Savings Surprisingly Small

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—There are 42,000,000 taxpayers who earn between $5,000 and $10,000 a year. How are they going to feel when they learn that the Administration's proposed "tax cut" would mean an average saving of about $1.56 a week during the next three years for a married couple with two children? A couple without children would not really fare any better. This could turn out to be a political boomerang if the President's three-year program isn't materially changed.

For, based on a calculation made in an Associated Press dispatch, the total savings on taxes during the next three years for individuals in the $5,000 to $10,000 category are to be surprisingly small. Stanley Meisler, who wrote the AP article, took as a typical example a married couple, one of whom earned $5,000 a year and the other $2,500, so that their combined income amounted to $7,500 a year. He figured the exemptions for two children and estimated the usual deductions for normal expenses. He concluded that for each of the next three years, beginning with 1963, there would be a $46 reduction in taxes, followed by $28 more for each of two years, plus a $50 reduction for the third year, or a total of $244 saved in three years. This is an average saving of $81.33 for each year. It amounts to $1.56 a week or 78 cents each for the man and his wife.

But, unhappily, they can't keep that sum. Social Security taxes aren't deductible and, of course, were not included in the Associated Press tabulation. A new Social Security tax, moreover, has just gone into effect amounting to $24 a year, so it brings down the combined saving from $81.33 to $57.33 a year. This means in reality $1.10 a week for the couple, or only 55 cents a week for each of them, in tax savings.

This isn't all either, because the Associated Press article figured state and local taxes at $500—the level of 1962—and this item is scheduled to go by a total of about $195 for the three years beginning in 1963. While there is a tax deduction for a part of this increase, it is conceivable that for this couple the whole saving on the President's tax plan may come close to being wiped out altogether.

Unfortunately, with larger and larger deficits in the federal treasury, the purchasing power of the dollar tends to became less and less, while prices tend to rise. It wouldn't take much of an increase in the cost of living for the entire weekly savings in taxes for many taxpayers in several of the income tax brackets to disappear by the time 1965 rolls around.

The Associated Press gave its statistical information to its newspapers from coast to coast last Saturday without arguing the case one way or the other. Millions of taxpayers will themselves do some figuring and, for the next several months, members of Congress will doubtless be hearing from their many constituents in most of these tax brackets that the proposed cut is a piddling one. Indeed, some voters may come to the conclusion that maybe it would be better for the Administration to let the tax rates and tax rules alone and try to instill the necessary confidence for a business revival. The dictatorial behavior of the labor-union monopoly, for instance, is being ignored by the administration and Congress. It seems inevitable that acceptance of demands for higher wages will be compelled by strikers or threats of strikes in the next two or three years because the tax cut will appear to be inadequate.

If the Administration, however, had a constructive economic policy, it could boost the gross income of businesses to the point where wage increases would be feasible without any substantial price increases. For it is the volume of business and a higher gross income which are the most important elements that need stimulus in the economy.

Thus, a lot is heard about the expected tax cut for corporations. But it involves very small sums which would hardly stimulate increased expenditures for plant and equipment. A company, for example, that makes $1,000,000 a year now pays the government 52 per cent, or $520,000, in taxes and retains $480,000. Under the changes proposed by the Administration, this corporation, three years from now, would have a 47 per cent rate and would be paying the government $470,000. This would mean a savings of about $50,000 on present taxes.

Wouldn't any corporation prefer to see the present 52 per cent retained if somehow in lieu of it the Administration could pursue economic policies that would allow the corporation to make $2,000,000 in Gross profit a year, from which the government would get $1,040,000 and the company would retain $960,000? What company wouldn't rather have $960,00 a year under existing rates than only $470,000 under the new rates?

So it isn't the tax rate but the capacity to earn more income that counts. And if most of the 42,000,000 citizens are going to have only trifling sums more to spend each week, while prices become inflationary because of the big deficits, then a substantial number of voters are likely to lose their enthusiasm for the so-called "tax cut" being offered them. To make larger tax cuts, on the other hand, would only compound the problem.

Members of Congress will have to take a careful look at what they are doing on both taxes and deficits if they expect re-election in 1964, and, of course, all this will affect President Kennedy's chances for re-election, too.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

UNIQUE THEATER—A unique theater has just been completed in Washington. It is designed for performances before the deaf, and is situated at Gallaudet College, the national university for deaf people in Washington.

The problem, of course, was to create a seating arrangement that would permit the maximum audience to see the actors as they play out their parts in silent sign language. To do this, an architect conceived a wide-sweeping seating arrangement, with only 13 rows of seats. The seats themselves are staggered and rise sharply from front to rear. And, there are almost as many rows of seats in the balcony as there are in the orchestra.

The stage projects deeply into the audience part of the theater, also assisting in maximum vision.

However, the ultra-modern theater is also equipped with a sound system. As silent plays are performed before the 765-seat capacity house, a reader translates for those in the audience who have the ability to hear.

GOP LEADERSHIP — When "young" House Republicans upset their leadership and voted 49-year-old Rep. Jerry Ford to be one of the leadership team, it caused a lot of comment, and not a few wisecracks.

One member, thinking of the action's implied criticism of GOP leader Charlie Halleck, remarked, "There's a Ford in Halleck's future."

Another member, Rep. Tom Pelly of Washington, told Ford: "You run for leader, I'll run for whip, and we'll put on a Tom and Jerry show."

Actually, Halleck's opponents comprise "old" as well as "young" House Republicans. Some of the oldsters are still smarting from the power play Halleck engineered to capture the GOP leadership from Joe Martin of Massachusetts.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

What is true greatness? Ask me. I know. A number of examples come to mind, but let us take one. There is a little house at 32 Shirley Street in Quincy, Massachusetts. It isn't much of a place, no better, no worse than other houses in the neighborhood. Behind the front door, to the left, is a living room. It has furniture and a desk. The desk is important, because it belongs to Mrs. Miriam Lynch.

I first heard of her about 30 years ago. She contributed story ideas to Mark Hellinger, a syndicated columnist. All of them had O. Henry endings. Mrs. Lynch could rap out three or four plot ideas before most wives could complete a phone call. Hellinger paid her small sums for these plots. When he died in 1947, Mrs. Lynch was left with a great admiration for Hellinger (she named one of her children Mark) and no place to go.

She and I corresponded infrequently. Once or twice, when I was in Boston, I stopped to see Miriam and her wonderful Joe, and the children. It was a house of happiness and bedlam. Mrs. Lynch had a little gray, and she was short and plump. She would push her hair back with both hands, straighten a cushion or two on the settee, and put out a cup of coffee and what was left of yesterday's ham before I could get my topcoat off.

"Joe!" she'd yell upstairs. "Joe! Jim is here" as though this was astounding news. Once, little Mark appeared at the head of the stairs crying. "Now what?" Miriam yelled, ripping part of a story out of the typewriter. "It's not fair," the kid wailed. "Madelaine is playing the Blessed Mother and she won't let me be little Jesus."

There was action in that house. There were always children in various stages of growing; the Lynches could laugh at each other and at the world, and all of them, including Joe, revolved around the sparkplug, momma. She never stopped writing, but often, nobody was buying. Joe earned a modest salary, and Miriam was not so proud a lady that she couldn't write with one hand, and change a diaper with the other.

Once or twice a year, she'd pile the whole brood into a coughing bomb, and drive to New York. They'd occupy three rooms in a cheap hotel, and the running back and forth always drove the management crazy. All of them walked up and down Broadway, admiring the lights, reading the marquees, and getting up the money for a show at Radio City Music Hall.

Miriam could argue with her kids, from youngest to oldest, on their level. She kept writing and, once in awhile, the whole family went wild when a small check came in. I kept telling her that someday she'd make it, big, but she thought I was merely being kind. This woman was born with greatness, but couldn't see it in herself.

Now she has made it. She isn't as well known as Ernest Hemingway, but she has written and published more books: 22 in five years. The newest letter says: ". . . and the amazing thing is that just in the past few months am I making a decent living and consider myself a professional writer."

Most of her books are mysteries. Lately, she has been writing books with medical backgrounds. "Blessings on thee," she writes, "Drs. Kildare and Casey . . .

"Things haven't changed much. We have steak twice a week instead of hamburger twice. We had the living room done over. The kids are growing up. We have two cars instead of one. You like irony? The kids despise steak —would rather have frankfurters or hamburger. Now that Joe and I have money enough to go out and live it up, we are too old for shenanigans and prefer to stay home and watch T.V.

"Madelaine wants to be a nurse. This was the girl who had yearnings for the religious life. They still come back despite the Anna May Wong eye makeup, the fantastic hair-dos and the dates with three different boys a week. She decided to spend her life (as of this morning) taking care of other people's children.

"We are up to our earlobes in romance. Our wonderful girl Regina will be married May 4th at a big wedding—this at least we can do. Jack is like one of our own.

"I'm always pleased when I see a mention of Mark Hellinger in the column. It's 15 years since he left. Just think — he never saw T.V., heard of Mr. K., knew about JFK, megaton bombs, stereo sets, saw a jet plane, heard of Marlon Brando or saw Marilyn Monroe on the screen.

"Well, I still have many chapters to write today. What awes you, I think, is that I can go to bed at night with my insomnia, and get up in the morning with a book completely plotted. It's all routine, my friend."

No it isn't. But if true greatness is measured by the amount of struggle behind success, Miriam Lynch is one of the great women of our time. . .

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many drugs pass through the placenta and into the circulation of the unborn child. None produces the deformities that developed mhen thalidomide was used. But some precautions are advisable because we know so little abut causes of birth defects. Pregnant women should not take any medicine whatsoever unless it is prescribed by the physician.

Ordinary aspirin passes through the placental barrier. It never has been known to harm the fetus but large amounts may interfere with the clotting mechanism and lead to bleeding. Some of the anti-coagulant drugs also reach the baby. These products are given in vein infections; they do not deform the baby but too much could produce bleeding in the mother or fetus.

A number of tranquilizers cross the barrier but do not encourage the defects noted after thalidomide. The fetus may be affected by reserpine, which is utilized in treating high blood pressure associated with the toxemia of pregnancy. The child is born with a slight nasal discharge and, for a few days, is lethargic, nurses poorly, and has respiratory distress.

Some hormones, such as the progestins, testosterone, and stilbestrol, have a temporary masculinizing effect upon the female fetus. Cortisone induces changes in unborn mice but not in humans. Anti-thyroid drugs, including the iodides, may depress the development of the child's thyroid, especially when taken by the mother after the third month of pregnancy.

The physician knows that certain antibiotics and sulfonamides must be prescribed with caution during pregnancy. Almost all pain-killers pass the barrier. This has been the main objection to employing anesthetics such as morphine, curare, or the barbituates to bring oblivion during delivery. The baby is born too sleepy to cooperate, even to the extent of wanting to breathe.

Most physicians are in agreement that all drugs should be avoided during the first three months of pregnancy, unless they are needed to save the mother's life.

LOOKING INTO BRONCHI

G. W. writes: When is a bronchoscopy indicated?

REPLY

The bronchoscope enables the physician to look into the windpipe and larger bronchi. This is done to investigate the possibility of tumors or other disease processes, to obtain biopsy material if necessary, and to remove foreign bodies such as pins or peanuts.

HEREDITY AND LEUKEMIA

Mrs. J. H. writes: Is cancer of the blood inherited?

REPLY

The cause of leukemia is not known. At present, a virus is implicated but more research will be needed before this concept receives universal acceptance.

URINARY TRACT INFECTION

D. O. writes: Can infection in the bladder or kidneys be cured without operation?

REPLY

Yes, and this applies to the majority of victims. Best results are obtained when the cause of the infection is determined and treated accordingly.

TOMORROW: Ulcers on the leg.

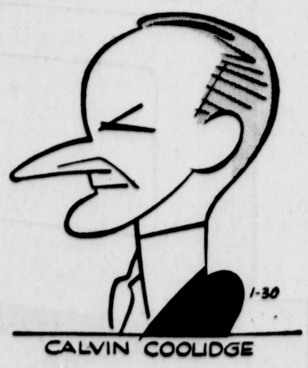
To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A story President Hoover loved to tell about his predecessor, Calvin Coolidge, concerned the day the Coolidges entertained a missionary at their Northampton, Mass., home before the visitor delivered a scheduled address at the Congregational Church. Grace Coolidge cooked a special dinner, but the missionary wouldn't eat a bite of it—explaining that a meal would spoil his delivery.

Mrs. C. was annoyed and stayed home, so Mr. Coolidge escorted the missionary alone to the church. When he came home, Mrs. Coolidge asked, "How did it go?" Cal's laconic reply was: "He might as well have et!"



Old Satch Paige, one of baseball's all-time greats, had a six-point formula for staying young:

1. Avoid fried meats which angry up the blood.
2. If your stomach disputes you, lie down and pacify it with cool thoughts.
3. Keep the juices flowing by jangling around gently as you move.
4. Go light on vice, such as carrying on with society folks. The social ramble ain't restful.
5. Avoid running at all times.
6. Don't look back. Something might gain on you.

Keyser And Piedmont, Unbeaten PVC Teams, To Clash Tonight

Miers Brothers Face Each Other In 7th Of Series

Allegany To Visit Martinsburg; Fort Ashby At Paw Paw

Piedmont vs. Keyser or Miers vs. Miers.

That's the big game tonight when two of the three undefeated teams of the Potomac Valley Conference clash in an important battle at Keyser High School.

The Miers Brothers, William "Huck", of Piedmont, and Estle "Eck" of Keyser, will be matching wits for the fourth straight year and the Keyser coach goes into the 7th game of the series with a 4-2 shade over his brother who has been tutoring Piedmont quints for 20 years. "Eck" came from Front Royal, Va., to take over the reins at Keyser in 1960 as successor to John Shelton and this is his fourth season at the helm at the Golden Tornado.

Piedmont is 9-0 in the P.V.C. while Keyser is 8-0 and right on their heels is Paw Paw with 7-0 and Franklin with 7-1.

Both Own 12-1 Records

Keyser's overall mark is 12-1, its only defeat coming at the hands of Fort Hill here last Saturday night, 63-56, after the Golden Tornado had copped its first 12 games. Piedmont also owns a 12-1 log after suffered its lone setback when Valley won at Lonaconing, 51-49, after the Lions had won the first game, 69-45.

Both teams have beaten Allegany, Keyser turning the trick at home, 74-67, while Piedmont whipped the Campers on their home floor, 50-49. Fort Hill, Keyser's conqueror, dropped a 58-53 decision to Allegany, and the Campers whipped Valley at Lonaconing, 69-60. So take your pick.

The first meeting of the Miers Brothers was in 1960 and Piedmont swept the series, 54-45, and 58-46. Keyser has copped the last four contests, scoring 58-56 and 61-55 wins in 1961 and repeating last year to the tune of 51-49 and 56-48.

Piedmont will be playing its 472nd game under "Huck" Miers tonight. His teams have won 308 and lost 163 for a winning average of .654. Over four seasons "Eck" Miers' KHS quints have won 54 and lost 25 for a .684 mark.

NFL Attendance Tops 4 Million

Probe On Betting Is Not Discussed

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League repeated Tuesday there would be no further dicussion of the pro football betting investigation at the league meeting due to run through Thursday.

"I made an informal report Monday to a group including one man from each of the 14 league teams," he said. "It was a general report on the entire situation.

"Once again I will say that we are cooperating with the McClellan committee (the Senate investigating subcommittee headed by Sen. McClellan, D-Ark.). We will not discuss any specific phases of the investigation in which we are involved."

Rozelle has said repeatedly his goal was to wrap up all the investigation with one announcement. He refused to set any date for that statement. The investigation, first revealed in early January, centered around reports that some players bet on games and associated with gamblers.

The league released its official 1962 attendance figures showing that a record total of 4,003,421 persons saw NFL games during the regular season. It was the first time in the league's 43-year history that the attendance topped 4 million. It just missed in 1961 with 3,861,159.

Clippers Leave Cellar

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Clippers emerged from the American Hockey League's Eastern Division cellar with a 5-3 victory over the Springfield Indians Tuesday night before 4,226 Civic Center fans.

McCafferty Given New Duties With Baltimore Colts

McCafferty coached the offensive ends and scouted opponents as a member of the Colt staff since 1959. The Colts will drop the practice of scouting the opposition and instead will rely entirely on films.

McCafferty will be helped during training camp by Jim Mutscheller, who will help coach the offensive ends. Mutscheller played for the Colts for eight seasons before retiring at the end of the 1961 season.

Other coaches for Shula will be John Sandusky, offensive line; Charles Winner, over-all defense; Gino Marchetti, defensive line, and Bill Pellington, defensive secondary. Pellington and Marchetti will be playing coaches.

Yankees Sign Tex Clevenger

NEW YORK (UPI) — Right-handed pitcher Tex Clevenger and four rookies signed their 1963 contracts with the New York Yankees Tuesday, making a total of seven who have agreed to terms for the coming season.

Clevenger started the 1962 season with Richmond and then compiled a 2-0 record along with a 2.84 earned run average after being brought up by the Yankees early in the season.

The others to sign were outfielder Ron Solomini, catchers Bill Madden and Alan Hall and first baseman-catcher Curt Blefary.

Quesada Resigns As President Of Washington Baseball Club

Johnston Named New Executive Head Of Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elwood R. (Pete) Quesada resigned Tuesday as president of the Washington baseball team and sold his stock as part of a top-level reorganization.

James M. Johnston, investment banker, took over the top executive job in the reshuffling. Johnston, with the title of chairman of the board, will maintain an office at D.C. Stadium and take an active part in management of affairs of the American League baseball team.

Johnston heads a three-man group which took over control of the baseball team. Other members are his business partner, James H. Lemon, and aviation executive George M. Bunker.

He said he planned no changes in the front office of the Senators, with General Manager George Selkirk, Business Manager Joseph R. Burke and Field Manager Mickey Vernon to be given wider authority.

"The recent addition of Bucky Harris to their staff," Johnston said, "and the wisdom and experience he can bring to the player-development program, we believe, will be a helpful factor in the improvement of the team."

Reject Ohio Offer

It was understood that the status of Selkirk, Burke, Vernon and Harris figured in the decision to reject a $5 million offer from Nate Dolin of Cleveland and former league executive Bill Veeck.

Dolin and Veeck were understood to have planned to bring in their own men to operate the ball club.

In two years since the new Senators were organized under Quesada as a part of American League expansion to 10 teams, they finished in 10th place both seasons.

Quesada fired General Manager Ed Doherty last fall, but retained Vernon and Burke. Selkirk was hired to replace Doherty and Harris was added only last week for special assignments and for scouting of players.

Stock Is Purchased

Under the deal bringing the new control of the club, Quesada, Mrs. Robert H. Levi, George A. Garrett, George Y. Wheeler II and Mrs. Katherine Graham sold out their stock to Johnston, Lemon and Bunker.

Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer and Floyd D. Akers held on to their stock.

At a board of directors meeting after the deal was concluded a new board was elected consisting of Johnston, Lemon, Bunker, Akers and John W. Sweeterman.

The new board of directors elected Johnston chairman, Lemon and Akers as vice presidents and Webb C. Hayes III as secretary-treasurer.

Divorce Suit Filed Against Lenny Moore

BALTIMORE (AP) — The wife of all-pro halfback Lenny Moore of the Baltimore Colts has filed for a divorce in Baltimore Circuit Court.

An order obtained late Monday by Mrs. Frances E. Moore prohibits her husband from "annoying, molesting, interfering with, contacting, assaulting, striking or threatening" his wife during the time court action is pending.

Mrs. Moore complained that the National Football League star "has repeatedly struck and beat her, and has attempted to smother her with a pillow." She said there was no hope for reconciliation.

The suit, in asking alimony, said Moore earns about $25,000 a year as a football player, and from February to June is employed part time by a brewery company.

The Moores were married Christmas Day, 1956, and have three children aged 5, 3 and 11 months. The suit asks custody of the children and funds for their support.

Mrs Moore, who was Frances Martin before her marriage to the Colt star, is a former resident of Cumberland.

Chase For Golf Gold Moves To Desert Today

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — The chase for golfing gold moves to the desert Wednesday when the Palm Springs Golf Classic, offering $115,000 in cash, opens a five-day, 90-hole marathon.

—There is a prize of $50,000 for any pro who can knock in a hole-in-one at a designated hole on each course.

—There is $50,000 being offered in prizes for the professionals over the five days of play. First prize is $9,000.

—The professionals play alone on the final day, Sunday, before a national (NBC) television audience.

Just about every big name in golf worked out Tuesday in preparation for the teeoff Wednesday. Even Sam Snead has joined the tour for this one.

National Open champion Jack Nicklaus, who had to drop out of the Lucky International at San Francisco last week because of bursitis in the leg, plans to try and resume competition here.

"My leg still hurts," said Nicklaus. "But I'm going to give it a try. Maybe the sun will help."

But the sun was having a hard time breaking through the clouds and a light wind blew in off the snow-capped mountains to cool the air.

Angels Sign Pair

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Catchers Bob Rodgers and Ed Sadowski were signed Tuesday to 1963 contracts by the Los Angeles Angels.

In 1962 Rodgers averaged .258 and had six home runs and 61 RBI's.

Sadowski worked in only 27 games last season, batting .200.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Coach George King said Tuesday that the Florida game here Wednesday night is a "pivotal game" for the West Virginia University basketball team.

This game will mean a lot to us as far as the rest of the schedule is concerned," King said, pointing out the Mountaineers will play six of their next eight games on the road.

"We need a good win to get us started on the right track again," he said. "This is the type of game that if we lose it could be disastrous."

And King isn't expecting any easy pickings with the Gators who have compiled a 10-6 record, defeating The Citadel in their last outing.

Florida has defeated Wake Forest by six points and lost by only two to sixth ranked Georgia Tech in the finals of the Gator Bowl tournament.

Liston To Get Part Of Title Earnings Today

Government Will Release $160,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — The government will release $160,000 of heavyweight champion Sonny Liston's money at 10 a.m. Wednesday, and Sonny can take $85,000 of it immediately, Tom Bolan announced Tuesday night.

Bolan, president of Championship Sports, Inc. (CSI), said the release of Liston's fight - money would be made in the offices of U.S. Attorney Robert Arum, at Bolan's request.

In Chicago, Liston said: "That makes everything rosy. That paves the way for a lot of things."

He added that as soon as financial transactions are completed, he will sign contracts for his return title defense against Floyd Patterson at Miami Beach, April 4.

Jack Nilon of Chester, Pa., Liston's advisor, has arranged to pick up Sonny's $85,000 in New York Wednesday. Sonny's other $75,000 will be placed in escrow by Bolan to guarantee that Sonny does go through with the return fight at Miami Beach.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is still holding $47,000 of Sonny's money to guarantee taxes on his original purse of about $300,000 from his Sept. 25th fight with Patterson.

On the night of the fight, Internal Revenue agents throughout the country impounded all television and gate receipts to guarantee taxes. Most of that money has now been released.

Browns Deal Clark For Mel Triplett

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL — (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings announced a "head - to - head" trade Tuesday with the Cleveland Browns, getting end Leon Clark for fullback Mel Triplett.

Vikings Coach Norm Van Brocklin said "We need a good end badly, as a matter of fact, we need several ends."

Clark, 6-foot-4, 235-pound offensive end, will be depoloyed as a spread end on the Minnesota squad.

Clark, 30, a college track star and a seven-year veteran of the National Football League, caught 10 passes for 106 yards last season. He came to Cleveland from the Los Angeles Rams in 1960.

Triplett, 30, obtained in the NFL pool which launched the new Minnesota club two years ago, is a 6-foot-1, 225-pound fullback who carried the ball 52 times for 160 yards and a 3.1 yard average.

In today's hand taken from the recent National tournament held in Phoenix, most North-South pairs bid and made a six heart contract. One pair, however, went down to an unexpected defeat.

West opened the five of hearts, a choice which was destined to work a diabolical effect upon the declarer. Had West gotten off to a spade lead, the defense would have cashed their trick at once, and declarer, after ruffing one diamond in dummy, would shortly have been able to claim his slam.

South proceeded to win the first heart trick in his hand and then draw the remaining trumps. He crossed over to the king of clubs and cashed the ace. If clubs split in the expected three-two manner, he could establish the suit by ruffing the third round, reenter the North hand with the ace of diamonds, and discard his spade and diamond losers on the good clubs.

On the second club, however, East showed out, which complicated the situation considerably. Declarer ruffed himself in with a club and led the four of spades. West followed with the three and the queen was played from dummy, East permitting it to hold the trick. South was now in desperate straits for, while he could still establish North's club suit by ruffing another club with his last trump, he was obliged to leave the ace of diamonds in dummy as a sure reentry. This means that the diamond suit is hopelessly blocked, for the declarer has no way to return to his hand to cash the king and queen.

South's only hope at this point was that West had the ace of spades, in which case another spade lead toward the dummy would establish the king and limit the defenders to a single trick. He ruffed another club to establish that suit, and led the ten of spades. When West followed with the five, the king was played from the dummy. East won the trick with the ace and, never having discarded a spade, he was able to run enough tricks to set South down by three.

Dogs, cows, pigs and other animals can perceive taste differences humans can't, although animals do not necessarily prefer the same flavors as humans.

Chickens not only have a definite preference for some flavors and reject others, but they can perceive taste differences humans cannot.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Moody young Warren Beatty gets fiction's most moody young hero in "Youngblood Hawke" with the announcement from Jack Warner that Warren is his selection to play the Thomas Wolfe-type character on the screen.

To my mind, "Youngblood Hawke" is not the best of Herman Wouk's novels but he should worry. It's made a fortune on the best seller polls, the Book of the Month selection, magazine serialization and the whopping price Warner Bros. paid for the film rights. I also understand that Delmer Daves who will produce and direct has also written a very fine script.

This will mark Warren's third picture on his Warner contract — the first was "Splendor in the Grass" with girl friend Natalie Wood; the second "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone" with Vivien Leigh.

Never was a Paris beauty more "up in the air" getting a movie role than Macha (pronounced Marsha) Meril who flew 12,000 miles in three days to wind up as Dean Martin's leading lady in "Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed?" at Paramount.

What happened is that producer Jack Rose and director Danny Mann took a look at Macha in a Brigitte Bardot movie, decided to make a test of her and put in a trans-Atlantic call to Paris. The next day the 22-year-old knockout was on the plane for Hollywood. The test was made, and the third day Macha flew back to France to await their decision. Well, she got it — she's in as the girl who plays the bewildered French wife of Dean's in the comedy. It comes in handy that Macha speaks English almost as well as she speaks French.

There's a wonderful friendship between Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke. Patty says that Anne helped her so much when she first went into the play of "The Miracle Worker" when she was only 13. They won't forget "Miracle Worker" when Academy Award nominations are made — Patty for best supporting performance, and Anne for best female honors.

Anne couldn't be more honored if she does receive an Oscar. She has been named with Senator Ted Kennedy to serve as honorary chairman of the annual Annie Sullivan Memorial Fund drive at the Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown, New York. She played Annie Sullivan, Helen Keller's tutor and life-long companion, in both the movie and the stage versions of "Miracle Worker."

Look who's writing a cookbook — our good friend Joe Pasternak — and don't think he isn't the boy who can do it! Long known as one of the best cooks in Hollywood, Joe is bringing out his tome under the title "For Men Only." Published by Bernard Geis the volume will contain all of Pasternak's heretofore secret Hungarian and continental dishes plus American concoctions.

"It's aimed at men who like to dabble in the kitchen and there are lots of us," says Joe, "but I won't mind if some wives buy it." His newest MGM picture, "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" will come out about the same time as the book, purely coincidental, of course.

Dorothy Provine says there's not a word of truth to the old belief that diamonds are a girl's best friend. She's convinced paintings are, and she is now on her way toward a sizable collection, because they are constantly increasing in value.

She's going to add to her private gallery after she completes "Wall of Noise" at Warners by going to London to star in an hour long spectacular for British commercial television which she was to have made last year when she became ill and had to return home. While she's in Europe, she will go to the continent for more paintings.

Although famed British producer Alexander Korda died seven years ago, his 40-year-old son Peter Korda is refusing to sign the papers that would settle the several million dollar estate of his father. "I refuse to sign," says Peter, "because they haven't shown me the full accounts."

This, of course, prevents division of the inheritance between Peter, Sir Alexander's widow (now Mrs. David Metcalf) and the children of Vincent Korda, brother of the deceased. I understand the estate includes holdings in 19 film companies.

Peter can afford to wait. Within the next few weeks he receives about $120,000, an interim payment from his father's legacy.

Beaten Man Returns Home

Charles (Slim) Ruckman, 59, of 400 Maryland Avenue, who was beaten and robbed December 30 in Miami, Fla., returned to his home Sunday where he will be confined several days.

Ruckman was mailing a postcard in Miami, about two blocks from his brother's home, when two young thugs jumped from behind a hedge and attacked him.

The local man was hospitalized 11 days and underwent surgery on his face and left eye. Physicians at first thought the man would lose his eye, and were forced to wait a few days before performing surgery.

Ruckman, who is employed by Gulick's Garage, said Miami police have arrested four Cuban youths, ranging in age from 15 to 22, who have admitted four other similar muggings.

However, the youths have not confessed to the Ruckman case. Police informed Ruckman before he left Miami that they feel sure the four Cubans are involved in his case.

City Gets Two Bids For Traffic Lights

Two traffic lights bids were received by the Mayor and Council Monday and referred to Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan.

Work includes a light at North Centre and Valley streets; and modification of lights at Virginia Avenue and Second Street; South Centre and Harrison streets; and Baltimore and South Mechanic streets.

Horses and mules still have a good run for their money in New York State. There are an estimated 42 thousand of them and they are worth nearly $5.5 million.

Secrets Of Charm

Take A Gander At These Low-Cal Sauces

If the post-holiday calorie-counters at your house are losing interest in their diet, it may be time to brighten up the menu with low-calorie substitutes for the rich trimmings they miss. It's just as hard for the dieters who love gravies, sauces and creamed dishes to give them up as it is for the family cook to creat appetizing meals without the taste-variety sauces provide.

Compromise is the cook's job, for she's the one who must make the extra effort to whip up the substitute sauces "from scratch." But she shouldn't mind, since the three recipes suggested here are quick and easy—and it certainly saves more time and makes more sense to serve the entire family a compromise dish that even non-dieters will enjoy than to slave every day over two separate menus to suit individual tastes and needs.

LOW-CAL CREAM SAUCE

To 2 cups of skimmed milk, add the following ingredients: 2 tbsp. cake flour, 1 tps. flavored salt, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. monasodium glutamate and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Mix everything well with an electric or rotary beater.

Using a heavy aluminum pan for the mixture, cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly to prevent sticking. Within 4 minutes, this basic cream sauce will be thick, smooth and fluffy. There'll be two cups of it, offering about 80 calories per cup. (The traditional recipe adds up to more than 400 calories!)

For thicker sauce, add an extra tablespoon of flour (and 12 calories). For au gratin flavor, add grated sharp cheddar (at 14 calories more per tablespoon). Even more variety is possible with minced parsley, chopped pimiento, bits of green pepper, sliced mushrooms, a dash of Worchestershire.

LOW-CAL BARBECUE SAUCE

To 3 cups of canned tomato sauce, add ½ cup chopped green peppers, ½ cup minced onion, ½ tsp. chili powder, ⅛ tsp. ground cloves, ½ tsp. salt, 1 bay leaf and 1 clove of pressed garlic.

Just simmer for 10 minutes and this versatile sauce is ready for Creole dishes, omlets, vegetables, pork chops, meat loaf, pot roast or stew — at 100 calories per cup, just ⅓ the calorie count of the traditional recipe.

LOW-CAL HOLLANDAISE

Use a blender or beater on 1 cup of cottage cheese and 4 tbsp. lemon juice until you have a smooth cream to pour into the top of a double boiler. Add these seasonings: ½ tsp. flavored salt, ½ tsp. salt, a dash each of pepper and cayenne. Then slowly stir in two egg yolks. Continue stirring over hit (not boiling) water until the sauce is thick.

The 1¼ cups of sauce holds 350 calories (which certainly beats the traditional recipe's 1,200). And THIS recipe won't separate or curdle!

Sheets Resigns Potomac Park Post

The Citizens Committee for the Potomac Park Addition yesterday notified the Allegany County Board of Commissioners of a change in the officers of the group.

Kenneth Sheets has resigned as secretary of the committee.

County Gets Finance Budget

The proposed budget of the county finance department was submitted to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday by Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, county auditor.

Mrs. Sills listed total budget items of $23,077 for the fiscal year starting next July 1 as compared to $29,739.83 in the current budget. The decrease results from the absence of a large item for capital outlay. A total of $7,714.20 is in the current budget for capital outlay while the new budget item is only $425.

Salaries for the four persons in the department total $18,500, up $150 from the current budget. One worker will receive that amount as an increment in the salary classification under which she is working.

Total expenses will be $4,152 in the new budget as compared to $4,278 in the current budget.

Parking Receipts

Parking meter receipts the week of January 20 amounted to $665.80 compared to $678.25 the week of January 13, a decrease of $12.45, Inspector Harry Whisner reported to the Mayor and Council.

Mt. Savage Defeats LaSalle, 67-62; Paw Paw Cops 13th Straight

Ralph Wilson Sparks Indians' 11th Triumph

Junior Center Gets 33 Points; Losers' Nolan Tallies 36

Mt. Savage High School had its hands full with a Joe Nolan-sparked LaSalle team last night before scoring a 67-62 win over the Explorers at Mt. Savage.

Although they led throughout after Ralph Wilson's field goal broke a 4-4 tie, the Indians had to battle all the way in scoring their third straight win and 11th of the campaign in 14 contests.

Nolan, who resides in Mt. Savage, has come through with two sensational performances against his neighbors this season. In the series opener with the Indians at the SS. Peter and Paul gymnasium, he fired in 35 points as the Explorers dropped a hard-fought 68-65 decision.

Last night the sharpshooting senior forward banged in 16 field goals and converted four of five free throw chances to finish with 36 points.

However, the Indians' Wilson was nearly as effective, tallying 33 points on 11 fielders and an 11-12 performance at the foul stripe. Bobby Robertson tossed in 18 tallies as the Mt. Savage club's junior duo accounted for 51 of the 67-point total.

No. 26827 or 4 Equity.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

This is to give notice that on the 7th day of January, 1963, a Petition was filed in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Md., by the Plaintiffs against the Defendants whose address or addresses are not known. The Petition alleges in substance that, by deed dated August 11, 1903, Shadrack E. Beeman and Fannie E. Beeman, his wife, conveyed to Patrick Rowan and Monica Rowan, his wife, certain real property on Island Street, Lonaconing, Allegany County, Md., being Lot No. 7 on the plat of Hannekamp's Island, and upon execution and delivery of said deed said grantees therein took possession and control of said property and held the same until the death of the survivor of them, Patrick A. Rowan, in 1926, who devised the same by his last Will and Testament to Mary A. Nolan, his daughter; that she and her husband have had possession and control of said property since that time; that said deed for said property, as aforesaid, through oversight and inadvertance, was never recorded as required by the laws of Maryland, although said Patrick Rowan had possession of same and it is now in the possession of said Mary A. Nolan and Patrick A. Nolan; and that both said Shadrack E. Beeman and Fannie E. Beeman, his wife, died intestate and without issue, the survivor of them having died prior to 1924.

Petitioners pray that the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Md., will order and decree that said deed from Shadrack E. Beeman and Fannie E. Beeman, his wife, to Patrick Rowan and Monica Rowan, his wife, dated August 11, 1903, be recorded among the Land Records of Allegany County, Md., with the same effect and consequences and to all intents and purposes as if such deed had been recorded within the time required by law.

WHEREUPON, it is ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Md., this 7th day of January, 1963, that the Petitioners cause a copy of this Order to be inserted in a newspaper published in Allegany County, Md., once a week in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of February, 1963, giving notice to the unknown heirs of Shadrack E. Beeman and Fannie E. Beeman, his wife, of the object and substance of the Petition and warning each of them to show cause, in person or by attorney, if any there be, on or before the 11th day of March, 1963, why an order and decree should not be passed as prayed.

Celtics Nose Out Chicago

Bob Cousy's Goal Decides, 100-99

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tommy Heinsohn stole the ball from Si Green and Bob Cousy put it into the basket with 22 seconds left to play to earn the Boston Celtics a 100-99 victory over the Chicago Zephyrs Tuesday night in the first game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader.

SPORT SLANTS

Mat Sport Growing — Alco Adds Annapolis — Loyola Great In '39 — Dapper Dans' Lineup

By C. V. BURNS

WRESTLING, one of the fastest growing high school sports in Maryland, should be going in full swing in Allegany county in another year.

That's the opinion of Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education in the county public schools.

Most of the senior high schools are interested and the big problem now is lining up coaches for the teams.

Ed Schwarz and George Stimmel plan to take over the coaching reins at Allegany, Nile "Bob" Chaney will likely handle the Beall grapplers and Tom Harmon seems best qualified for the job at Bruce High School.

Ray Hull started wrestling when he was at Beall High School eight years ago but ran into scheduling difficulties because of the scarcity of teams.

The sport is going over big in Bedford county, Pa., nearby West Virginia and Washington county, Md., where North and South Hagerstown head the schools with mat teams.

ALLEGANY High School expects to have a brand new football opponent on its schedule this year as a replacement for Westminster which withdrew from the C.V.A.L. after the 1962 season ended.

Allegany never has met Annapolis before in the gridiron but the schools have tangled in the state basketball tournament.

Bill Best, of Mt. Savage, who has coached Annapolis High quints in recent years, is now the vice principal of Annapolis Junior High School.

At present the Ramblers are 18-0 and they are ranked No. 2 in the Associated Press and United Press International polls.

Bobby Cavanaugh should remember the Ramblers of 1939 as he was the coach of the Cumberland Collegians who dropped a 52-39 decision to the Chicagoans at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

That year Loyola was coached by Leonard Sachs and sparked by "Wibs" Kautz and Mike Novak, both All-America selections. The 1939 Ramblers won 21 consecutive games before succumbing to the power of a great Long Island U. quint in the finals of the Metropolitan Writers Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Loyola had a 17-0 record when it hit Cumberland and its victims included Arkansas State, North Dakota, Southern Methodist, Chicago, Michigan State, Santa Clara, Drake, Villanova, CCNY, De Paul and George Washington.

JOHN MULLANEY recalls that Loyola University gym in Chicago was the site for the National Catholic Interscholastic Basketball Tournaments in bygone days and LaSalle's Explorers made seven trips to the event from 1926 through 1938.

"Ike" Law took the first two teams there in 1926 and 1927.

Jim White, now of the Times-News circulation department, John Mullaney, Jack Stakem, David "Cake" Conley and Jim Buskirk were with three LaSalle tournament teams and Frank McMullen was coach of the 1937 and 1938 teams that went to the Windy City.

AND do you know it was 24 years ago that "Red Auerbach, now coach of the world champion Boston Celtics, played here as a guard for George Washington University in an overtime battle at Fort Hill in which the Colonials whipped West Virginia U., 39-37.

WHEN Bruceton Mills High School whipped Northern High's Huskies last week by the score of 94-93 it was only the second win in the last 67 games for the Preston countians.

TO Basketball Fan:

Longest winning streak in the long history of the YMCA Sunday School Basketball League is 41 games hung up by Emmanuel Episcopal in 1951 and 1952.

SPEAKING of records:

Bill Laurent of the Purple Heart Club scored 58 points in an Allegany County Men's Shuffleboard League match eight years ago and it still stands. The date was March 3, 1955.

FRANK COLLEY was on the phone the other evening to report that Shenandoah Downs' night racing program is set for April 13 to May 18. The current session ends Saturday.

OVER A SPAN of 15 years the Dapper Dan Club has brought here many major league baseball stars, past and present, for its series of sports celebrities dinners.

OUTFIELDERS — Stan Musial, Frank Thomas, Enos Slaughter, Charley "King Kong" Keller, Jerry Lynch and Eddie Robinson.

CATCHER—Gus Triandos.

PITCHERS — Lefty Grove, Lefty Gomez, Bob Friend, Ralph Terry, Jack Fisher, Cliff Chambers, Ronnie Kline, "Boots" Poffenberger and Dave Cole.

And for umpires we have Bill McGowan and Tony Venzon.

"Play Ball!"

JOE CROGHAN will be the new voice on the Baltimore Orioles play-by-play staff of announcers on radio and television this year.

Croghan, a native of Baltimore and a graduate of Loyola College in 1942, will join with Chuck Thompson in describing Orioles' games.

Joe has been director of sports for WBAL-TV for eight years. His broadcasting career began in 1949 at WAAN in Annapolis.

Hyndman Downs Everett, 68-47

Hyndman last night scored a 68-47 win over Everett which, coupled with Bedford's 49-34 loss to Chestnue Ridge, moved the Hornets into first place in the Bedford County League with a 5-1 record.

The triumph, scored on the Everett quint's court, was the Hornets' 10th in 14 games, and their second over Everett this season. Hyndman beat Everett at home by a 75-60 score earlier in the campaign.

Hyndman got 51 chances at the free throw line and made good on 28 of them to win by a wide margin. The Hornets outscored the losers by only four in field goals, 20-16. Four Everett players fouled out, with three of them leaving in the third period.

Pirates Score 88-38 Win Over Wardensville

Roland Hamilton, Guy Sharp Score 48 For Winners

Paw Paw's unbeaten Pirates found nothing unlucky about the number thirteen last night as they romped over Wardensville, 88-38, for their 13th straight win in a PVC game played on the losers' floor.

High scoring forward Roland Hamilton again led the Paw Paw quint's attack. He pumped in 28 points to up his total for the season to 343, good for an average of 26.4 per contest.

Hamilton got plenty of scoring help from his teammates, three of whom scored in double figures. Guy Sharp collected 20 tallies, Larry Harding came through with 16 and Gary Kidwell added ten.

Ross Webster and Roger Heishman, with 13 and 11 tallies respectively, were Wardensville's only scoring threats. The losers suffered their eighth loss in 13 games.

Keyser And Piedmont, Unbeaten PVC Teams, To Clash Tonight

Miers Brothers Face Each Other In 7th Of Series

Allegany To Visit Martinsburg; Fort Ashby At Paw Paw

Piedmont vs. Keyser or Miers vs. Miers.

That's the big game tonight when two of the three undefeated teams of the Potomac Valley Conference clash in an important battle at Keyser High School.

The Miers Brothers, William "Huck", of Piedmont, and Estle "Eck" of Keyser, will be matching wits for the fourth straight year and the Keyser coach goes into the 7th game of the series with a 4-2 shade over his brother who has been tutoring Piedmont quints for 20 years. "Eck" came from Front Royal, Va., to take over the reins at Keyser in 1960 as successor to John Shelton and this is his fourth season at the helm at the Golden Tornado.

Piedmont is 9-0 in the P.V.C. while Keyser is 8-0 and right on their heels is Paw Paw with 7-0 and Franklin with 7-1.

Both Own 12-1 Records

Keyser's overall mark is 12-1, its only defeat coming at the hands of Fort Hill here last Saturday night, 63-56, after the Golden Tornado had copped its first 12 games. Piedmont also owns a 12-1 log after suffered its lone setback when Valley won at Lonaconing, 51-49, after the Lions had won the first game, 69-45.

Both teams have beaten Allegany, Keyser turning the trick at home, 74-67, while Piedmont whipped the Campers on their home floor, 50-49. Fort Hill, Keyser's conqueror, dropped a 58-53 decision to Allegany, and the Campers whipped Valley at Lonaconing, 69-60. So take your pick.

The first meeting of the Miers Brothers was in 1960 and Piedmont swept the series, 54-45, and 58-46. Keyser has copped the last four contests, scoring 58-56 and 61-55 wins in 1961 and repeating last year to the tune of 51-49 and 56-48.

Piedmont will be playing its 472nd game under "Huck" Miers tonight. His teams have won 308 and lost 163 for a winning average of .654. Over four seasons "Eck" Miers' KHS quints have won 54 and lost 25 for a .684 mark.

Campers At Martinsburg

Allegany High's Campers journey to Martinsburg tonight to conclude their series with Coach Roy Comer's Martinsburg Bulldogs. It will be Allegany's 14th outing of the season and they'll be striving for win No. 10. Coach Chet Payne's cagers opened the current campaign with a 68-29 decision over the Bulldogs at Campobello. Martinsburg is 6-6 to date and two of its defeats were dealt out by Fort Hill, 59-38 and 70-54.

Paw Paw's Pirates will be angling for their eighth consecutive P.V.C. victory when they tackle Fort Ashby at Paw Paw tonight. Paw Paw won the first game, 42-52, and could find the going rougher in the return contest.

Trojans Play At Home

Allegany Community College (1-12) will be striving to break a 12-game losing streak when it hosts Charles County Junior College in a Tri-State Junior College Conference game at Fort Hill High gym. The Trojans are 0-8 in the conference this season. The Charles County quint plays Potomac State at Keyser Thursday night.

Franklin High School's high-stepping Panthers (11-2) tackle high scoring Mick Cooper and the Harman High School quint at Harman in Randolph county tonight.

NFL Attendance Tops 4 Million

Probe On Betting Is Not Discussed

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League repeated Tuesday there would be no further dicussion of the pro football betting investigation at the league meeting due to run through Thursday.

"I made an informal report Monday to a group including one man from each of the 14 league teams," he said. "It was a general report on the entire situation.

"Once again I will say that we are cooperating with the McClellan committee (the Senate investigating subcommittee headed by Sen. McClellan, D-Ark.). We will not discuss any specific phases of the investigation in which we are involved."

Rozelle has said repeatedly his goal was to wrap up all the investigation with one announcement. He refused to set any date for that statement. The investigation, first revealed in early January, centered around reports that some players bet on games and associated with gamblers.

The league released its official 1962 attendance figures showing that a record total of 4,003,421 persons saw NFL games during the regular season. It was the first time in the league's 43-year history that the attendance topped 4 million. It just missed in 1961 with 3,861,159.

Clippers Leave Cellar

McCafferty Given New Duties With Baltimore Colts

McCafferty coached the offensive ends and scouted opponents as a member of the Colt staff since 1959. The Colts will drop the practice of scouting the opposition and instead will rely entirely on films.

McCafferty will be helped during training camp by Jim Mutscheller, who will help coach the offensive ends. Mutscheller played for the Colts for eight seasons before retiring at the end of the 1961 season.

Other coaches for Shula will be John Sandusky, offensive line; Charles Winner, over-all defense; Gino Marchetti, defensive line, and Bill Pellington, defensive secondary. Pellington and Marchetti will be playing coaches.

Yankees Sign Tex Clevenger

NEW YORK (UPI) — Right-handed pitcher Tex Clevenger and four rookies signed their 1963 contracts with the New York Yankees Tuesday, making a total of seven who have agreed to terms for the coming season.

Clevenger started the 1962 season with Richmond and then compiled a 2-0 record along with a 2.84 earned run average after being brought up by the Yankees early in the season.

The others to sign were outfielder Ron Solomini, catchers Bill Madden and Alan Hall and first baseman-catcher Curt Blefary.

Quesada Resigns As President Of Washington Baseball Club

Johnston Named New Executive Head Of Senators

James M. Johnston, investment banker, took over the top executive job in the reshuffling. Johnston, with the title of chairman of the board, will maintain an office at D.C. Stadium and take an active part in management of affairs of the American League baseball team.

Johnston heads a three-man group which took over control of the baseball team. Other members are his business partner, James H. Lemon, and aviation executive George M. Bunker.

He said he planned no changes in the front office of the Senators, with General Manager George Selkirk, Business Manager Joseph R. Burke and Field Manager Mickey Vernon to be given wider authority.

"The recent addition of Bucky Harris to their staff," Johnston said, "and the wisdom and experience he can bring to the player-development program, we believe, will be a helpful factor in the improvement of the team."

Reject Ohio Offer

It was understood that the status of Selkirk, Burke, Vernon and Harris figured in the decision to reject a $5 million offer from Nate Dolin of Cleveland and former league executive Bill Veeck.

Dolin and Veeck were understood to have planned to bring in their own men to operate the ball club.

In two years since the new Senators were organized under Quesada as a part of American League expansion to 10 teams, they finished in 10th place both seasons.

Quesada fired General Manager Ed Doherty last fall, but retained Vernon and Burke. Selkirk was hired to replace Doherty and Harris was added only last week for special assignments and for scouting of players.

Stock Is Purchased

Under the deal bringing the new control of the club, Quesada, Mrs. Robert H. Levi, George A. Garrett, George Y. Wheeler II and Mrs. Katherine Graham sold out their stock to Johnston, Lemon and Bunker.

Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer and Floyd D. Akers held on to their stock.

At a board of directors meeting after the deal was concluded a new board was elected consisting of Johnston, Lemon, Bunker, Akers and John W. Sweeterman.

The new board of directors elected Johnston chairman, Lemon and Akers as vice presidents and Webb C. Hayes III as secretary-treasurer.

Divorce Suit Filed Against Lenny Moore

BALTIMORE (AP) — The wife of all-pro halfback Lenny Moore of the Baltimore Colts has filed for a divorce in Baltimore Circuit Court.

Mrs. Moore complained that the National Football League star "has repeatedly struck and beat her, and has attempted to smother her with a pillow." She said there was no hope for reconciliation.

The suit, in asking alimony, said Moore earns about $25,000 a year as a football player, and from February to June is employed part time by a brewery company.

The Moores were married Christmas Day, 1956, and have three children aged 5, 3 and 11 months. The suit asks custody of the children and funds for their support.

Chase For Golf Gold Moves To Desert Today

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — The chase for golfing gold moves to the desert Wednesday when the Palm Springs Golf Classic, offering $115,000 in cash, opens a five-day, 90-hole marathon.

—There is a prize of $50,000 for any pro who can knock in a hole-in-one at a designated hole on each course.

—There is $50,000 being offered in prizes for the professionals over the five days of play. First prize is $9,000.

—The professionals play alone on the final day, Sunday, before a national (NBC) television audience.

Just about every big name in golf worked out Tuesday in preparation for the teeoff Wednesday. Even Sam Snead has joined the tour for this one.

National Open champion Jack Nicklaus, who had to drop out of the Lucky International at San Francisco last week because of bursitis in the leg, plans to try and resume competition here.

"My leg still hurts," said Nicklaus. "But I'm going to give it a try. Maybe the sun will help."

But the sun was having a hard time breaking through the clouds and a light wind blew in off the snow-capped mountains to cool the air.

Angels Sign Pair

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Catchers Bob Rodgers and Ed Sadowski were signed Tuesday to 1963 contracts by the Los Angeles Angels.

In 1962 Rodgers averaged .258 and had six home runs and 61 RBI's.

Sadowski worked in only 27 games last season, batting .200.

WVU-Florida Game Tonight Big One For Mountaineers

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Coach George King said Tuesday that the Florida game here Wednesday night is a "pivotal game" for the West Virginia University basketball team.

This game will mean a lot to us as far as the rest of the schedule is concerned," King said, pointing out the Mountaineers will play six of their next eight games on the road.

"We need a good win to get us started on the right track again," he said. "This is the type of game that if we lose it could be disastrous."

And King isn't expecting any easy pickings with the Gators who have compiled a 10-6 record, defeating The Citadel in their last outing.

Florida has defeated Wake Forest by six points and lost by only two to sixth ranked Georgia Tech in the finals of the Gator Bowl tournament.

Liston To Get Part Of Title Earnings Today

Government Will Release $160,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — The government will release $160,000 of heavyweight champion Sonny Liston's money at 10 a.m. Wednesday, and Sonny can take $85,000 of it immediately, Tom Bolan announced Tuesday night.

Bolan, president of Championship Sports, Inc. (CSI), said the release of Liston's fight - money would be made in the offices of U.S. Attorney Robert Arum, at Bolan's request.

In Chicago, Liston said: "That makes everything rosy. That paves the way for a lot of things."

He added that as soon as financial transactions are completed, he will sign contracts for his return title defense against Floyd Patterson at Miami Beach, April 4.

Jack Nilon of Chester, Pa., Liston's advisor, has arranged to pick up Sonny's $85,000 in New York Wednesday. Sonny's other $75,000 will be placed in escrow by Bolan to guarantee that Sonny does go through with the return fight at Miami Beach.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is still holding $47,000 of Sonny's money to guarantee taxes on his original purse of about $300,000 from his Sept. 25th fight with Patterson.

On the night of the fight, Internal Revenue agents throughout the country impounded all television and gate receipts to guarantee taxes. Most of that money has now been released.

Browns Deal Clark For Mel Triplett

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL — (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings announced a "head - to - head" trade Tuesday with the Cleveland Browns, getting end Leon Clark for fullback Mel Triplett.

Vikings Coach Norm Van Brocklin said "We need a good end badly, as a matter of fact, we need several ends."

Clark, 6-foot-4, 235-pound offensive end, will be depoloyed as a spread end on the Minnesota squad.

Clark, 30, a college track star and a seven-year veteran of the National Football League, caught 10 passes for 106 yards last season. He came to Cleveland from the Los Angeles Rams in 1960.

Triplett, 30, obtained in the NFL pool which launched the new Minnesota club two years ago, is a 6-foot-1, 225-pound fullback who carried the ball 52 times for 160 yards and a 3.1 yard average.

Gillette Takes Fair Trade Action Here

Seeks To Enjoin White Cross Firm

The Gillette Company, Boston, Mass., has filed an equity suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against the White Cross Health and Beauty Aid Discount Centers, Inc., 77 Baltimore Street, to enjoin the store here temporarily from advertising, offering for sale or selling the plaintiff's brand names at less than the minimum "fair trade" prices.

The bill of complaint also asks the court to order the defendant to account to the plaintiff for profit derived from the sale of its products at less than the fair trade minimums. The bill seeks also to have the defendant compelled to pay all ascertainable damage occasioned by its alleged unlawful acts.

Gillette notes in the bill of complaint that it is engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling razors, razor blades, shaving cream, toiletries and related products.

Under the Maryland Fair Trade Act, the plaintiff's Gillette Safety Razor Company division has entered into fair trade contracts with retailers of razors, razor blades, shaving cream, toiletries and related products in Maryland.

On or about July 26, October 31 and November 1, 1962, the plaintiff contends, it duly notified the defendant of the existence of its fair trade contracts with retailers in Maryland and of the minimum retail prices in effect thereunder.

The bill of complaint charges that specifically on January 17, 1963, the defendant sold slim adjustable razor sets, shaving cream and packages of razor blades at less than the fair trade price.

It goes on to state that the effect of this price cutting and alleged unfair competition will induce other Maryland retailers to sell the plaintiff's products at less than the fair trade minimums.

Filing the bill of complaint for Gillette were its attorneys, William Walsh, this city, and Thomas P. Perkins III, Baltimore.

Hancock Gives Sewage Plant Tentative Nod

Hancock has given tentative approval to the low bidder for the construction of sewage treatment facilities for the community, according to Mayor Daniel R. Fleming.

The Ruth Engineering Company, Baltimore, was the low bidder, at $270,374.20, when bids were opend by the Mayor and Council on January 15.

Six other companies, including two from Cumberland, submitted bids on the project.

Mayor Fleming said the approval is contingent upon additional federal aid and the town's ability to finance its share of the project, which will cost more than the engineering estimate.

Based on this figure, the town was allotted a federal grant of $60,115 toward the cost of the project. State funds will also be available.

The town has asked that the government boost its grant in proportion to the difference between estimated and actual cost of the project.

Town officials will confer with the low bidder to eliminate certain items from the contract in an attempt to get the cost down, Mayor Fleming added.

Fire Company Makes Report

Chief Harry W. Martz of the Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company last night made his annual report on activities in 1962.

Chief Martz said the fire company responded to 23 calls and assisted other fire companies on four occasions.

The fires caused an estimated loss of $4,650 and 560 man hours were used to fight the blazes. Forty different men volnteered their services during the past year.

A breakdown on the type of fires showed there were 13 brush fires, three electrical fires, and one each caused by an overheated stove, furance and flue.

The company also operates an ambulance service and the two vehicles made 103 trips in 1962. There were 41 different men who manned the ambulances for a total of 853 man hours. The company received $2,998 in donations for use of the ambulances and expenses were $2,320.

Optimist Clubs To Hear Dr. Arch

Forecast Calls For Snow Today

Warming Trend Expected Here

The Weather Bureau calls for warmer temperatures and a chance of snow today, but the mercury still will be below normal for this time of year.

Yesterday, Cumberland recorded its second lowest reading in its history when the official temperature reached 11 degrees below zero early in the day.

Cumberland's lowest reading since official records were started here in 1880 by the Weather Bureau was 12 degrees below zero on February 10, 1899.

The forecast for today calls for cloudy weather with snow predicted for this section of the state and rain elsewhere. The high today is expected to be around 30 degrees.

The frigid temperatures in the area yesterday forced Columbia Gas Of Maryland, Inc. to reduce gas supplies to its industrial customers approximately 50 per cent. However, the emergency measure was to be lifted at midnight last night, according to officials of the gas company.

The lowest reading in the state yesterday was noted in Oakland where a —25 was recorded. Other low readings in the area were Frostburg, —6; Keyser, —11; Grantsville, —18; Berkeley Springs, —9, and a —30 in Preston County, W. Va.

Most of the highways are bare in Allegany County, but a number of secondary roads in Garrett County are still covered.

Woman Recovers Her Pocketbook; $70 Untouched

Mrs. Anne C. Perdew, a clerk in the office of Allegany County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff, is convinced that people are basically honest.

The other night, while driving through Frostburg, Mrs. Perdew opened the door of her car momentarily at the intersection of Main Street and Broadway. When she got home she realized that her pocketbook was missing.

Convinced that her pocketbook had fallen out when she opened the car door, Mrs. Perdew notified Frostburg police of her loss, hoping by chance that she might recover her pocketbook and identification papers, even if she lost her $70.

Police informed her that Mrs. J. Gorman Robertson of Midland, who had been bowling in Frostburg that night, found the pocketbook as she was walking across Main Street and turned it over to police with the $70 intact. Mrs. Perdew was most appreciative of her good fortune but Mrs. Robertson declined a proferred reward.

Building Trades Back Plans For Rocky Gap Park

Plans for the development of the Rocky Gap State Park have been endorsed by the Cumberland Building and Construction Trades Council.

He said the council also pledged its fullest support toward the speedy development of the park, which could become one of the county's major recreation centers.

Copies of the resolution are being sent to state officials and to Allegany County legislators.

The Building Trades council is composed of 12 craft unions engaged in the building and construction trades and has some 2,500 affiliated members.

Hazen Road Home Damaged By Fire

A Hazen Road dwelling was damaged slightly by fire yesterday morning when the occupant was attempting to thaw a water pipe which froze in the intense cold weather.

Firemen from Bedford Road responded to the call about 10:15 a.m. at the home occupied by Roy Payne. Twelve men took two trucks to the scene of the fire, caused when an electrical tape ignited the flooring.

Hearing Is Held By House Group

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The weight of the U.S. Secretary of State was brought to bear again on the Maryland Legislature for a law requiring hotels and restaurants to serve Negroes.

"We are pouring millions of dollars into foreign aid, yet ruining this tremendous effort by refusing to accept our next door neighbor because his skin is dark," said Pedro Sanjuan, deputy director for protocol services in the State Department.

"You can assist our country in carrying out its world mission with a law to convince those who promote segregation that the ideals of equality must be practiced."

"There is a tremendous amount of criticism over our discrimination in the world and it hurts our foreign policy. It is an insurmountable argument when condoning it by law seems to be a policy of government."

Sanjuan had urged the Maryland Legislative Council two years ago to recommend a state law on equal accommodations and meanwhile he sought voluntary integration on U.S. 40—main auto corridor for travelers between New York and Washington.

Cites Incidents

Sanjuan said that since many of the U.S. 40 restaurants had voluntarily integrated, there still had been "numerous incidents that are regrettable." He described nine of them as major.

Sanjuan was one of 24 speakers who consumed three hours urging the House Judiciary Committee to report favorably on mandatory service to all races in hotels and restaurants. Such a bill failed by two votes in the house at a special session last year.

Several of the 23 counties again are expected to be exempted from provisions of the law. An effort will be made to broaden the places covered to taverns and amusements such as beaches, bowling alleys and theaters.

A dozen more speakers opposed, violently as confirmed segregationists, any legal requirement for private business to serve all comers. Their arguments took nearly 2½ hours and with a recess the hearing stretched from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

This is the ninth year that bills for equal public accommodations have been introduced in the Maryland Legislature. Baltimore City and the Washington suburban county of Montgomery are the only two in the state with local laws on the subject.

Cite Arguments

Spokesman for extension by the state act represented all religions, organized labor, veterans, women's clubs and groups with the purpose of promoting civil rights.

On the other side, three o fthe speakers were from the Maryland Petition Committee for State Rights, individual white supremacists, taverns, restaurants, and motels.

The principal arguments of business were that it was an encroachment on free enterprise and property rights.

John H. Heiser of Chevy Chase sought to prove it also was a right reserved to the people to decide. He said he ran for the Montgomery County Council last year only in protest to adoption of its public accommodations ordinance without putting the question to the voters. He was elected.

"Four councilmen who voted for adoption of the ordinance running for re-election were clobbered," he said.

Samuel J. Setta, an Easton motel owner, told the legislators their first obligation is to Maryland residents, not to appease African diplomats.

"Imagine if we tried to influence legislation in their countries," he said. "The first thing we would be told is 'Yankee go home.'"

Tucker County Classes Will Resume Monday

Classes for Mountaineer Senior High School students will resume in Davis Monday, according to Stelman W. Harper, superintendent of Tucker County schools.

Classes for some 148 senior high school students were suspended January 14 after Mountaineer High School in Thomas was closed by the Board of Education as unsafe.

Tentative plans called for the students to start back to school today, but the start of classes was delayed until Monday because of the weather.

Mr. Harper said the first floor of the Mountaineer Junior High School building in Davis will be used by junior high school students and the second floor for senior high classes.

The Citizens' Committee of Thomas is attempting to block the move, which it feels the Board of Education will try to make permanent, according to Dale Duncan, chairman.

Chief Signalman Will Be Piped Ashore Last Time

An old Navy tradition will be re-enacted tonight at the U. S. Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center on McKaig's Hill when Chief Signalman Earl H. Cupp will be piped ashore for the last time on the occasion of his being transferred to the U. S. Naval Fleet Reserve after 20 years in the service of his country.

Chief Cupp entered service in 1943. He served aboard several communications command ships, a number of destroyers and in amphibious support ships. For three years he was a member of the Operational Development Force, with headquarters in the Norfolk area.

His last duty before coming to Cumberland was with the Destroyer Activation Team in Charleston, S.C., where he assisted in the training of Chinese and German crews to man ships that were loaned to them from the mothball fleet of the U.S. Navy. At the local training center, Chief Cupp has been serving as executive officer and training administrator.

Following his retirement, Chief and Mrs. Cupp and their son, Greg, plan to reside in the Norfolk area and obtain employment with the U.S. Civil Service.

Progress Noted On Validation Of Petitions

By 4 p.m. personnel of the office had checked 1,357 names on petitions and found 737 valid signatures.

4,482 Sign

Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk, said plans called for continuing work until about 8 p.m.

An official count showed there were 4,482 signatures on the petitions submitted to the Mayor and Council by the Cumberland Pure Water Committee.

Rules for the count, based on the city's home rule legislation, provide that petitions must be signed by 20 per cent of the voters registered on the day the petition is submitted.

There were 10,453 voters registered on December 31 and 54 more voters had been placed on the books up to 5 p.m. Monday, for a total eligible list of 10,507 voters.

As work started yesterday,, Mr. Ullery estimated it may take at least three days and some overtime to complete the petition check.

City Has Choice

Personnel of the city clerk and legal offices, with Mrs. Gene Weber, an extra worker, are checking the petitions.

City officials, under home rule legislation, may elect either to schedule the referendum at a special election or at the next regular municipal election in 1966.

Renaud Says County Needs Planning Tools

Director Tells Rotarians Of Plan

C. Lee Renaud, Allegany County's planning director, told members of the Cumberland Rotary Club yesterday at Central YMCA that if Allegany County is to plan today for tomorrow's needs and growth through a master plan it must be carried out by adoption and enforcement om proper planning tools.

He identified these tools as a zoning ordinance, major highway plan, capital improvements program and subdivision regulations.

The county is now protected by an interim zoning ordinance which was adopted in October 1961. The county's planning consultant is working on a permanent ordinance which should be ready later this year.

Highway Plan

To provide for a coordinated and balanced road development in the county, the major highway plan was prepared and adopted recently. Mr. Renaud stressed that by reserving rights of way for future roads now the taxpayer is saved much money.

A capital improvements program will be developed after all reports and recommendations have been completed. This program will set up priorities for needed public facilities and serve as a guide for the allocation of funds to put the county on a pay-as-you go basis, according to Mr. Renaud.

The County Planning and Zoning Commission has developed a preliminary draft of subdivision regulations and now is in the process of refining them. These regulations are essential in providing some control and guidance over the development of land that the public will have to maintain at some time in the future, according to the county planning director.

Major Purposes

Mr. Renaud cited three major purposes of subdivision regulations. They are (1) to require that plats be recorded before the lots are sold, (2) to assure the home buyer a buildable lot with a minimum standard of design and improvements and (3) to assume conformance with the county master plan and zoning requirements.

After the adoption of these regulations the public benfits in many ways, according to Mr. Renaud. He listed eight advantages. They include (1) beter records are obtained which makes it easier for the public to get information, (2) improves traffic circulation and diverts heavy traffic, (3) reduces the cost of maintenance, (4) promotes good design, (5) assures lot purchasers that adequate improvements such as water, streets, adequate sewage treatment or sanitary sewers will be installed, (6) encourages street layouts to fit the topography and eliminates bad grades, (7) encourages safe, perpendicular intersections and (8) promotes the provision of neighborhood parks.

He concluded his remarks with a practical example of the potential of tourism. An average tourist spends $12 per day. If the county can attract 1000 visitors per day this would mean an addition to the economy of $12,000 per day or $4,380,000 annually.

"I venture to say that there isn't a person in this room who would turn a reputable $4 million industry away from the community, but, in effect, we are doing this very thing by not capitalizing on tourism," Mr. Renaud emphasized.

Gaylord Brooks and Stanley Ritchie of Allegany County Health Department will attend the 13th annual University of Maryland Ice Cream Conference today at College Park.

Car Inspection Task Force Will Be Appointed

Alcohol Test Bill Killed

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes and legislative leaders agreed late Tuesday to let a joint senate-house task force work out a plan for compulsory automobile inspection which might win approval of the Maryland Legislature.

The committee, consisting of four senators and four delegates, will begin work this week trying to reconcile different proposals which have been introduced.

It is expected to come up with some type of plan calling for strict state supervision of automobile inspection, whether it is performed by private individuals or state units themselves. Already rejected, apparently, is the original Legislative Council proposal to build state stations at an estimated initial cost of $6 million and staff and operate them.

Key Plan Killed

The members of the joint committee are to be appointed by Senate President William S. James and House Speaker A. Gordon Boone. Its recommendation is expected to have a good chance of approval.

The action on automobile inspection came within a couple of hours after the house had killed off another key traffic safety proposal which would have required Maryland motorists to take an alcohol test if they were suspected of drunken driving.

Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent of State Police, had called auto inspection and the tougher drunken driving proposal the two most important traffic safety measures at this session of the legislature.

The house voted 90-40 against adopting a favorable Judiciary Committee report on the alcohol bill.

Rights Cited

Chemical tests are now voluntary for drivers suepected of intoxication, and delegates plainly didn't want to write into the law any compulsory feature. Most who spoke against the measure said it would impair an individual's constitutional rights.

The bill had been approved 14-11 by the Judiciary Committee after testimony by Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent of state police, and others who favored the measure.

The superintendent, at a budget hearing before the House Ways and Means Committee earlier in the day, had told legislators of another step his force is taking to curb accidents.

He said unmarked police cars have been on patrol since last October, making up 14 per cent of the active patrol, and have accounted for one third of the arrests of motorists on drunken driving and speeding charges.

He said the 58 unmarked cars are being increased to 111 as the State Police renews half of its fleet of vehicles, an annual custom.

Some delegates said they would think a marked patrol car would be a more effective deterrent to motorists, who would recognize it and slow down.

Is Only Way

Replied Jarman: "The halo around a marked car disappears in a very short distance — as soon as it goes over the crest of a hill. This is the only way to get the habitual violator."

Uniformed police are riding in the unmarked cars and Jarman said they are not attempting to crack down on casual violators. "It is the willful violator of traffic laws that we are after," he said.

The Senate's Judicial Proceedings Committee sought to provide another weapon against speeders. It voted a favorable report on a bill to chalk up four points against a motorist convicted of exceeding the posted limit by 20 miles an hour. At present he gets three points for exceeding the limit by 10 miles an hour.

Jarman, in his appearance before the committee, said the addition of 40 more uniformed troopers requested in Gov. Tawes budget will boost the authorized strength to 711, "about 70 per cent of what is needed" to do an effective job.

To demonstrate the magnitude of the problem, he said there are four cars registered in Maryland for every five persons who are of driving age, 16 years or over.

Legion To Push Member Drive

Mountain District will make a strong bid for the National Commander's Bonus in the national membership drive, according to Philmore Fleming, district commander.

He said Mountain District has already secured 105 per cent of its membership quota and will hold an all-out drive for more members between now and February 15.

Commanders of the winning districts will be guests of the National Commander at a conference in Washington March 9-14.

Winners will be the two districts which show the biggest numerical and percentage membership increases.

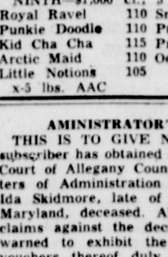
Realty Ramblings . . .

"Why doesn't everyone own his own home?"

Well, each one who doesn't would probably say that "it's better to rent," or, "I haven't been able to find a suitable house within my price range." The truth is that most of them do not feel that they are in a good enough financial position to even discuss the issue.

That's always struck me as a queer paradox, since, with each month's rent paid, they contribute to just such a financial position. Each rent paid reduces liquid assets by the amount of such rental, without increasing stable assets such as one does each time he makes a mortgage payment.



T. T. SUMMERS

Did you ever try to fill a clay flower pot with water, only to see the water run out through the hole in the bottom? Well, a similar process takes place with liquid assets when they are poured into the "cost-of-living" pot in the form of rent. The only way to win is to plug up that hole with the cork of homeownership. Once that is done, the pot will soon fill up and the pouring can stop.

So, if you or any one of your friends are troubled with this flower-pot frustration, come in and see us — Maybe we can surprise you with an easy way for you to become a proud homeowner.

Gillette Takes Fair Trade Action Here

Seeks To Enjoin White Cross Firm

The Gillette Company, Boston, Mass., has filed an equity suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against the White Cross Health and Beauty Aid Discount Centers, Inc., 77 Baltimore Street, to enjoin the store here temporarily from advertising, offering for sale or selling the plaintiff's brand names at less than the minimum "fair trade" prices.

The bill of complaint also asks the court to order the defendant to account to the plaintiff for profit derived from the sale of its products at less than the fair trade minimums. The bill seeks also to have the defendant compelled to pay all ascertainable damage occasioned by its alleged unlawful acts.

Gillette notes in the bill of complaint that it is engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling razors, razor blades, shaving cream, toiletries and related products.

Under the Maryland Fair Trade Act, the plaintiff's Gillette Safety Razor Company division has entered into fair trade contracts with retailers of razors, razor blades, shaving cream, toiletries and related products in Maryland.

On or about July 26, October 31 and November 1, 1962, the plaintiff contends, it duly notified the defendant of the existence of its fair trade contracts with retailers in Maryland and of the minimum retail prices in effect thereunder.

The bill of complaint charges that specifically on January 17, 1963, the defendant sold slim adjustable razor sets, shaving cream and packages of razor blades at less than the fair trade price.

It goes on to state that the effect of this price cutting and alleged unfair competition will induce other Maryland retailers to sell the plaintiff's products at less than the fair trade minimums.

Filing the bill of complaint for Gillette were its attorneys, William Walsh, this city, and Thomas P. Perkins III, Baltimore.

Hancock Gives Sewage Plant Tentative Nod

Hancock has given tentative approval to the low bidder for the construction of sewage treatment facilities for the community, according to Mayor Daniel R. Fleming.

The Ruth Engineering Company, Baltimore, was the low bidder, at $270,374.20, when bids were opend by the Mayor and Council on January 15.

Six other companies, including two from Cumberland, submitted bids on the project.

Mayor Fleming said the approval is contingent upon additional federal aid and the town's ability to finance its share of the project, which will cost more than the engineering estimate.

Plans were prepared by John McNair and Associates of Waynesboro, Va., which estimated cost would be in the neighborhood of $240,460.

Based on this figure, the town was allotted a federal grant of $60,115 toward the cost of the project. State funds will also be available.

The town has asked that the government boost its grant in proportion to the difference between estimated and actual cost of the project.

Town officials will confer with the low bidder to eliminate certain items from the contract in an attempt to get the cost down, Mayor Fleming added.

Fire Company Makes Report

Chief Harry W. Martz of the Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company last night made his annual report on activities in 1962.

Chief Martz said the fire company responded to 23 calls and assisted other fire companies on four occasions.

The fires caused an estimated loss of $4,650 and 560 man hours were used to fight the blazes. Forty different men volnteered their services during the past year.

A breakdown on the type of fires showed there were 13 brush fires, three electrical fires, and one each caused by an overheated stove, furance and flue.

The company also operates an ambulance service and the two vehicles made 103 trips in 1962. There were 41 different men who manned the ambulances for a total of 853 man hours. The company received $2,998 in donations for use of the ambulances and expenses were $2,320.

Forecast Calls For Snow Today

Warming Trend Expected Here

The Weather Bureau calls for warmer temperatures and a chance of snow today, but the mercury still will be below normal for this time of year.

Yesterday, Cumberland recorded its second lowest reading in its history when the official temperature reached 11 degrees below zero early in the day.

Cumberland's lowest reading since official records were started here in 1880 by the Weather Bureau was 12 degrees below zero on February 10, 1899.

The forecast for today calls for cloudy weather with snow predicted for this section of the state and rain elsewhere. The high today is expected to be around 30 degrees.

The frigid temperatures in the area yesterday forced Columbia Gas Of Maryland, Inc. to reduce gas supplies to its industrial customers approximately 50 per cent. However, the emergency measure was to be lifted at midnight last night, according to officials of the gas company.

The emergency procedure was put into effect to channel gas into private homes.

The lowest reading in the state yesterday was noted in Oakland where a —25 was recorded. Other low readings in the area were Frostburg, —6; Keyser, —11; Grantsville, —18; Berkeley Springs, —9, and a —30 in Preston County, W. Va.

Yesterday, the temperature reached an unofficial high of 28 degrees in downtown Cumberland and had leveled off at 24 degrees late last night.

Most of the highways are bare in Allegany County, but a number of secondary roads in Garrett County are still covered.

Woman Recovers Her Pocketbook; $70 Untouched

Mrs. Anne C. Perdew, a clerk in the office of Allegany County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff, is convinced that people are basically honest.

The other night, while driving through Frostburg, Mrs. Perdew opened the door of her car momentarily at the intersection of Main Street and Broadway. When she got home she realized that her pocketbook was missing.

Convinced that her pocketbook had fallen out when she opened the car door, Mrs. Perdew notified Frostburg police of her loss, hoping by chance that she might recover her pocketbook and identification papers, even if she lost her $70.

Police informed her that Mrs. J. Gorman Robertson of Midland, who had been bowling in Frostburg that night, found the pocketbook as she was walking across Main Street and turned it over to police with the $70 intact. Mrs. Perdew was most appreciative of her good fortune but Mrs. Robertson declined a proferred reward.

Building Trades Back Plans For Rocky Gap Park

Plans for the development of the Rocky Gap State Park have been endorsed by the Cumberland Building and Construction Trades Council.

He said the council also pledged its fullest support toward the speedy development of the park, which could become one of the county's major recreation centers.

Copies of the resolution are being sent to state officials and to Allegany County legislators.

The Building Trades council is composed of 12 craft unions engaged in the building and construction trades and has some 2,500 affiliated members.

Hazen Road Home Damaged By Fire

A Hazen Road dwelling was damaged slightly by fire yesterday morning when the occupant was attempting to thaw a water pipe which froze in the intense cold weather.

Firemen from Bedford Road responded to the call about 10:15 a.m. at the home occupied by Roy Payne. Twelve men took two trucks to the scene of the fire, caused when an electrical tape ignited the flooring.

Civil Rights Bill Pushed By State Dept.

Hearing Is Held By House Group

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The weight of the U.S. Secretary of State was brought to bear again on the Maryland Legislature for a law requiring hotels and restaurants to serve Negroes.

"We are pouring millions of dollars into foreign aid, yet ruining this tremendous effort by refusing to accept our next door neighbor because his skin is dark," said Pedro Sanjuan, deputy director for protocol services in the State Department.

"You can assist our country in carrying out its world mission with a law to convince those who promote segregation that the ideals of equality must be practiced."

"There is a tremendous amount of criticism over our discrimination in the world and it hurts our foreign policy. It is an insurmountable argument when condoning it by law seems to be a policy of government."

Sanjuan had urged the Maryland Legislative Council two years ago to recommend a state law on equal accommodations and meanwhile he sought voluntary integration on U.S. 40—main auto corridor for travelers between New York and Washington.

Cites Incidents

Refusal of service to touring diplomats from African nations caused the State Department concern because of adverse publicity abroad.

Sanjuan said that since many of the U.S. 40 restaurants had voluntarily integrated, there still had been "numerous incidents that are regrettable." He described nine of them as major.

Sanjuan was one of 24 speakers who consumed three hours urging the House Judiciary Committee to report favorably on mandatory service to all races in hotels and restaurants. Such a bill failed by two votes in the house at a special session last year.

Several of the 23 counties again are expected to be exempted from provisions of the law. An effort will be made to broaden the places covered to taverns and amusements such as beaches, bowling alleys and theaters.

A dozen more speakers opposed, violently as confirmed segregationists, any legal requirement for private business to serve all comers. Their arguments took nearly 2½ hours and with a recess the hearing stretched from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

This is the ninth year that bills for equal public accommodations have been introduced in the Maryland Legislature. Baltimore City and the Washington suburban county of Montgomery are the only two in the state with local laws on the subject.

Cite Arguments

Spokesman for extension by the state act represented all religions, organized labor, veterans, women's clubs and groups with the purpose of promoting civil rights.

On the other side, three o fthe speakers were from the Maryland Petition Committee for State Rights, individual white supremacists, taverns, restaurants, and motels.

The principal arguments of business were that it was an encroachment on free enterprise and property rights.

John H. Heiser of Chevy Chase sought to prove it also was a right reserved to the people to decide. He said he ran for the Montgomery County Council last year only in protest to adoption of its public accommodations ordinance without putting the question to the voters. He was elected.

"Four councilmen who voted for adoption of the ordinance running for re-election were clobbered," he said.

Samuel J. Setta, an Easton motel owner, told the legislators their first obligation is to Maryland residents, not to appease African diplomats.

"Imagine if we tried to influence legislation in their countries," he said. "The first thing we would be told is 'Yankee go home.'"

Tucker County Classes Will Resume Monday

Classes for Mountaineer Senior High School students will resume in Davis Monday, according to Stelman W. Harper, superintendent of Tucker County schools.

Classes for some 148 senior high school students were suspended January 14 after Mountaineer High School in Thomas was closed by the Board of Education as unsafe.

Tentative plans called for the students to start back to school today, but the start of classes was delayed until Monday because of the weather.

Mr. Harper said the first floor of the Mountaineer Junior High School building in Davis will be used by junior high school students and the second floor for senior high classes.

The Citizens' Committee of Thomas is attempting to block the move, which it feels the Board of Education will try to make permanent, according to Dale Duncan, chairman.

Chief Signalman Will Be Piped Ashore Last Time

An old Navy tradition will be re-enacted tonight at the U. S. Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center on McKaig's Hill when Chief Signalman Earl H. Cupp will be piped ashore for the last time on the occasion of his being transferred to the U. S. Naval Fleet Reserve after 20 years in the service of his country.

Chief Cupp entered service in 1943. He served aboard several communications command ships, a number of destroyers and in amphibious support ships. For three years he was a member of the Operational Development Force, with headquarters in the Norfolk area.

His last duty before coming to Cumberland was with the Destroyer Activation Team in Charleston, S.C., where he assisted in the training of Chinese and German crews to man ships that were loaned to them from the mothball fleet of the U.S. Navy. At the local training center, Chief Cupp has been serving as executive officer and training administrator.

Following his retirement, Chief and Mrs. Cupp and their son, Greg, plan to reside in the Norfolk area and obtain employment with the U.S. Civil Service.

Progress Noted On Validation Of Petitions

The city clerk's office made a good start yesterday toward validating petitions submitted Monday for a referendum on the question of fluoridating the city's water supply .

By 4 p.m. personnel of the office had checked 1,357 names on petitions and found 737 valid signatures.

4,482 Sign

Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk, said plans called for continuing work until about 8 p.m.

An official count showed there were 4,482 signatures on the petitions submitted to the Mayor and Council by the Cumberland Pure Water Committee.

Needed to validate the referendum petition are the signatures of 2,101 registered voters.

Rules for the count, based on the city's home rule legislation, provide that petitions must be signed by 20 per cent of the voters registered on the day the petition is submitted.

There were 10,453 voters registered on December 31 and 54 more voters had been placed on the books up to 5 p.m. Monday, for a total eligible list of 10,507 voters.

As work started yesterday,, Mr. Ullery estimated it may take at least three days and some overtime to complete the petition check.

City Has Choice

Personnel of the city clerk and legal offices, with Mrs. Gene Weber, an extra worker, are checking the petitions.

City officials, under home rule legislation, may elect either to schedule the referendum at a special election or at the next regular municipal election in 1966.

Renaud Says County Needs Planning Tools

Director Tells Rotarians Of Plan

C. Lee Renaud, Allegany County's planning director, told members of the Cumberland Rotary Club yesterday at Central YMCA that if Allegany County is to plan today for tomorrow's needs and growth through a master plan it must be carried out by adoption and enforcement om proper planning tools.

He identified these tools as a zoning ordinance, major highway plan, capital improvements program and subdivision regulations.

The county is now protected by an interim zoning ordinance which was adopted in October 1961. The county's planning consultant is working on a permanent ordinance which should be ready later this year.

Highway Plan

To provide for a coordinated and balanced road development in the county, the major highway plan was prepared and adopted recently. Mr. Renaud stressed that by reserving rights of way for future roads now the taxpayer is saved much money.

A capital improvements program will be developed after all reports and recommendations have been completed. This program will set up priorities for needed public facilities and serve as a guide for the allocation of funds to put the county on a pay-as-you go basis, according to Mr. Renaud.

The County Planning and Zoning Commission has developed a preliminary draft of subdivision regulations and now is in the process of refining them. These regulations are essential in providing some control and guidance over the development of land that the public will have to maintain at some time in the future, according to the county planning director.

Major Purposes

Mr. Renaud cited three major purposes of subdivision regulations. They are (1) to require that plats be recorded before the lots are sold, (2) to assure the home buyer a buildable lot with a minimum standard of design and improvements and (3) to assume conformance with the county master plan and zoning requirements.

After the adoption of these regulations the public benfits in many ways, according to Mr. Renaud. He listed eight advantages. They include (1) beter records are obtained which makes it easier for the public to get information, (2) improves traffic circulation and diverts heavy traffic, (3) reduces the cost of maintenance, (4) promotes good design, (5) assures lot purchasers that adequate improvements such as water, streets, adequate sewage treatment or sanitary sewers will be installed, (6) encourages street layouts to fit the topography and eliminates bad grades, (7) encourages safe, perpendicular intersections and (8) promotes the provision of neighborhood parks.

He concluded his remarks with a practical example of the potential of tourism. An average tourist spends $12 per day. If the county can attract 1000 visitors per day this would mean an addition to the economy of $12,000 per day or $4,380,000 annually.

"I venture to say that there isn't a person in this room who would turn a reputable $4 million industry away from the community, but, in effect, we are doing this very thing by not capitalizing on tourism," Mr. Renaud emphasized.

Attend Meeting

Gaylord Brooks and Stanley Ritchie of Allegany County Health Department will attend the 13th annual University of Maryland Ice Cream Conference today at College Park.

Car Inspection Task Force Will Be Appointed

Alcohol Test Bill Killed

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes and legislative leaders agreed late Tuesday to let a joint senate-house task force work out a plan for compulsory automobile inspection which might win approval of the Maryland Legislature.

The committee, consisting of four senators and four delegates, will begin work this week trying to reconcile different proposals which have been introduced.

It is expected to come up with some type of plan calling for strict state supervision of automobile inspection, whether it is performed by private individuals or state units themselves. Already rejected, apparently, is the original Legislative Council proposal to build state stations at an estimated initial cost of $6 million and staff and operate them.

Key Plan Killed

The members of the joint committee are to be appointed by Senate President William S. James and House Speaker A. Gordon Boone. Its recommendation is expected to have a good chance of approval.

The action on automobile inspection came within a couple of hours after the house had killed off another key traffic safety proposal which would have required Maryland motorists to take an alcohol test if they were suspected of drunken driving.

Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent of State Police, had called auto inspection and the tougher drunken driving proposal the two most important traffic safety measures at this session of the legislature.

Rights Cited

Chemical tests are now voluntary for drivers suepected of intoxication, and delegates plainly didn't want to write into the law any compulsory feature. Most who spoke against the measure said it would impair an individual's constitutional rights.

The bill had been approved 14-11 by the Judiciary Committee after testimony by Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent of state police, and others who favored the measure.

The superintendent, at a budget hearing before the House Ways and Means Committee earlier in the day, had told legislators of another step his force is taking to curb accidents.

He said unmarked police cars have been on patrol since last October, making up 14 per cent of the active patrol, and have accounted for one third of the arrests of motorists on drunken driving and speeding charges.

He said the 58 unmarked cars are being increased to 111 as the State Police renews half of its fleet of vehicles, an annual custom.

Some delegates said they would think a marked patrol car would be a more effective deterrent to motorists, who would recognize it and slow down.

Is Only Way

Replied Jarman: "The halo around a marked car disappears in a very short distance — as soon as it goes over the crest of a hill. This is the only way to get the habitual violator."

Uniformed police are riding in the unmarked cars and Jarman said they are not attempting to crack down on casual violators. "It is the willful violator of traffic laws that we are after," he said.

The Senate's Judicial Proceedings Committee sought to provide another weapon against speeders. It voted a favorable report on a bill to chalk up four points against a motorist convicted of exceeding the posted limit by 20 miles an hour. At present he gets three points for exceeding the limit by 10 miles an hour.

Jarman, in his appearance before the committee, said the addition of 40 more uniformed troopers requested in Gov. Tawes budget will boost the authorized strength to 711, "about 70 per cent of what is needed" to do an effective job.

To demonstrate the magnitude of the problem, he said there are four cars registered in Maryland for every five persons who are of driving age, 16 years or over.

Legion To Push Member Drive

Mountain District will make a strong bid for the National Commander's Bonus in the national membership drive, according to Philmore Fleming, district commander.

He said Mountain District has already secured 105 per cent of its membership quota and will hold an all-out drive for more members between now and February 15.

The membership drive will be discussed at a Mountain District meeting Sunday at 2:15 p.m. at the home of Barton Post 189.

Commanders of the winning districts will be guests of the National Commander at a conference in Washington March 9-14.

Winners will be the two districts which show the biggest numerical and percentage membership increases.
